El CEO de AMD, Lisa Su, acaba de acabar con la caja de IA de $4,000 de Nvidia con una lonchera de $1,499.

Subió al escenario, la sostuvo en una mano y ejecutó en vivo un modelo de 235 mil millones de parámetros. Sin centro de datos. Sin nube. Sin GPU alquilada.

El chip en su interior es algo que nadie vio venir. El Ryzen AI Max+ 395 de AMD es el primer silicio x86 donde la CPU y la GPU comparten los mismos 128 GB de memoria. Ese solo truco permite que un escritorio ejecute modelos que antes necesitaban un rack de servidores.

De esos 128 GB, Linux le da al GPU 110 GB para jugar. Para contextualizar, una RTX 5090 te da 32 GB. Una 4090 te da 24. Esta caja te da más del triple que

His recent speech touches on a critical issue that demands our attention.

With the current state of the world, are we really serious about solving the climate crisis, or are we just putting on a show?

Here's the hard truth:

Fossil fuel companies are still using their political power to block progress

Critical conversations about phasing out oil and gas aren't even allowed on the table at COPs.

Many climate commitments we do have are failing to deliver the results we urgently need.

- Whey protein (isolate)

- Cottage cheese (low or fat free)

- Your favorite hot sauce (for taste)

The goal: EASY and QUICK.

I don't have time to spend hours in the kitchen.

Chicken & Rice

cualquiera de ellas, en un chasis del tamaño de un libro de bolsillo grueso.

El benchmark que rompió la sala: este chip superó a una Nvidia RTX 5080 por más de 3x en inferencia de DeepSeek R1. Una lonchera de $1,499 superando a una tarjeta gráfica discreta de $1,000 en una carga de trabajo real de IA. Nvidia pasó una década convenciendo al mundo de que necesitabas su hardware para IA seria. AMD acaba de poner eso en un escritorio por la mitad del precio.

Aquí está lo que nadie te está diciendo. Un usuario intensivo de IA ahora paga $200 por Claude Code Max, $200 por ChatGPT Pro, $20 por Cursor, $20 por Gemini. Eso son $5,280 al año saliendo de tu cuenta. La caja se paga sola en 9 meses y luego corre gratis por el resto de su vida.

Instala Ollama. Descarga Qwen3 235B. Apunta Claude Code a localhost. La misma interfaz que ya usas, excepto que ahora nada sale de tu máquina, nada cuesta por solicitud y ninguna empresa limita tu uso a las 3 de la mañana cuando por fin tienes tiempo para construir.

Este es el momento en que todas las suscripciones de IA se vuelven opcionales. Los abogados dejan de temer fugas de OpenAI. Los desarrolladores dejan de mirar el medidor de tokens. Los fundadores dejan de alquilar H100s para prototipos que nunca se envían porque la factura los asustó.

"Es lo mejor para su negocio."

"Es un egoísta que no piensa en su país."

Por desgracia, la segunda opinión es la más común.

Pero, ¿Por qué se van?

En España:

Los impuestos te asfixian (y encima se usan mal).

La burocracia te frena.

La percepción social del empresario no ayuda.

Ahora pregunto:

¿Cuántos millones de € estamos dejando de recaudar por asfixiar a los que lo generan?

¿Cuánta innovación estamos dejando escapar por no apoyar a los emprendedores de verdad?

Y la verdadera pregunta es esta:

¿Queremos ser un país que premia el esfuerzo o uno que lo castiga?

Feliz cumpleaños 🎂

Clint Eastwood nació el 31 de mayo de 1930 y cumple 96 años este mes.
Una de sus citas más conocidas es: "No dejes entrar al viejo".
Esa línea se convirtió en un lema personal sobre el envejecimiento, la disciplina y la negativa a rendirse mentalmente. Provino de una conversación sobre mantenerse activo, mantenerse curioso y seguir avanzando sin importar su edad.
Deseándoles un muy feliz cumpleaños y muchos más por delante.

The SDR role isn't entry-level anymore.

We still see companies treating SDRs as junior reps, but the reality is different.
Today's SDRs are driving complex sales processes, leveraging AI, personalization, workflow automation, and deep market research to generate pipeline. It's no longer just about making calls and sending emails. It's a strategic role that requires skill, adaptability, and a deep understanding of the

My mom died yesterday.

People reached out.

"Sorry about your mom."
"My condolences."
Someone talked about their own mom for four minutes.

No one did anything wrong.
It's just that "sorry" and "my condolences" lead into a conversational cul-de-sac.
There's nowhere to go.

Then one person said something different:

"What's one fond memory you have of your mom?"

That question changed everything.

Suddenly I wasn't managing other people's discomfort.
I was smiling and talking about my mom.
A story.
A moment.
Something still alive.

It replaced awkward silence with connection.

Sometimes support isn't about saying the right thing.

It's about asking a question that lets someone keep loving out loud.

compiladores. Pero nunca dicen eso".

No es anti AI. El kernel de Linux vio un aumento del 20% en las presentaciones de esta versión debido a las herramientas de IA. Él lo usa. Él lo entiende.

Su punto es algo que la mayoría de la gente tiene demasiado miedo de decir.
La IA es una herramienta de productividad exactamente como lo fueron los compiladores. Los compiladores aumentaron la programación en 1000x. La IA añade otros 10x en la parte superior. Enorme. Pero nadie dice "el compilador escribió mi código". Entonces, ¿por qué decimos que la IA lo escribió?

También señaló algo de lo que nadie habla.

La IA está inundando pequeños proyectos de código abierto con informes de errores drive-by. Alguien ejecuta un aviso, presenta un informe y desaparece cuando se le pide un parche. Los mantenedores con una o dos personas se están ahogando tratando de mantenerse al día.

"A veces la IA informa un error y cuando pides más información, la persona ha hecho ese viaje y ni siquiera responde a tu pregunta. Ese es el verdadero problema del agotamiento".

Y su última advertencia fue la más aguda de todas.

"Las personas que no entienden la complejidad de los sistemas impulsarán los sistemas y escribirán procesos que fallarán".

La multitud de la IA es muy ruidosa en este

But companies are seriously overlooking this hotbed of talent.

This country is where the future of SDR's live and here's why:

Those that get the 6-figure job offers are not the smartest.

They are simply the most prepared.

The candidates with the highest chance to succeed ensure:

Hace ya 8 años que cree ENJOYERS. Tan solo tenía 21 años y estaba estudiando tercero de farmacia.

No tenía ni idea de nada, solo ganas y motivación por hacer algo grande. Algo de lo que estar orgulloso en unos años.

Los primeros años tuve que compaginar el proyecto con terminar la carrera de farmacia.

Una vez terminada la carrera, tuve que decidir si seguir emprendiendo o dejar la farmacia de mi madre con las consecuencias familiares que eso tendría.

Pese a que estaba muerto de miedo, decidí apostar por emprender y dejar la farmacia para siempre.

Cuando la empresa estaba en su mejor momento llegó una pandemia que se llevó casi todo nuestro negocio y el de mucha gente por delante.

Dos años de lucha diaria, pero finalmente se consiguió salvar la empresa y llevar ENJOYERS de nuevo a niveles de facturación pre-pandemia.

Empezamos 2023 con los mejores datos de la historia de ENJOYERS pero al poco de conseguir esto, nos comunican que nos tenemos que ir del almacén donde estamos porque lo van a vender.

Surge la oportunidad de vender la empresa para que otras personas con más recursos, almacén propio e ilusión llevaran ENJOYERS al siguiente nivel. Después de estar todo casi cerrado, el lunes por la noche se cae la operación por una jugada fea de los compradores.

1) It's not subject to classic EU regulation

Which makes it ripe for startup innovation. The EU is bogged down by regulation, this country isn't. Don't be surprised when the next Open AI comes from here.

2) Workforce is built different

Their GDP is unknown and their language has no vowels. Their SDR's live entirely on caffeine, outbound sequences, and Zyn's. Perfect SDR DNA.

3) Strategic proximity to markets

Can cold-call the EU timezone in the morning, and the US timezone in the evening. Which makes possible the cherished 15hr workday.

99% of Americans can't name this country.

Any guesses?

En 20 días nos quedamos sin almacén y mi cuerpo y mi mente después de tantos años han dicho basta. No pueden más. Necesitan descansar un poco y re-ilusionarse con nuevos proyecto.

Es muy duro cerrar una empresa que va bien, con +80.000 seguidores, +30.000 clientes y creciendo +70% con respecto a 2022, pero ya no tengo fuerzas ni motivación para solventar este nuevo reto.

Gracias a que me atreví con 21 años y decidí dejar un trabajo seguro por emprender, hoy soy una mejor persona y profesional. Soy EMPRENDEDOR y siempre seré emprendedor porque creo que es la mejor forma de cambiar y mejorar el mundo.

Me gustaría despedirme agradeciendo de corazón a trabajadores (especialmente a Carmen García Anula y Carlos), clientes, inversores, colaboradores, proveedores, familia, amigos y en definitiva, a todas las personas que me han ayudado en estos años. La mayoría confiaron a ciegas en un niño que solo les podía ofrecer trabajo duro, pasión y ganas. PDT: Toda la web está al 50% hasta el 30 de abril o hasta agotar existencias.

¡Gracias por todo! Carlos Martínez.

HASTA LOS H... DE SER AUTÓNOMO EN ESPAÑA es

Hoy me levanto, miro el banco y veo que me han cobrado 5 cuotas de autónomo.

Veo las fechas y cuatro de ellas pone que son cuotas de 2020 (pandemia).

No sabéis la impotencia que siento 😞

Siento que estoy en un país donde el gobierno es ese abusón de la clase que te pega y te pega y no puedes hacer nada.

Además, nadie se atreve a defenderte por miedo a qué les peguen a ellos.

Sin previo aviso y cuando les da la gana te quitan el dinero que consideran del banco (ahora reclámalo)

Creo en pagar impuestos pero pienso que estamos llegando a unos límites insostenible que hace que tenga ganas de irme de España.

🔥 BREAKING: Anthropic Releases CLAUDE SKILLS 🔥

Almost nobody is relaising how big this is.

Claude Skills let you turn prompts into permanent workflows.

Instead of telling AI what to do every time... you just teach it once.

Then Claude automatically knows:

- how you write
- how you structure work
- how your workflows run
- what steps to follow

So your AI stops acting like a chatbot...and starts acting like an employee that runs processes for you.

Once a skill is built, Claude can trigger it automatically whenever the request matches.

This is HUGE.

This just took AI from: tool you prompt → system that runs your workflows

So what did we do?

We just released the full guide to Claude Skills 🔥

Inside:

This Tech Prevents Millions of Kilos of Plastic from Polluting Our Oceans 🌊

Deployed by The Ocean Cleanup, this innovative technology has already collected a vast amount of waste in just its first year of operation.

Designed specifically for highly polluted rivers like the Rio Las Vacas, Interceptor 006 efficiently captures plastic and other debris, preventing it from reaching the Caribbean Sea 🌊

Its strategic two-boom system withstands powerful flash floods and removes vast quantities of trash in a matter of hours.

This is a groundbreaking win in the fight against plastic pollution.

However, while the Interceptor 006 is making an incredible impact, it's important to remember that this is only part of the solution.

The trash will keep coming, unless we address the source—reducing the production and overuse of plastic that inevitably ends up polluting our waterways.

Together, we can combine innovative technologies like the Interceptor 006 with sustainable practices to turn the tide on plastic pollution for good 🌟

Why most cold emails get ignored

Maybe it's not your writing.
Maybe it has nothing to do with personalization.
Or word count.

Maybe it's your offer.

Think about it.

Cold emails are basically saying:

"Hey stranger, want to book time with a salesperson to see a demo of a product you're not actively looking for?"

Hard pass.

What if you changed the offer?

La historia de Starbucks no es un chisme corporativo. Es un recordatorio violento de algo que muchos no quieren escuchar:

No es lo mismo enseñar cómo se dirige una empresa... que dirigir una empresa.

He estado en varias compañías donde contratan gente brillante académicamente: maestros, consultores que llevan 10 años dando clases, especialistas con diplomas impecables... y ojo, no demerito su esfuerzo ni su conocimiento. Pero asesorar desde el aula no es lo mismo que operar en la vida real.

La realidad del mercado no cabe en un salón. Ahí afuera hay presión, pérdidas, competencia, equipos que dependen de ti, clientes que no perdonan, decisiones que queman.

Y mientras algunos siguen citando frameworks, las empresas necesitan operadores con cicatrices, no teóricos con presentaciones bonitas.

Esto va para todos: UPE, IPN, universidades, escuelas de negocio, consultorías... La teoría es valiosa, sí. Pero si no te has ensuciado los zapatos, tus recomendaciones no tienen contexto.

I just made one over the weekend and I'm a no coder..

Then I used n8n to make it more crazy just now...

Here's what it can do:

- Finds the exact leads I want

- Stalks the web for intel

- Writes messages that sound like me

- Knows when to follow up

- Preps me for the call

Drafts the proposal when it's done

And it runs... 24/7.

Here's the wild part:

I made it in one afternoon using drag-and-drop blocks.

No scripts or devs.

I literally fed it:

- A Google Sheet of leads

- My prompts for research + messaging

I made the entire document using Gamma took me a few mins.

I've added literally everything you need to know to build

The exact step-by-step + import-ready workflow I

Un policía encuentra a Don Heriberto durmiendo en la calle bajo la lluvia. En vez de ignorarlo o correrlo, se sienta, le habla con cariño, le lleva un tinto caliente y le ofrece ayuda real para sacarlo de la calle.

"Don Heriberto... ¿acepta que le busquemos un lugar?"

"Gracias por ayudarme, mi comandante..."

Esto es humanidad pura. No es solo un policía, es un ser humano con uniforme.

A veces la grandeza no está en los discursos, está en estos gestos pequeños que cambian vidas.

Here's why cold emails get ignored

It's not your writing.

It has nothing to do with personalization.

Or word count.

It's your offer.

Think about it.

Cold emails are basically saying:

"Hey stranger, want to book time with a salesperson to see a demo of a product you're not actively looking for?"

Hard pass.

What if you changed the offer?

Made it more enticing.

Josh Braun

Here's why top reps leave.

They hit quota.

They lift the whole team.

They make the company money.

And their reward is punishment.

Next year's quota goes up.

Targets get "stretched."

The goalposts move.

It's like telling a marathon runner:

"Great job on 26 miles. Next year, it's 35."

High performers don't burn out from selling.

They burn out from feeling like success makes the hill steeper.

Only one way to find out.

Let's see if I can motivate you to respond to my cold email.

Here it is.

An SDR in North Carolina shared the cold email sequence he uses to consistently book six enterprise meetings every month. He gave me the sequence. I tested it across multiple industries. It works. Type "yes" in the comments to see it.

We just crossed the threshold:

When Claude runs inside Excel + PowerPoint, spreadsheets and decks stop being "work" and Prospects feel it within minutes. And it creates distance.

Being yourself, with your real opinions, your hesitations, your awkward moments, is what actually builds trust.

People buy from people they believe.

And you cannot fake that over a long sales cycle.

My shortest, most unpolished messages get the fastest replies.

No structure. No carefully engineered opening line. Just a real person talking to another real person.

Al parecer están en período de prueba, pero en cualquier momento los trabajos de taxistas, delivery, arquitectos, ingenieros, etc., serán reemplazados por robots. Cada vez que hablas de algún tema, el teléfono te está escuchando y te envía publicidad relacionada con lo que hablaste.

Vivimos rodeados de computadoras que están aprendiendo de nosotros y, si no aprendemos a usar estas tecnologías, mañana el planeta entero estará dominado por las computadoras más inteligentes que jamás hayan existido: computadoras sin sentimientos ni emociones, sin alma y mucho menos espíritu, pero con la capacidad de reemplazarnos como cualquier estorbo sin sentido alguno.

 Kike Sanchis Alonso Sanchis Alonso

Una estudiante de 16 años (ahora de 22) de Limpopo, Sudáfrica, ha recibido atención por un dispositivo de seguridad que diseñó. Su nombre es Bohlale Mphahlele. Creó la idea de un dispositivo llamado "Alerting Earpiece". Es un pequeño dispositivo con forma de pendiente. El objetivo es ayudar a las personas en situaciones peligrosas.

 Chris Donnelly

A good manager can change your life.

The impact of a good manager extends far beyond your day to day work.

It impacts your progression, your development and

Okay, AI is getting out of control.
I closed €8,000 in new business in 3 hours with Apollo's AI.

I didn't run ads
I didn't make any content
I didn't pay for influencers

Se le ocurrió la idea debido a las altas tasas de criminalidad y la violencia de género en Sudáfrica.
Quería diseñar algo pequeño, simple y fácil de usar.

El diseño incluye una pequeña cámara, un rastreador GPS y un botón de alerta. La idea es que el usuario pueda presionar un botón oculto. El dispositivo entonces tomaría una foto del atacante.
También enviaría la ubicación del usuario a contactos de confianza y servicios de emergencia.

El dispositivo aún está en desarrollo: El prototipo ha ganado premios (incluyendo bronce en el Eskom Expo) y atención internacional, pero aún no está disponible comercialmente.
Llegará al mercado antes de lo que piensas, muestra cómo una idea de una persona eventualmente afectará la vida de muchos.

🔗 Why did this work? Aspiration

I didn't do any cold calling

With Apollo's AI, I was able to look for people who are LOOKING FOR ME.

That's right. They are looking for my services.

The AI infiltrates their cookies, Meta Data and searches.

Then, it builds a profile to show me specifically who's looking for my services.

Imagine this:

→ 'Client X' is looking for a LinkedIn ghost-writer.
→ They've been searching LinkedIn, Favikon, Google etc...
→ Over the past 24 hours, they've conducted several searches.
→ You swoop in and let them know you're aware they're hunting for you.
→ You hop on a call, pitch your services and then you close the deal....BOOM!

Let me break it down further:

You go to Apollo:

→ You add your filters and your preferences.
→ Look for companies that are searching for Recruiters
→ You see 200 companies looking RIGHT NOW.. for a recruiter.
→ You swoop in and let them know you're aware
they're hunting for you.
→ And the best thing is, you can automate the ENTIRE outreach process...!

If you don't get how important this is, then don't worry, you don't need it.

If you get how important this is, and you want to do it, I got you.

Comment "APOLLO" below and I'll send you a step by step guide on how to set this up today.

Then, when you close your first deal within a 2-3 days, come back and leave me a testimonial... lol.

I FREAKING LOVE AI!

Cold calling is NOT rocket science.

So stop acting like it is.

You don't need to read a book on it and it doesn't take months to get good at it.

You need a strategy, practice, and to get your reps in to become great at doing it.

I recorded a 10 min video that can help you start booking 5-10 meetings per week NOW if you follow the framework.

If you want me to send it to you comment "cold call".

Mi regalo de Papa Noel 📱

En España, pasamos un promedio de 6 h al día en nuestros móviles, dedicando gran parte de ese tiempo a redes sociales. Solo en Instagram, TikTok y WhatsApp, perdemos más de 30 días al año pegados a la pantalla.

¿El resultado? Según estudios recientes:

📱 Menos concentración y memoria: El consumo excesivo de contenido basura puede deteriorar nuestras capacidades cognitivas básicas.

😬 Más ansiedad y estrés: El 55% de los casos de ansiedad en España están relacionados con la adicción a las redes sociales.

😬 Autoestima en caída libre: Especialmente entre los más jóvenes, que comparan sus vidas reales con las versiones editadas de otros.

Estás navidades decidí dar un paso drástico: Le pedí a mi mujer un móvil sin internet. Solo llamadas y SMS, como en los viejos tiempos.

Quiero recuperar algo que parece que estamos perdiendo: la capacidad de estar presentes.

¿Qué opinas?

👉 ¿Estamos enganchados o solo necesitamos mejor educación digital?

 Why did this work? Controversy

What used to take a team now takes one person with a system.

So I documented it.

My full B2B acquisition workflow is now a repeatable engine built entirely with AI Agents.

The results:

- 30+ qualified meetings per month
- $80K+ in cold outreach revenue
- $0 spent on ads
- No hires, no burnout
- Just smart, scalable AI

Inside the guide:

- My exact ChatGPT prompts for copy, follow-ups & offers
- How to build lead lists with Apollo (filters + hacks)
- How to enrich, qualify, and sequence prospects
- How to connect GPT to every step
- Real-time tracking system (Google Sheets + Zapier)
- Bonus: My Instagram DM automation for high-ticket closes

This isn't a course.

It's not a PDF with fluff.

It's a plug-and-play system that actually works.

If you're a freelancer, consultant, or agency owner stuck doing everything manually...

You don't need a team.

You need a better system.

→ Comment "n8n" and I'll send it to you.

BREAKING: CLAUDE 4.7 is out.

Head of Sales, Head of Marketing:
here's what it changes for you.

(it just solved the #1 problem your teams complain about)

If you're still manually cleaning your CRM, this will change everything.

Most sales teams waste 5–10 hours weekly updating records.

- Checking if contacts still work there.
- Deleting dead phone numbers.
- Fixing bounced emails.

Meanwhile, your best champion from a closed deal just joined your dream account.

And you had no idea.

 Kike Sanchis Alonso Sanchis Alonso

Esto fue filmado ayer por la mañana en Westside Animal Rescue en Phoenix. El hombre es Carlos. 39 años. Vino al refugio para ver perros. Le dijo a la recepción que solo estaba "mirando". No estoy seguro de si estaba listo para el compromiso. El personal lo llevó a conocer a un mestizo marrón llamado Rocky. Mezcla de pastor y labrador. Cuatro años. Carlos se sentó en el suelo con Rocky durante unos treinta minutos. Rocky estaba tranquilo. Se sentó junto a Carlos. Dejó que Carlos lo acariciara. Un encuentro normal. Luego Carlos se puso de pie. Le dijo al personal que quería "pensarlo durante la noche". Fue entonces cuando Rocky se movió. No ladró. No saltó. Solo se lanzó hacia adelante y envolvió ambas patas delanteras alrededor de la pierna de Carlos. Se aferró fuerte. Carlos intentó dar un paso. Rocky se deslizó por el suelo todavía sujetando la pierna de Carlos. No la soltaba. Temblando. Cola metida completamente hacia abajo. Cuerpo tembloroso. Haciendo este sonido de gemido suave. La voluntaria Jessica estaba en la

Where they went to school.

Then “personalize” the email by tying that trivia to your pitch.

Example:

“Josh, I noticed you like wine. What if you could hit all the right notes when it comes to retaining customers?”

This isn’t personalization.
It’s cosplay.

It’s a lot of work to manufacture familiarity that doesn’t exist.

And buyers feel it instantly.

They know you don’t care about their wine hobby.
They know it’s a setup.
They know the pitch is coming.

That’s why it backfires.
The seller’s intent is to give prospects a dopamine hit so they’re more likely to respond.
Ewww.

Instead of researching people, research problems.

Find a group of people dealing with the same issue.
Send it to all of them.

That’s not personalized.
It’s personal.

Let’s test it.

family got our first computer in 2006 when I was in the Philippines, it changed my life. It allowed me to video call my mom in the US, reach out to friends, and so much more. As I grew up, I found even more appreciation for technology. Then “The Internship” came out in 2013 and the movie showed me that it’s possible to work at Google. Ever since then, I’ve always thought of how cool it would be to work at one of the companies that’s on the cutting edge and even wear one of those spiny hats. Now, I did it! It’s here, it’s happening, and now it’s (almost) over (for now, hopefully)!

Even though my internship experience was not a “normal” one, I am still thankful for the experience, the challenges and lessons (I’ve dealt with imposter syndrome and perfectionism A LOT throughout my time. Still dealing but we are learning!), the amazing Brand Studio org, and MOST IMPORTANTLY the people that I’ve met throughout my time at Google!

For those that helped to get me here (you know who you are), I APPRECIATE YOU SO SO MUCH, I couldn’t have done it without you! THANK YOU THANK YOU THANK YOU! ❤️

If you would like to join, comment below, “register” and I will send the link over to you to join!

1. Claude para pensar, escribir y trabajar con documentos

Cuando la tarea exige razonamiento, análisis largo, buena redacción o trabajo con archivos, empieza por Claude.

Prompt:

"Actúa como mi socio editorial estratégico. Lee el contexto adjunto, identifica objetivo, público y tono. Después hazme 3 preguntas clave antes de redactar."

2. ChatGPT para imagen y creatividad visual

Si necesitas crear o editar imágenes, hacer mockups, miniaturas, carruseles o conceptos visuales, ChatGPT es la opción más cómoda.

Prompt:

"Crea una imagen para [objetivo]. Mantén el estilo de la referencia, adapta colores y composición a [marca] y prioriza claridad en menos de 3 segundos."

3. Grok para actualidad y tendencias

Grok tiene sentido cuando necesitas entender qué se está diciendo ahora mismo.

Prompt:

"Investiga qué se está diciendo sobre [tema]. Dame 5 patrones, 3 señales emergentes y 2 riesgos."

Separa hechos, opiniones e hipótesis."

4. Gemini para idiomas, YouTube y entorno Google

Brilla en contenido multilingüe, videos, traducción con contexto y flujos conectados a Google Workspace.

Prompt:

"Resume este contenido en castellano y adáptalo para una audiencia de [país/sector], manteniendo matices culturales y evitando traducción literal."

5. Kimi para modelos abiertos y equipos técnicos

No es para todo el mundo, pero interesa si quieres más control, menos dependencia de proveedores cerrados o flujos con modelos open-weight.

Prompt:

"Diseña una solución para [caso de uso] usando un modelo open-weight. Incluye arquitectura, riesgos, costes y cuándo NO tendría sentido."

6. ¿Copilot? Solo si tu empresa vive dentro de Microsoft

Tiene sentido si tu organización ya trabaja muy metida en Microsoft 365, Teams, Outlook, SharePoint y Excel.

Si no, muchas veces hay opciones más flexibles.

We will only be hosting 200 people so get your spot before they're all taken.

See you there!

La clave no es casarte con una herramienta.

La clave es tener criterio:

Claude para profundidad.
ChatGPT para imagen.
Grok para actualidad.
Gemini para idiomas y vídeo.
Kimi para control técnico.
Copilot para ecosistema Microsoft.

La ventaja competitiva no está en “usar IA”.

Eso ya lo hace todo el mundo.

La ventaja está en elegir bien el modelo para cada tarea. Buen Martes!

X Nadie la defiende internamente
X El precio se convierte en el único criterio

Las propuestas que se aprueban no se envían.
Se presentan, se defienden y se anclan a una decisión interna.

Una buena propuesta no empieza con “quiénes somos”.

Empieza con la situación actual del cliente, el riesgo de no cambiar y el impacto de decidir ahora.

Eso es lo que permite que tu sponsor interno venda por ti...
Incluso cuando tú no estás en la sala.

Si eres director comercial o gerente de ventas y quieres que tus propuestas sean aprobadas por Dirección sin descuentos:

🚨 Los médicos acaban de "desactivar" los temblores de Parkinson en tiempo real, y el antes y el después no son reales

Este video se está volviendo viral... porque lo que sucede no parece posible.

Un momento: temblor incontrolable.
Momentos después: completa quietud.

Sin cirugía abierta. Sin implantes.

Solo ultrasonido enfocado guiado por RM dirigido a una pequeña área profunda del cerebro.

Manos que no podían detenerse... de repente firmes

- Temblores violentos... desaparecidos en el acto
- Los pacientes prueban el movimiento inmediatamente, y realmente funciona
- Médicos que lo observan en vivo dentro de la resonancia magnética

Esto no es gradual.
Es instantáneo.

Y ahora la gente se hace la misma pregunta:

Si esto existe... ¿por qué parece que nadie habla de ello?

Hoy es mi cumpleaños...

Pero el regalo te lo hago yo (SOLO durante 48 horas).

Después de +7 años creando contenido, equivocándome, aprendiendo y sistematizando todo lo que sí funciona en LinkedIn...

He preparado un pack con recursos que no están en Google.

→ Porque NO es teoría.
→ Es lo que uso yo.
→ Y lo que comparto solo con mi comunidad más cercana.

📁 ¿Qué incluye el pack de cumpleaños?

→ +55 hooks clasificados por intención.
→ Análisis +20 banners + Elementos Clave y Plantillas
→ +20 prompts para generar hooks automáticamente (sí, los que yo uso).
→ 8 prompts probados para generar contenido con IA (de verdad útiles).
→ 6 pasos para crear contenido con estrategia.
→ Guía para construir tu marca personal desde 0 (sin vender tu alma).

→ Bonus "oculto": Estadísticas que nadie te cuenta de LinkedIn.

🚀 ¿Cómo conseguirlo?

- 1 Comparte este post en tu perfil.
- 2 Comenta: "Regalo".

Y listo. Te lo enviaré en las próximas horas (a mano, no hay robot aquí).

No bodder:

Se llama AI1, y la razón detrás de esto te vuela la cabeza.

Los centros de datos de IA en la Tierra están chocando contra una pared, no una pared de chips, una pared física.

Necesitan cantidades asombrosas de energía y agua solo para mantenerse frescos, y nos estamos quedando sin red eléctrica y terreno para construirlos.

Así que la respuesta de Musk es: deja de construirlos en la Tierra.

En órbita, el sol nunca se pone. Energía gratis, 24/7. Sin agua para enfriamiento, solo irradias el calor al vacío del espacio. Las dos cosas que asfixian a la IA en tierra apenas existen allá arriba.

Y aquí está la parte loca: Musk dice que es más fácil de construir que un satélite Starlink. Quitas las antenas complejas y es "un montón de células solares, un radiador y algunos enlaces láser".

Un AI1 lleva el poder de cómputo de un rack Nvidia GB300, el mismo hardware por el que pelean los centros de datos aquí abajo.

AI1 es solo el primero. El plan es una constelación de hasta un millón de ellos.

Y el momento no es casualidad, SpaceX sale a bolsa esta semana con un objetivo de ~$1.75 billones. Esto ya no es una compañía de cohetes. Se está posicionando como la red eléctrica para IA, en el RELATIONSHIPS DO NOT CLOSE DEALS!

Stop trying to be liked or buddy buddy with your prospect.

And INSTEAD work to be respected, seen as an expert, and problem solver.

THIS is what closes deals!

Once you do that, the relationship naturally progresses because you helped the customer.

Not before BUT after.

And let me make this crystal clear for anyone who is confused.

Building rapport and building a relationship are two separate things!

You absolutely MUST build rapport.

En ventas, cada año la caja de herramientas engorda pero el comercial cierra peor 📉

A nadie le cuadra que las dos cosas no estén conectadas.

Te llevo por lo que de verdad hace falta para cerrar UN solo deal:

Prospectar

Una herramienta para encontrar al contacto. O dos abiertas a la vez.

Exportar el CSV

Aquí ya empieza la comedia.

Meterlo en el CRM

Y limpiar los duplicados que crea la propia importación.

Ljubitza Frkovich Mallqui

Si, soy #intensa. Y #chancona.
Y en el MBA lo confirmé.

En cada examen final nos dejaban llevar un "cheat sheet" (una hoja con todas las fórmulas y anotaciones relevantes que quisiéramos usar) y yo me afanaba en llenarla completa, por ambos lados, hasta el último centímetro 🙌📄

Lo curioso es que muchos de mis amigos la hacían el mismo día del examen, incluso horas antes... y yo me estresaba por ellos! 😂 inevitable.

Primero estudiaba, entendía todo, y luego empezaba a armar mi hoja con lo que consideraba fijo 📌

Así soy: exigente conmigo misma, obsesiva con los detalles, y siempre buscando dar lo mejor 🍷
Y esa intensidad también la llevo al trabajo. Siempre.

Omnia just raised 3.5M Euros to help brands boost their visibility in AI 🍷

I believe in compounding tiny bets. You take one step, then another, and one day you look up and you're building the thing you always wanted.

My first step was in Silicon Valley, writing code at a startup. I remember walking out on day one thinking, someday I'll build my own company. No clue how, but crystal clear that I would.

So I optimized for learning. I moved into product and shipped from zero to one again and again. At Klarna I launched the Klarna Card, which became one of the top performing products at the company. More scars, more reps, more conviction. Then I helped launch Klarna in Spain. A crash course in real GTM: hiring the first sales reps and figuring out what "good" looks like; building a marketing engine that

Enriquecer

A esperar a que termine de cargar la tabla.

Secuenciar

La plataforma de turno. La que esté de moda ese mes.

Grabar la llamada

Otra app para "insights". Desconectada del CRM, claro.

El contrato

Otra herramienta más para la firma cuando por fin se mueve el deal.

Y en otra pestaña, una IA que el comercial paga de su bolsillo y que no se entera de nada de lo anterior.

Siete sitios donde vive el cliente.
Ninguno se habla con el otro.

Luego nos extraña que arrancar lleve 4 meses y que la previsión nunca cuadre.

Si pudieras llevar toda tu operativa comercial desde un solo sitio, con la IA conectada al dato real, ¿lo usarías?

actually moves pipeline; stitching together operations so support, risk, legal, and finance could scale without breaking; hitting numbers, fixing what broke yesterday, and doing it again next week. That phase taught me the full stack of how companies grow.

Meanwhile, AI assistants started to change how people discover and decide. It clicked for me: if I am researching most of the products I buy with AI, most of my customers must be doing the same. We need to show up on AI answers! 🤖

Fast forward to this year. We launched Omnia, an agentic platform that helps brands win visibility in AI engines. Instead of dashboards that tell you what happened, Omnia turns insights into actions and gets things done.
Today we're announcing €3.5M to fuel that mission, from Visionaries Club, Kfund, Baobab Ventures, and a group of exceptional angels. Grateful for the belief and the push.

None of this happens alone. Thank you to my cofounder Miguel Fernández for going all in with me. And to the Omnia team for building with pace, care, and ambition every single day.

Yes, it takes unreasonable amounts of hard work. But if you keep stacking the right steps, the path appears.

Onward. 🚀 Or as one wise man once said: Garrote!!

 Guillaume Josset

CLAUDE just replaced our $10,000 CRM cleanup project.

And it's not even close.

I used to think "CRM hygiene" meant:

- Running enrichment every few months
- Hiring RevOps to clean fields manually
- Paying agencies to rebuild lists
- Hoping reps actually trust the data

That's old thinking.

What changed now?

Claude doesn't just clean contacts.
It continuously reasons through your entire account list.

Here's what ours does daily:

- Checks if contacts still work at the company
- Detects role changes and company moves
- Maps updated org structures from LinkedIn
- Identifies missing decision-makers
- Suggests who should be removed
- Replaces them with better-fit stakeholders

→ Prioritizes who reps should call first

Not enrichment. Not alerts.
Full SDR-level reasoning automated.

Last month:

- Dozens of outdated contacts removed automatically
- New buying committee members added
- Reps stopped double-checking LinkedIn before calls
- CRM trust restored across the team

Manual validation used to take hours per rep per week.

Now it runs quietly in the background.

I just turned this into a full implementation playbook:

- How to train Claude to reason like an enterprise SDR
- The logic behind daily CRM verification
- The decision-maker mapping framework
- The prioritization engine for outbound teams
- The QA layer that protects brand credibility

This is built for B2B sales teams that prospect daily and can't afford to contact the wrong person.

If 30% of your CRM goes outdated every year...

You don't have a lead problem.
You have a data decay problem.

Claude Code se siente completamente diferente una vez que instalas esto.

Anthropic lanzó silenciosamente un plugin oficial llamado claude-code-setup y básicamente convierte a Claude Code de "bastante bueno" en un entorno de desarrollo de IA real.

Escanea tu proyecto y recomienda:

- hooks
- skills
- MCP servers
- subagents
- automations

Luego configura todo paso a paso por ti.

La mayoría de la gente usa Claude Code completamente vanilla...

lo que es por qué su experiencia se siente desordenada.

El verdadero poder viene del ecosistema a su alrededor.

Instala:

/plugin install claude-code-setup@claude-plugins-official

Guarda esto en favoritos antes de que lo olvides.

The reps who get good at cold calling all have one thing in common.

They called more than everyone else.

There is no shortcut to building the instinct for it. You learn to handle objections by getting them hundreds of times. You learn to read a prospect in the first ten seconds by doing it over and over.

Dial volume is how the skill gets built. Every call adds something to the database whether it goes well or not.

¿Por qué no estás cerrando ventas aunque haces todo "bien"? 🙄

Porque te estás enfocando en lo que cambia, y olvidando lo que siempre ha funcionado.

✗ No es la economía.

✗ No es la competencia.

✗ No es la IA.

Si no estás vendiendo, es porque estás ignorando los fundamentos:

1 Las ventas siempre se tratan de resolver problemas.

➤ Si no solucionas nada, no vendes.

2 No hay ventas sin prospección.

➤ Si no generas oportunidades, no cierras nada.

3 Escuchar será más importante que hablar.

Iker Galarza Rodríguez

El cold calling no ha muerto. Lo hemos enterrado en vida 🙄

Manager: "¿Le has llamado?"
SDR: le mandé un email.
AE: le escribí por LinkedIn.
Sales Manager: le metí en una secuencia de 9 follow-ups.
Director Comercial: lo estoy "nurturing" con contenido de valor.
CEO: pasé el lead a marketing.

Nadie. Llamó. Al. Cliente.

El 99% de los deals no mueren por falta de touchpoints.

Mueren porque nadie descuelga el teléfono.

➤ Un mal vendedor habla, un gran vendedor hace las preguntas correctas.

4 El precio no es el problema, el valor sí.

➤ Si tu cliente solo te regatea, no has demostrado suficiente valor.

5 La confianza lo es TODO.

➤ Si no confían en ti, no comprarán, por más que tu producto sea el mejor.

6 El seguimiento marca la diferencia.

➤ La mayoría de los vendedores se rinden demasiado rápido.

7 Las objeciones no son rechazos, son señales.

➤ Un "es muy caro" significa "aún no veo el valor".

8 Vender sin generar valor es solo insistencia.

➤ Nadie quiere que le vendan, pero todos quieren soluciones.

9 Las decisiones de compra son emocionales.

➤ Justificamos con lógica, pero compramos con emoción.

10 Los que se adaptan, sobreviven.

➤ Si sigues vendiendo como hace 5 años, tus clientes comprarán de alguien más.

Yesterday I "soft-launched" the EU Tech Map.

The response was incredible.

100+ founders tagged their companies. Dozens of new listings were claimed. And my DMs turned into a directory of European tech I didn't even know existed.

Here's what stood out:

→ Categories I (and many others) thought were "US-dominated" had 10+ amazing European alternatives.

→ Founders from countries like Estonia, Bulgaria, and Portugal are building world-class tools.

→ The most common reaction: "I had no idea this existed"

Sales people are some of the worst spenders and drinkers I've ever met.

They work so hard to close deals. All to blow it on a brand new leased car, designer clothes, and drinks at the bar. And the crazy part is, is this culture is accepted and promoted.

When in reality, sales people should put their hard earned money into assets FIRST. Buy the fancy stuff later.

This is not being promoted in the space so I'm promoting it. STOP blowing your money on material possessions.

Get out of debt, build an emergency fund, max out your 401k (especially if your employer matches), invest into stocks, invest into your skills, and save your money for a down payment on a piece of real estate.

And instead of drinking all of the time, GO TO THE GYM. It's so much better for you and will have you saving even more money!

🔥 El presidente Donald Trump desafió cara a cara a Xi Jinping y lanzó una jugada maestra:

"He traído a las conversaciones a los 30 líderes empresariales más poderosos del planeta... y todos dijeron que sí. No envié al segundo al mando ni al vicepresidente.

¡Quería al número uno de cada imperio! Jensen

You might struggle to keep it up to date and have your team actually use that boring piece of documentation.

Am I far off with that assumption?

Because I struggled with that almost all my career as a leader.

I kept it clean but rarely anyone used it proactively.

My teams did not learn on their own what was in there.

Even with an LLM layer on top. Not much improvement.

BUT: This is going to change big time. Right now.

We built an AI Coach that is actually teaching the playbook to reps. In the flow-of-work, without needing to access it.

Example:

A rep moves a deal to the next stage in the CRM.

The AI Coach will reach out to the rep on slack: "I saw you moved deal X to "Priority Agreement" stage. Should we quickly go through a few important considerations you need to know at this stage so that you can increase the likelihood to succeed?"

Rep: "Yes"

AI Coach: "All right. Do you remember the exit criteria?"

Huang, Tim Cook, Elon Musk y los demás titanes... los mejores del mundo están aquí, justo frente a ti."

Luego, con su sonrisa de ganador, remató:

"Hoy están aquí para mostrar respeto a China y a usted. Vienen con hambre de hacer negocios, invertir y crear. Por nuestra parte, será 100% recíproco."

El mensaje es claro: Estados Unidos no viene a suplicar. Viene acompañado de los jefes supremos de la innovación global para poner todas las cartas sobre la mesa.

We're dropping "years of experience" as a requirement for jobs at Remote.

Don't really care for status quo and here's why:

1. I value much more what you can do than how long you've been doing it for. A lot of the great people I hired across the years had no experience in the role but focused on execution through excellence.
2. By prioritizing potential and diverse experiences, we're not just filling positions; we're building a powerhouse team. This change is about giving opportunities to those ready to excel, regardless of their background.
3. We're innovating in several areas where the current incumbents suck and our competitors are even worse so only hiring for "time in the market" doesn't give you an upside - old ideas, same crappy products. It helps you walk but not leap.

TDLR: Value people for what they can do, intensity and excellence and you'll increase output exponentially.

The Ultimate Claude in Excel + PowerPoint Playbook 🔥

We just crossed the threshold:

When Claude runs inside Excel + PowerPoint, spreadsheets and decks stop being "work" and become agent-driven execution.

This isn't a 20% boost. It's workflow collapse: describe → generate → refine, directly in the system of record.

If you're in finance / ops / consulting / startups / investing / analysis, learning this is no longer optional. The baseline moved.

What you'll get:

- Setup in 5 minutes
- Excel agent: clean, debug, analyze, model
- Excel → slides: data to exec-ready deck
- PDFs: extract + generate instantly
- Limits + what to trust
- Founder warning: if your product assists next to Office, it's in danger.

The US just ordered its diplomats to actively lobby against European data sovereignty laws. 🇺🇸

A leaked State Department cable signed by Marco Rubio instructs American diplomats worldwide to track and counter data localization efforts, explicitly naming GDPR as an example of "unnecessarily burdensome" regulation.

This is a diplomatic offensive against the right of countries to control their own data. The timing isn't random.

US AI companies are hoovering up data at scale to train their models, European regulation threatens that pipeline. So instead of accepting the rules, the US is now trying to kill them at the diplomatic level, before they take root.

Think about what that means:

Your country passes a law saying citizen data must stay within its borders. American diplomats show up to argue against it. Not because it's bad policy.

Because it inconveniences Silicon Valley.

This is exactly why EU Tech Map exists.

Not as an anti-American project.

Sir John Hegarty

So Omnicom has officially announced the agency names that will remain – and DDB isn’t one of them.

It’s not for me to tell Omnicom how to run their business. Far from it.

But as we see the fading out of one of the great agency names, we should pause a moment and remember what Bill Bernbach did for the communication industry.

He invented modern advertising.
A means of persuasion that respected the audience it was addressing.
And undertook to entertain them to engage them.

He also advised us that the greatest strategy a brand could employ was to tell a truth.

Daniel Disney

I hired the smartest person in the room once.
They lasted 3 months.

I hired the kindest person in the room once.
They’re now running that team.

Here’s what that sign gets absolutely RIGHT about building winning teams 🙌

We’re obsessed with IQ.
With credentials.
With "rockstars" and "ninjas."

But after 15+ years building sales teams, I’ve learned something brutal:

Smart people who lack humility? They’re ticking time bombs.

Just make it interesting and captivating.

VW: "It’s ugly but it works."

The work the agency produced was legendary.
And the people it inspired to go off and create their own companies was also legendary.

I was one of those people turned on to the business of advertising by his thinking.

'A principle isn't a principle until it costs you money' - one we constantly quoted at BBH.

So goodbye Bill, and thank you for all you did.

Why did this work?

Belonging

Think about it...

That genius who won't listen to feedback?
That top performer who belittles teammates?
That "expert" who thinks they know everything?

They're not building your business.
They're slowly destroying it.

Here's what ACTUALLY happens when you prioritize kindness and humility:

- ↳ Team meetings become idea factories (not ego battles)
- ↳ Mistakes become learning moments (not blame games)
- ↳ Success gets shared (not hoarded)
- ↳ People actually WANT to help each other win

I've seen it firsthand:

The "average" rep who listened to everyone?
Became our top performer within 6 months.

The "inexperienced" manager who admitted what they didn't know?
Built the strongest team culture we'd ever had.

The "quiet" team member who always helped others?
Now our most valuable leader.

Because here's the uncomfortable truth:

Skills can be taught.
Systems can be learned.

Processes can be mastered.

But kindness? Humility?
Those are CHARACTER.

And character is what determines:

- How they handle pressure
- How they treat customers
- How they respond to failure
- How they celebrate others' wins

Smart people might win alone.
Kind and humble people? They build dynasties.

So next time you're hiring, promoting, or building a team...

Don't just check their resume.

Because working with smart people IS great.

But working with kind and humble people?

That's how you build something that actually lasts.

GAME OVER for manual CRM maintenance

CLAUDE OPUS 4.7 just automated the whole thing.

99% of sales teams handle CRM hygiene one of two ways:

- 1) Pay a CRM agency $10K+ to clean it once
- 2) Have SDRs manually verify contacts every week

Both are wrong.
Because 90 days later
30% of those contacts are already outdated again.

Champions moved to new companies.
Emails bouncing.
Phone numbers dead.

And no one notices until:
→ A rep calls a contact who left 6 months ago
→ Sequences bounce and deliverability tanks
→ A former champion signs with your competitor instead

But with CLAUDE OPUS 4.7
It now runs continuous CRM reasoning inside your pipeline:

- Scans every contact daily
- Detects job changes within 24 hours
- Updates email, phone, and title automatically
- Alerts you the moment a champion lands at a new company
- Flags every broken record before your next campaign sends

No more calling ghosts.

BREAKING

Claude Code just leaked its entire source code.
Accidentally:

An Anthropic engineer published version 2.1.88 to npm with a 59.8MB source map attached (<https://lnkd.in/dSKk8E4x>). A source map is a developer file that maps minified code back to the original readable source.

Within hours, the whole internet was reading Anthropic's internal codebase:

No more bounced sequences.
No more losing champions to competitors who moved faster.

The CRM becomes sales-ready every single day.

One team implemented this last month:

- 820 job changes detected and updated automatically
- 934 contacts corrected with the right phone and email
- 34 champion moves tracked in 90 days
- 68% close rate on champion reactivations

Manual cleanup used to take 2 to 3 hours per rep per week.
Now it runs quietly in the background.

I just documented the full system into an implementation playbook:

- how to set up continuous CRM monitoring with AI
- The champion tracking workflow that closes deals before competitors
- how to fix email deliverability by eliminating decayed contacts
- the exact alert setup your RevOps team needs

This is built for B2B teams running active outbound who can't afford to work from bad data.

BREAKING: I'm sharing The Sequoia AI Ascent Deck (20 slides) and it's one of the clearest "maps" of the AI transition right now 🇺🇸

What stands out when you study it:

- 1 It defines AI in a way that actually helps builders: Create → Reason → Interact
- 2 It shows the white space: where AI is about to rewrite entire categories
- 3 It proves AI is already shipping into real workflows (not just demos)
- 4 The adoption curves look nothing like classic SaaS
- 5 It makes the roadmap obvious: copilots → agents → planning/reasoning → reliability

You can skim it in 5 minutes and still walk away with better product instincts.

I also summarized the key takeaways and what I think builders/investors should do next in today's newsletter.

Comment "Sequoia" and I'll send you the link to the deck + notes 📌

 Josh Braun

I can't use an em dash anymore.

This is very upsetting for me.

I used to love the em dash.

It was my little writing friend.
A pause with flair.
A comma that went to finishing school.

A way to say, "I have one more thought.
And yes, it deserves its own tiny runway."

Then AI came along and ruined everything.

Now if I use an em dash, someone immediately puts on reading glasses they don't need and says:

"Hmm. ChatGPT."

Now I have to write like I'm hiding contraband.

I'll type a sentence, reach for the em dash, and freeze.

Why did this work? Controversy

Can I use it?
Will people know it's me?

Should I replace it with a comma like some kind of coward?

This is where we are now.

A grown man afraid of punctuation.

The robots took our jobs.

Now they're taking our pauses.

This is how civilization ends.

Not with a bang.

With a comma I didn't want to use.

An AI SDR company just shut down—at $4.3M ARR.

This was one of the hottest AI sales startups out there.

Kimberly Price

I cold called businesses for 10 years. The difference between then and now is...

NOTHING!!!

Kike Sanchis Alonso Sanchis Alonso

Microsoft canceló sus licencias internas de Claude Code esta semana después de que la facturación basada en tokens hizo que el costo fuera insostenible, incluso para una empresa con recursos en la nube efectivamente infinitos. El CTO

They raised $2.5M, scaled to $4.3M in ARR in just 90 days...
(Which is insane.)

And then—shut it all down.
---Customers refunded.
---Website wiped.
---Company up for sale.
---Founders moving on.

On paper, it looked like a rocket ship.
In three months, they went from $0 to what could've easily been a $20M+ valuation.

So why walk away?
The founder, Stephen, didn't sugarcoat it.
His take: the entire AI SDR space is fundamentally broken—and companies are "digging their own graves."
In a long interview, he pulled back the curtain:
Everyone's selling the dream of a fully automated pipeline—leads, meetings, revenue on autopilot.
But the reality?
Massive churn. Disappointed customers. Little to no real pipeline.

And they're not alone:
Ramp shut down its AI outbound motion
Anthropic (the company behind Claude) is actively hiring human SDRs

AI-driven outbound works when the BDR is the operator, which is how we do it at Lead Generation Hubs

Jack Porter, need to shout out because this was his post originally. I changed it slightly, but not very

Stop falling for these sales gurus who are trying to reinvent the wheel to sound cool or more educated on the topic.

You want to know how to book more meetings follow this pitch and framework. Works like a charm!

V - Verify
R - Reverify
P - Pitch
O - Overcome Objections
C - Close

It goes something like this:

Cold Call to XYZ company

Ring Ring

Secretary picks up and says "Hi, thank you for calling XYZ company how can I help you?

SDR/AE: Hi (insert secretary name), Can I please speak with the person who manages X?

Secretary says sure that is so and so and proceeds to transfer

This person answers saying, "this is (insert name)"

At this point MOST sales reps get nervous and go into their lame pitch. This is NOT the time to go into the pitch. It's the time to REVERIFY to ensure you are speaking with the right person.

Once confirmed, then go into the pitch. If it's not the right person find out who is and then proceed to de Uber envió un memorando interno advirtiendo que la empresa agotó todo su presupuesto de IA para 2026 en solo cuatro meses. Los precios de los software de IA estadounidenses han subido entre un 20% y un 37%, y GitHub (propiedad de Microsoft) está eliminando los planes de tarifa plana en favor de la facturación basada en el uso en todos sus productos.

Mi opinión

La era de los subsidios de IA está terminando en tiempo real. La misma empresa que invirtió 13 mil millones de dólares en OpenAI y construyó la infraestructura de Azure que impulsa la mayor parte del cómputo de Anthropic acaba de revisar la factura de una herramienta de codificación de un competidor y decidió que no valía la pena pagarla. Eso no es un fallo de productividad por parte de Anthropic. La fijación de precios basada en tokens está obligando a cada cliente empresarial a enfrentar el costo real de ejecutar estos modelos a escala, y el número resulta ser mucho más alto de lo que sugerían los experimentos de tarifa plana.

Esto se conecta directamente con mi publicación sobre Gemini Flash de ayer. Anthropic, OpenAI y Google todas han aumentado los precios efectivos en los últimos seis meses. Las empresas que construyeron flujos de trabajo asumiendo que los costos de IA seguirían cayendo ahora están viendo cómo sus presupuestos anuales se evaporan en meses. Dos resultados parecen probables desde aquí. O bien las empresas reducen el uso de IA para ajustarse a los presupuestos, lo que ralentiza la rampa de ingresos que los laboratorios necesitan para justificar sus valoraciones antes de las OPI, o los laboratorios bajan los precios y absorben las pitch that person.

Pitch should be something along these lines:

Awesome. My name is (first and last name) and I'm the AE with (company name). I'm calling to set a meeting with you. I've been able to help (discuss results) and want to do the same for you. Are you available to meet (insert 2 times)?

After you do your pitch you will most like run into objections. The "I'm happy with my current provider", I'm not interested", etc. You will need to know how to handle them. (I can do a separate post on this)

Last step is close and no I'm not talking about closing a deal. I'm talking about closing the client on setting up a meeting. THIS is how you book more meetings.

 Hoy cumpla 52 años de vida y uno de #ReiniclAndo.

Chileno de nacimiento,  gato de adopción. Quizá por eso he tenido vida extra... (me quedan 6, ojito).

Durante mucho tiempo el cumpleaños  fue una fecha más en el calendario. Este año lo vivo con una conciencia distinta... cuando atraviesas una situación extrema y sigues aquí, el tiempo deja de ser una sucesión automática de días y se convierte en una medida real de prioridades.

  El ictus fue un punto de inflexión profundo que me obligó a revisar mi forma de vivir, de trabajar y de relacionarme, y me regaló una claridad que antes quedaba diluida entre urgencias y responsabilidades asumidas como inevitables.

 He entendido con más profundidad qué personas sostienen, qué conversaciones construyen y qué batallas merecen energía. Durante años intenté que todo el mundo estuviera bien, cargando con exigencias autoimpuestas que parecían parte natural del liderazgo y del compromiso.

Hoy sé que la sostenibilidad personal es una decisión estratégica: cuidarme, quererme y ponerme en primer lugar  forma parte de la responsabilidad con uno mismo y con los demás.

Cumplir 52 significa integrar experiencia con intención, ambición con equilibrio y ganas con criterio.   Me siento más motivado que nunca,

You can now run 70B LLMs on a 4GB GPU.

AirLLM just made massive models usable on low-memory hardware.

What just happened

AirLLM released memory-optimized inference for large language models.

It runs 70B models on 4GB VRAM. It can even run 405B Llama 3.1 on 8GB VRAM.

How it works

AirLLM loads models one layer at a time.

Instead of loading everything:

- Load a layer
- Run computation
- Free memory
- Load the next layer

This keeps GPU memory usage extremely low.

Key details

- No quantization required by default
- Optional 4-bit or 8-bit weight compression
- Same API as Hugging Face Transformers
- Supports CPU and GPU inference
- Works on Linux and macOS Apple Silicon

What you can do

- Run Llama, Qwen, Mistral, Mixtral locally
- Test large models without cloud GPUs
- Prototype agents on cheap hardware

con hambre de futuro y con una mirada mucho más consciente sobre el tiempo que tengo por delante. La vida me dio una segunda oportunidad y he decidido aprovecharla construyendo una versión más plena y más auténtica de mí mismo.

Gracias a todos los que estáis escribiendo y acompañándome en este día.

I'll say it again.

Culture is not bean bags, free beer, or a free subscription to a meditation app.

Culture is:

- Not scheduling meetings before or after the working day

- Not scheduling meetings over lunch

- Not publicly shaming individuals in front of the team

- Not pressuring parents to parent around their work instead of working around their kids

- Hiring appropriately and not letting the team carry the load alone

We cut all LinkedIn lead gen form ads from our campaigns this quarter. Instead, we shifted that budget into demand creation tactics and the results have been so validating for my brand-is-demand self.

Our web metrics are up, high intent conversions are up, and CAC is way down. And we are on track to surpass our Q1 marketing sourced pipeline and revenue goals.

Could this be a good move for your program? Take a look at your lead sources, the CPL, and program spend. If the math isn't mathing re: volume of leads, costs, and proportion of overall spend being consumed by lead gen forms, it may be worth cutting.

People don't just quit bad jobs.

They quit because they're being micromanaged.

Micromanagers are the resignation trigger. And once one employee goes, others tend to follow.

The reality is:
It's really hard to find top talent.

So as a manager, it is your duty to keep them motivated.

Here are the top 8 ways to keep your top talent happy:

👥 Give feedback on a regular basis to help people learn.

💰 Pay people a competitive salary or someone else will.

⚖️ Offer a real work-life balance, not a false

Kimberly Price

Most salespeople SUCK at prospecting.

The main reason?

Because they're playing the game... without knowing the rules.

Let me show you how it really works 🙌

Here are the 10 Rules of Prospecting:

1 Stop asking for permission
Be direct and ask for what you want AKA the meeting!

2 Money talks
Your pitch must have how you are either saving the money or helping them make more

3 Don't wing it
Have a script. Always.

 - Practice empathy and forgive mistakes.

If you do these 8 things, you will notice a few benefits:

- More smiles around the office.
- Higher job satisfaction all around.
- A greater appetite for risk and innovation.

- Must have high intensity
Takes 7–11 touches on average to book a meeting. You should be doing at least 3–4 touch points in an account per day. This is how accelerate the time to book a meeting!
- Don't take anything personal
Being hung up on is normal. Keep going and call them back the next day. Persistence is key!
- Tonality matters
How you say it = everything. Stop sounding weak and desperate.
- Your body talks too
They feel your energy
- Do NOT take no for an answer
Objections are a smoke screen. It's not about saying the perfect phrase to overcome them. It's about not freezing up and persisting until you get the yes!

You are not selling your services
You are selling THE MEETING. Remember that!

Have the right mindset
Think they are lucky you are reaching out to them to help them

Follow these 10 simple rules and watch what happens!

We just threw our biggest, baddest, and most curated Smart AI Summit yet.

I started the Smart AI Summit series from scratch less than a year ago.

Yesterday? C-levels and VPs from iconic tech companies were in the audience. The most talked-about founders were waiting in line to meet speakers. VCs who've backed billion-dollar unicorns were swapping ideas with enterprise AI heads from Fortune 500s.

This is what happens when you stop talking about AI and start building the room where trust is actually being built.

On stage: Partners from a16z, Sequoia, Bessemer, NEA, M12, M13, Abstract, Entrepreneur First, Dell, Gold House, Celesta, Cowboy, Threshold, Sierra, Overlook, Maveron, Ridge + more.

Billion dollar companies' founders from Crusoe, Higgsfield, Turing, Serval, Front, Bedrock Robotics.

C-levels and VPs from Microsoft, Meta, Nebius, Lyft, MongoDB, Databricks, Box, Vanta, Webflow, Uniphore, HeyGen, Langchain, Anthropic, ElevenLabs, Uber (fmr) + more.

Today marks a defining milestone in our journey at Eos Cyber, Inc. I'm incredibly excited to share that Eos is being acquired by AppViewX.

From the beginning, our vision at Eos has been to build an #AINative approach to AI governance and privileged access control—purpose-built for the rapidly evolving world of #AIagents. As enterprises accelerate adoption, a new identity class is emerging, introducing entirely new risks, governance challenges, and security gaps.

By joining forces with AppViewX, we are bringing together two powerful and highly complementary capabilities: AppViewX's leadership in #MachineIdentitySecurity, Certificate Lifecycle Management (#CLM), #PKI, and Post-Quantum Cryptography (#PQC), alongside Eos' deep expertise in AI Governance and Privileged Access Control. Together, we are creating a unified platform that gives enterprises the visibility, control, and trust required to securely scale AI Agent adoption.

What excites me most is the broader strategic impact of this combination. The new AppViewX platform is uniquely positioned to help enterprises navigate and capitalize on two of the most important technology shifts of our time—Artificial Intelligence and Quantum Computing.

Why did this work? Controversy

This platform will enable organizations to not only discover, manage, and govern machine identities at scale and help organizations become quantum resilient, but also close the critical governance gaps and privileged access risks introduced by AI Agents —an area that will define the next era of enterprise security.

On a personal note, I'm honored to step into the role of CEO at AppViewX as part of this next chapter. I'm equally excited that my co-founder and CTO at Eos, Kashyap Ivaturi will be joining as CTO of AppViewX. Together, we are committed to accelerating innovation and building a category-defining platform for AI Agent and Machine Identity Security for the AI and Quantum Computing era.

I want to thank the incredible Eos team, our customers, partners, and investors, especially Primary Venture Partners, MVP Ventures and Embedding VC, who have supported us on this journey. And a big thank you to Haveli Investments for bringing Eos and AppViewX together. This milestone belongs to all of you.

We're just getting started, and I'm looking forward to the journey ahead at AppViewX. And if you are at #RSAConference, please stop by the AppViewX booth #4236, North Expo and see a demo of Eos!

67% of meetings are considered unproductive.

Study the most successful CEO and transform your meetings today:

Jeff Bezos is one of the most successful leaders of our time.
Overseeing more than 1.5 million employees as of 2024.

This begs the question.
How does the busiest CEO manage his time?

Luckily for us, he has shared his secrets.
Steal Bezos's rules for productive meetings today.

Here's a sneak peek of what to expect:

3 rules for highly productive meetings.

1. The two-pizza rule
 - ↳ Limit the number of people to that of which two pizzas can feed.
2. The empty chair rule
 - ↳ Leave one chair empty to represent your target customer.
3. Avoid Powerpoints
 - ↳ Ditch slide shows. Bezos requires a 2-6 page

European tech is cooking right now. 🔥 EU

Thousands of tech companies are joining the map and directory on European Tech Map. It's crazy.

Many other buyers and I are finding great alternatives to US tech and are actively switching. Right now.

Here are some European alternatives I'm switching to (or have switched from already) and you should too:

CRM: Hubspot --> Attio
Email: Mailerlite --> Brevo
Payments: Stripe --> Mollie
Workspace: Google --> Proton
AI notetaking: Fireflies --> Granola

All of them are just as good, or even better, than their non-European counterparts. At least for me.

It takes 2 minutes, it's completely free, and it makes you discoverable to 1000s of buyers looking for European tech.

written narrative instead.

Now you know the rules here's how to use them.
Implement them through these actionable tips:

1. Keep it small
 - ↳ Only invite those who must attend.
 - ↳ Leave out any spectators or unnecessary tag along.
2. Write a detailed memo
 - ↳ Craft a structured, 6-page memo that argues your position.
 - ↳ Don't be lazy and go into detail. (Bullet points are banned!)
3. Begin with "study hall"
 - ↳ Your goal is to make sure everyone is on the same page.
 - ↳ Spend the first section of the meeting reading the memo in silence.
4. Dive into a messy discussion
 - ↳ Don't hold back on debate and tough questions.
 - ↳ Ask questions to help you understand and gain clarity.
5. Finish with action items
 - ↳ End every meeting by giving clear next steps to your team.
 - ↳ Ensure tasks are assigned to individuals and have deadlines.

Once an employee has handed in their notice...

It's already too late.

When one person leaves, it's often a revolving door. Replacements will be made, but more will leave.

But instead of doing that just hiring again. You could address the root of the issue instead.

From my experience, These are the top 8 reasons someone might leave a role:

Toxic bosses.

SDR is the hardest job in sales

Most people have no idea how much noise SDRs push through just to get a single "yes."

First contact? Total strangers.

Inbox? Buried in junk.

Rejection? 99% of the time.

But SDRs...

Build trust in seconds

Read intent between the lines

Unclear purpose.

Poor compensation.

Unclear career path.

Zero work-life balance.

No appreciation shown, ever.

Lack of growth opportunities.

Better opportunities elsewhere.

Keeping top talent should be priority number one for any business.

They are hard to come by and will drive your business forward.

If they're ambitious, they may not stay forever. But keep them motivated while they're with you.

Con esta nueva plataforma, los usuarios pueden crear flujos de trabajo agénticos listos para producción, conectar Model Context Protocol (MCP), integrar widgets de ChatKit y construir sistemas completos sin escribir una sola línea de código.

#AgentBuilder no es solo un paso más: es el nacimiento de la economía de los agentes. Junto con el Protocolo de Comercio Agencial presentado previamente, OpenAI ofrece un ecosistema donde cualquiera puede diseñar, desplegar y monetizar agentes empresariales de forma visual, escalable y sin depender de herramientas como n8n o Make.

Aprende aquí: >>> <https://lnkd.in/dzxBrprJ>

La promesa es clara: construir y ejecutar agentes de nivel profesional con la misma facilidad con la que hoy se arrastra un bloque en un editor visual.

En resumen, OpenAI acaba de poner sobre la mesa una nueva infraestructura para la automatización inteligente.

No hablamos solo de una herramienta más, sino del inicio de una era donde los agentes serán los nuevos empleados digitales.

I accidentally built a YouTube content machine.

Well, not accidentally but kinda just started playing with automation and ended up with a setup that now makes full-length videos while I sleep.

No editing.
No voice recording.
No stressing over uploads.

Just this one workflow in n8n that does it all:

Comes up with Top 10 video ideas

Ranks content automatically

Turns the list into a full video using JSON2Video

Adds voiceovers with ElevenLabs (way too realistic tbh)

El 95% de propuestas comerciales son técnicas y NO son traducidas al C-Suite. Por eso pierden.

Muchas veces el problema no es el acceso. Es el mensaje.

En licitaciones y ventas B2B complejas no le vendes igual a un CEO, un CFO o un COO...

Pero tampoco puedes llegar con discursos

Claude Design: The Complete Founder's Guide 🔥

Anthropic just launched Claude Design. You describe what you want to build. It generates the UI, the pitch deck, the landing page. Then you ask it what's wrong with what it just made.

Most founders skip visual design entirely or wait weeks for a prototype that fails the first user test.

genéricos esperando que "alguien" lo entienda.

Estas son 3 claves concretas para hablar directo con C-Level y avanzar decisiones reales:

1 Traduce tu propuesta al lenguaje de cada rol

Alta dirección no compra funcionalidades.

Compra crecimiento, ROI, riesgo, velocidad y ejecución.

Si tu mensaje no toca una de esas palancas, No entra en la conversación.

2 Lidera la conversación con impacto, no con explicaciones

Un C-Level decide por contraste.

Muéstrales qué pasa si no hacen nada, Qué riesgo se mantiene Y qué oportunidad se pierde.

La claridad manda más que el detalle técnico.

3 Habla como alguien que entiende la decisión interna

Cuando conectas tu solución con métricas que ellos defienden en comité

(Margen, eficiencia, pipeline, adopción, riesgo),

Dejas de ser "un proveedor más"

Y te vuelves una opción estratégica.

Unpopular opinion: genera más valor real que la mayoría de hubs tech del continente.

Esta semana he construido el mapa completo del ecosistema. Probé a hacerlo antes y me rendí. Ahora entiendo por qué es tan difícil de replicar.

Antes → pensaba que los clusters industriales eran cosa del pasado.

Después → encontré más de 24 empresas tractoras en menos de 2.000 km².

Los datos que nadie junta:

1. Más de 20 fabricantes en un territorio más pequeño que muchas ciudades

2. Empresas que exportan más del 90% de lo que producen

3. Pueblos de 5.000 habitantes con líderes mundiales en su nicho

4. Cooperativas donde los trabajadores son los dueños y la I+D es supervivencia

¿El arma secreta?

Retención de talento industrial.

La gente viene, aprende el oficio y se queda.

Eso construye clusters reales, no parques tecnológicos de fachada.

El resultado, ADN líder:

→ DANOBAT - Xabier Alzaga

→ SORALUCE | Milling, Boring & Multitasking

I mapped every founder use case, built the exact prompts for each one, and ran the full workflow from brief to shipped product.

The rep who kept dialing through 48 rejections won today.

Talent is overrated in sales.

I have watched gifted reps get outworked by people who were just willing to dial every day. Through the bad calls and the weeks where nothing lands.

A lot of people quit cold calling right when it starts to click. One rough patch and they decide it does not work.

The ones who stay on the phone stop sounding nervous and build a feel for it you only get from reps.

I know it is the most boring advice in sales, but it bears repeating- Just keep showing up.

Ayer se lanzó GEMINI 3, la nueva IA de Google.
→ Y he preparado una guía completa para usarla en LinkedIn.

👉 El 99% de la gente en LinkedIn está usando IA como si fuera 2022.
Pero con Gemini 3, esto va a cambiar.

Aquí te explico cómo puedes aprovecharlo desde ya para tu marca personal y tus contenidos:

1 Investigación estratégica en segundos
Hazle preguntas basadas en tus documentos, tu Drive, tus feedbacks.
Te devuelve insights accionables listos para convertir en contenido y ventas.
Deep Research sin complicarte la vida.

2 Carruseles "insight-first"
Convierte cualquier PDF, video o artículo en carruseles que la gente guarda.
Estructura, ideas y evidencias listas para publicar en minutos.

3 Posts de autoridad
Gemini 3 razona.
Le das tu tesis, tus datos, tu estilo...
y te construye un post sólido, con ángulo, con evidencia y con narrativa humana.

4 Tu identidad de marca sin esfuerzo
Configura tu "Gema" personalizada con tu tono, tus expresiones, tus palabras prohibidas... y cada vez que escribas, tu estilo saldrá igual de consistente.

5 Métricas que importan
Subes tus publicaciones y te da un diagnóstico:
→ Qué falta,
→ Dónde flojea el valor,
→ Qué cambiar para aumentar guardados y viralidad
Optimización real, basada en data.

6 Bonus avanzado: Apps sin código
Puedes crear mini-herramientas para captar leads (calculadoras, generadores, tests...).
Todo desde texto.
Esto va a separar a los amateurs de los profesionales.

He creado una GUÍA donde te cuento:
✓ Cómo usar Gemini 3 para crear contenido 10x más rápido
✓ Cómo convertir documentos en carruseles que se guardan
✓ Cómo construir tu propia Gema de marca
✓ Cómo usar IA para analizar tus posts

Me despidieron...

Una reunión de 6 minutos.
5 hablaron ellos. 1 hablé yo.

Mi única aportación:
→ "Vale, gracias".

Fue mi primer despido.
Y aunque yo ya pensaba irme...
La verdad es que disocié.
Me bloqueé.
Me callé.

No fue una salida épica.
Ni con aplausos.
Ni con aprendizaje instantáneo para publicar en LinkedIn.

Era una empresa donde:
→ Te escribían a las 21h y esperaban respuesta.
→ Tomarte vacaciones era "no estar comprometida".
→ Había amenazas veladas en cada reunión.
→ Se mentía sobre tu implicación.
→ Había agresividad encubierta como exigencia.

Y yo aguantaba porque me encantaba lo que hacía, porque me apasionaban los proyectos y porque tengo la (mala) costumbre de implicarme al 200%.

Pero cuando confundimos implicación con sumisión, acabamos normalizando lo inaceptable.

A los dos días, sentí alivio.
A los tres, ya estaba en otro proyecto.
Uno que no me pedía permiso para ser yo.
Uno donde podía aportar sin apagarme.

A veces no te vas tú.
A veces te echan antes de que tengas el valor de hacerlo.

Y aunque al principio duela...
es el empujón que necesitas para empezar mejor.

Donde no te valoren, vete.
No te quedes a demostrar nada.

Porque la persona que hoy trabaja por su cuenta, que tiene lista de espera, que factura lo que no se creía capaz y que vuelve a sonreír...

Empezó ahí.
Justo ese día.
En ese despido.

¿Has vivido algo parecido?
Ojalá que no, pero si es así...

Te leo.

Un ciudadano chino notó que unos policías se marchaban apresuradamente sin pagar la cuenta tras recibir un aviso de emergencia, así que se adelantó a pagar la factura en agradecimiento por sus esfuerzos en proteger la patria. Cuando los agentes regresaron más tarde para saldar la cantidad, el dueño del restaurante les informó que uno de los clientes se había hecho cargo del pago. Tras revisar las cámaras de seguridad e investigar sobre él, lograron localizar su casa y honrarlo.

1. Avoid large meetings
↳ Limit meetings to small groups unless absolutely necessary.

2. Ditch frequent meetings
↳ Most meetings only serve as distractions, limit them as best you can.

3. Leave if you're not contributing

15 Uncomfortable Truths Every Employer Should Read:

1. The worst time to offer someone a pay rise or a promotion, is when the notice has been handed in.
2. You don't have a "work from home" issue, you have a trust problem.
3. People don't just quit jobs, they quit bad managers.
4. Company culture is not bean bags, free beer or a free subscription to a meditation app.
5. If your team doesn't feel comfortable to say "I don't know" or "I disagree." You have a lot of work to do.
6. If you're not paying people what they are worth, others will.
7. Employees have 4X better engagement when receiving consistent feedback.

10. If the actions of the company leaders do not align with the values, any trust will be destroyed.

11. If you are sick, you need to go to a medical appointment or your child is sick... it should not count as annual leave.

12. When you look after your team, your team will look after your clients.

13. Never expect your new employees to "hit the ground running" if you aren't providing a fantastic onboarding programme.

14. The fastest way to kill company culture is to let bad behaviour be tolerated and rewarded.

I honestly wish someone had told me this earlier in my career.

Because I used to be THAT guy.

The one who felt a sting when a colleague closed a big deal.

The one who stayed quiet when someone else hit their target.

The one who saw every teammate's win as a reminder of what I hadn't done yet.

Sound familiar? 🤔

España: empresa con 44 millones de accionistas es

El otro día reflexionando me pregunté: ¿Por qué no se gestiona España como una gran empresa?

Imaginemos.

 En lugar de funcionarios, empleados.

 En lugar de votantes, accionistas.

 En lugar de ministerios, departamentos.

Y al frente de esos ministerios (departamentos), los mejores talentos del país.

Sé que suena a ciencia ficción, pero... ¿y si lo intentamos?

Al verlo en este montaje que he creado, se me ponen los pelos de punta.

Not because they're saints.
Not because they don't care about their own success.

But because they understand something most reps don't:

Success in sales isn't a finite pie.

Your colleague closing a deal doesn't take food off your table.
Their promotion doesn't block yours.
Their success doesn't diminish yours.

In fact, it's the opposite.

↳ When you celebrate others, you build allies, not enemies
↳ When you lift people up, they remember it
↳ When you're genuinely happy for teammates, you create a culture where people root for YOU too

The jealous rep? They isolate themselves.
The bitter rep? They become toxic.
The insecure rep? They burn bridges.

And when THEY need help? Nobody's there.

But the rep who celebrates others?

They get referrals from teammates.
They get tips on deals.
They get support when they're struggling.

Here's the brutal truth:

Cuéntame en los comentarios, ¿A quién pondrías al frente de qué ministerio? 📌

Con las propuestas más comentadas, haré un nuevo montaje.

Aquí va mi propuesta.

How you react to a colleague's win reveals a lot about your own approach to success.

If you see limited opportunities, you're operating from scarcity.
If you believe there's enough for everyone, that's abundance.

The top performers I know?

They celebrate hard when someone else lands a big one.

Because they're confident in their own pipeline.

So next time a colleague closes a big deal...

Be the first to congratulate them.

Mean it.

It costs you nothing.

And it might just change everything.

Today, I'm thrilled to announce that we're launching the world's first AI SDR!

... Just kidding.

Everyone and their grandmother launched an AI SDR over the last 18 months. But all of them have flopped.

Turns out, spray and pray outbound doesn't work anymore. Adding AI can't change that.

That's why we launched the Avina Outbound Agent.

Instead of blasting a list, it starts from a buying signal.

A custom signal specific to your business.
A recent hire.
A funding round.
A pricing page visit.

Then it researches the company, finds the right contact, and writes a sequence based on that exact trigger.

Built entirely on the sequencers you already use (Instantly, Lemlist, Smartlead, Outreach and more), so you don't have to start from scratch.

Right person. Right moment. Right reason to reach out.

No more spray and pray AI SDRs.

Try the Avina outbound agent and see for yourself

usmx | La FIFA prohíbe a los periodistas preguntar en español a los jugadores de Brasil y Marruecos a pesar de ser la segunda lengua materna más hablada del mundo por encima del inglés.

La FIFA autorizó a preguntar en francés, árabe, portugués e inglés, algo que supuso un problema tanto para los periodistas hispanohablantes como para Vinicius Junior, que habla español pero no inglés.

El capitán marroquí, formado en España, también se mostró sorprendido por esta inexplicable restricción.

La FIFA se ha excusado argumentando que el idioma «puente» escogido era el inglés, pero esto no tiene sentido teniendo en cuenta que tanto los jugadores brasileños, como los marroquíes, tienen mayor facilidad para hablar en español que en inglés.

Algunos críticos con la medida alegaban además que el primer idioma del mundo del fútbol es sin lugar a dudas el español y que por tanto este debería ser el idioma puente escogido para la gran mayoría de encuentros.

The Ultimate Claude in Excel + PowerPoint

Playbook

We just crossed the threshold:

When Claude runs inside Excel + PowerPoint, spreadsheets and decks stop being “work” and become agent-driven execution.

This isn't a 20% boost. It's workflow collapse: describe → generate → refine, directly in the system of record.

If you're in finance / ops / consulting / startups / investing / analysis, learning this is no longer optional. The baseline moved.

What you'll get:

- Setup in 5 minutes
- Excel agent: clean, debug, analyze, model
- Excel → slides: data to exec-ready deck
- PDFs: extract + generate instantly
- Limits + what to trust

El banner de LinkedIn es una de las primeras cosas que se ven.

Y, sin embargo, la mayoría lo desaprovecha.

He analizado +20 banners de perfiles potentes y aquí están algunos de los aciertos y errores más comunes:

✓ Lo que funciona:

- Mensaje claro y directo (sin rodeos).
- Un CTA bien definido (¿qué quieres que haga quien te visite?).
- Uso de colores estratégicos para llamar la atención.
- Credibilidad con logos de medios, empresas o premios.
- Diseño limpio y sin sobrecarga de información.

✗ Lo que no funciona:

- Banners genéricos sin identidad visual clara.
- Demasiado texto (nadie va a leer un párrafo completo).
- Falta de un CTA específico (la gente necesita una instrucción clara).

- Founder warning: if your product assists next to Office, it's in danger.

something shorter. In our case, we used a two page memo that worked very well, but it is not a universal rule.

What matters is this:

Can you explain in one sentence what you do, who it is for and why it matters?

If that sentence is not clear, any format will fall short. If it is clear, everything else becomes easier. The narrative, the conversations and your own decisions as a founder.

A bold and direct mission usually beats even the flashiest PowerPoint deck. People remember clarity, not slides.

If you haven't seen the memo yet, just comment "Memo" and I'll send it over.

I can only send the Memo to people who connect with me. If you would like to receive it, please send me a connection request.

I hired the smartest person in the room once.
They lasted 3 months.

la reunión siguiente, en los proyectos, en los niños...

Un viaje más. Uno de tantos.

Pero aquel día, algo cambió. ❌

De repente, la vista empezó a fallar. El suelo se movía, las piernas no respondían. Caminaba en zigzag, intentando mantener el equilibrio, como si el cuerpo y la mente se hubieran desconectado por un instante.

Y ese instante bastó. Bastó para entender que lo que damos por hecho —caminar recto, leer un cartel, subir a un tren— puede, de un segundo a otro, convertirse en un desafío casi imposible.

Aquel día me dio un ictus. 🟡

Y con él, me dio una lección que no se olvida: que la vida no se negocia, que los avisos del cuerpo hay que escucharlos, y que la rutina, esa palabra tan gris, en realidad está llena de milagros silenciosos.

Durante semanas todo fue lento 🐢. Recuperar la visión, volver a caminar sin mareo, sentir que el cuerpo respondía.

Pero también fue un proceso de agradecimiento: por los que estaban, por los que llamaron, por los que se quedaron cerca sin hacer ruido. 🙏 ... Por la que me salvó... Macarena Bueno Pelaez ❤️ Hoy, seis meses después, vuelvo al mismo andén. 🚆

Y esta vez, antes de subir, me detengo un segundo.

Para mirar, respirar... y seguir el viaje, con otra mirada, otra calma y la certeza de que volver no

Hiring teams put out job specs with a lot of criteria. But even they know very few will meet all of it.

Instead, you should think about your unfair advantage. Everything that has led up to you applying for this role.

This could be any number of things:

- 👤 New to the industry = new ideas.
- 👤 Varied experience = very adaptable.
- 🌱 Some side-hustles = highly motivated.
- 👤 Strong personal brand = increased leverage.
- 🧘 Calm under pressure = great problem-solver.

Your unfair advantage sets you apart. If you aren't sure what it is, ask yourself this:

1. What are your skills?
2. What would you do for free?
3. What's something you do that others don't?

Both job seekers and hiring managers should understand:
The best work is done by the most motivated staff.

Most people who get hired aren't fitting 100% of the job spec.
They're leaning into what makes them a unique individual.

Apply for that role when you hit 75% of the job description.
Let me know if you've found this to be true of your career ⬇️

I hired the kindest person in the room once. They're now running that team.

Here's what that sign gets absolutely RIGHT about building winning teams 📌

We're obsessed with IQ. With credentials. With "rockstars" and "ninjas."

But after 15+ years building sales teams, I've learned something brutal:

Smart people who lack humility? They're ticking time bombs.

Think about it...

That genius who won't listen to feedback?
That top performer who belittles teammates?
That "expert" who thinks they know everything?

They're not building your business. They're slowly destroying it.

Here's what ACTUALLY happens when you prioritize kindness and humility:

- ↳ Team meetings become idea factories (not ego battles)
- ↳ Mistakes become learning moments (not blame games)
- ↳ Success gets shared (not hoarded)
- ↳ People actually WANT to help each other win

I've seen it firsthand:

siempre es retroceder: a veces es volver a empezar.

The "average" rep who listened to everyone?
Became our top performer within 6 months.

The "inexperienced" manager who admitted what they didn't know?
Built the strongest team culture we'd ever had.

The "quiet" team member who always helped others?
Now our most valuable leader.

Because here's the uncomfortable truth:

Skills can be taught.
Systems can be learned.
Processes can be mastered.

But kindness? Humility?
Those are CHARACTER.

And character is what determines:

- How they handle pressure
- How they treat customers
- How they respond to failure
- How they celebrate others' wins

Smart people might win alone.
Kind and humble people? They build dynasties.

So next time you're hiring, promoting, or building a team...

Don't just check their resume.

Because working with smart people IS great.

But working with kind and humble people?

That's how you build something that actually lasts.

CÓMO VENDERLE A CADA GENERACIÓN, AQUÍ TE LO EXPLICO

No le estás vendiendo mal a tu público, probablemente solo le estás hablando igual a todos.
Y ahí está el error

Porque no piensa igual un boomer, que alguien de Gen Z, que un millennial.
Unos compran por confianza, otros por lógica, otros por conexión, otros por entretenimiento y aquí si no tenemos esto claro el contenido se vuelve difícil y no conecta (aunque esté "bonito").
Hoy te comparto justo para eso: Para que puedas comunicar mejor, puedas tener una visión mucho más clara de como llegar a tu público objetivo.
Aquí creo que la clave es entender como piensa y

Esta historia es de terror. Los medios lo han ocultado todo. Ocurrió ayer en Almería (España). Joven ilegal de 21 años entra en una autocaravana con una navaja. Se desnuda. Agrede sexualmente a una chica alemana de que estaba descansando dentro. La golpea brutalmente, dejándole la cara desfigurada.

La encontraron gravemente herida y la trasladaron al Hospital Materno Infantil de Almería, activando el protocolo de agresiones sexuales.

La Policía localizó al sospechoso, escondido. Al verse acorralado, corrió hacia el mar y se adentró 100 metros pese al fuerte oleaje y viento.

Empezó a hundirse y a dar síntomas de ahogamiento. Cinco agentes se lanzaron al agua revuelta para rescatarlo. Lo sacaron con dificultad (el agresor apenas colaboraba) y lo estabilizaron en la arena.

Why did this work? Controversy

SF is no longer the best place to find startup talent. It's too competitive.

So many SF startups I know are struggling to hire right now.

With the AI boom, startups suddenly have 10x more competition before.

 Sara Uy

I've shared every life update on linkedIn for the last 3 years...so here's the latest... ❤️

It's hard to put the emotions we have felt over the last few months into words. Just a few weeks ago we got to hear the strongest little heartbeat ever and now we're left heartbroken. We've taken a few days to process but in all honesty I don't think this is something you can ever truly understand 💔

 Zack Deris

You've been using ChatGPT wrong this whole time. ↳ Because you weren't taught how to prompt. → Not because it's broken.

Most people get mediocre results from AI because they ask basic questions and expect magic.

But what separates average users from power users is the quality of the prompts they use.

YC is pumping out ~200 companies a quarter, all of whom seemingly want a founding engineer(s) in person in SF.

That means crazy competition for top candidates.

On the other hand, Avina was able to find an amazing engineer in NYC recently in a relatively short timeframe.

The competition for talent here is fierce, but not lethal. And the talent is (imo) just as abundant.

The old days of SF being THE place to find talent are gone.

I'd suggest startups to consider:

1/ Moving out of SF if they're ONLY there to find great talent
2/ Hire remotely

Founders: open your mind to other hiring options.

You'll gain an edge over your competition.

Why did this work? Controversy

When we found out in early march I was pregnant we were scared, shocked, unsure excited, nervous and every other emotion that falls into that category and it makes me feel guilty. I would change so many things...

The one thing I wouldn't change is sharing the news with our closest friends and family because like my mom says "no matter how many weeks along you are you aren't any less pregnant" and thank god we did because the love we have received over the last few days after receiving the news that there was no longer a heartbeat is the love that's been getting us through each day. We couldn't do it without our village...

We've never experienced a pain like this, and we are trying to find peace in knowing our time will come but it's really really hard...

What a blessing it was to experience this over the last 10 weeks.

To my husband Jonathan Uy, CPA, thank GOD for you ❤️

SDR is the hardest job in sales

Most people have no idea how much noise SDRs push through just to get a single "yes."

📞 First contact? Total strangers.

📧 Inbox? Buried in junk.

🙄 Rejection? 99% of the time.

But SDRs...

Build trust in seconds

Read intent between the lines

Stay sharp after 20 "no's" before lunch

You're not order takers.

You are the first impression.

You open the first door to the deal.

And you show up: every. single. day.

The AI GTM market has never had more experts. Very few have a live system running inside a real company.

Everyone is selling the gold rush. Courses, certifications, playbooks, prompt libraries. Everyone figured out there's money in teaching people how to mine.

I work inside 8 AI companies at once. I build systems that have to work in production. No framework survives contact with a real pipeline.

Winning companies have someone who stayed long enough to understand where the real bottleneck is. That's a different job than selling maps to the gold rush.

Intercom's CEO Eoghan McCabe just announced they're disrupting their own agent business to capture the compute layer underneath it.

SIERRA AI only gets paid when their agent resolves a customer call. They're commanding $150K annual contracts.

GC AI charges 20X what a ChatGPT subscription costs.

"No encuentro talento para mi empresa".

La típica frase de CEO cebolleta.

El talento existe a patadas.

Si no encuentras a gente con talento, el problema no es el mercado. Eres tú.

Tu cultura, tu proceso de selección o el simple hecho de que no les dejas crecer.

Mi obsesión como CEO es atraer a esa gente y, más importante, retenerla.

Dándoles siempre un motivo más para quedarse.

Asumamos de una vez las responsabilidades de lo que pasa en nuestras empresa.

Solo así dejaremos de buscar excusas en el mercado.

Why did this work?

Controversy

Chris Payne

Si terminas una reunión B2B con “listo, estamos hablando” te garantizo que no estarás hablando con nadie.

Hace unos meses revisé el pipeline de un Director Comercial que no entendía por qué sus cierres habían caído.

Tenía buena prospección.
Buenas reuniones.
Buenas propuestas.

Pero nada avanzaba.

Cuando analizamos su proceso, descubrimos algo que pasa en el 90% de los equipos:

✗ Hacen demasiadas actividades, pero muy pocas decisiones avanzan.

Sus vendedores estaban terminando sus reuniones con lo típico “listo, estamos hablando”.

No tenían control de las oportunidades.

Porque en ventas complejas, no importa cuánto hagas... importa cómo guías la conversación, cómo lideras la reunión y cómo clarificas el siguiente paso.

Estas 16 claves son exactamente eso:

Micro-disciplina comercial para controlar el avance, elevar el valor y diferenciarte en mercados donde todos suenan iguales.

Natalie (Corporate Natalie)

My favorite platform invited me to MC their event!

Had the most educational, riveting, fabulous time hosting NewFronts with LinkedIn in NYC last week.

We all know LinkedIn is hands-down the place to be for both personal and business brand growth, but this event fully reignited my love for the platform. The conversations, the insights, my completely unnecessary ukulele playing...the energy in the room was electric. Oh and Ryan Reynolds (the keynote speaker) was an absolute gem.

You'll have to catch the LinkedIn Live of the event on 4/9 at 12pm CT (link in the comments), but in the meantime, here are a few takeaways I'll be casually working into conversations with my network so I sound informed and mildly interesting:

- Buyability > impressions when it comes to video content. Your posts need to build trust if you want your brand to actually be buyable.

- 81% of B2B CMOs say video content accelerates sales cycles, and 79% say it speeds up lead conversion. So... who wants to partner?

- Video on LinkedIn is growing 50% faster than other formats on the platform, so if you're thinking about posting video... that moment was yesterday.

Grace Gong

I launched 3 summits in 12 months. 50+ hand-picked leaders per room.

This Thursday is my 3rd Smart AI Summit by Smart Venture Media. Each one more stacked than the last.

I built this because I was tired of walking into conferences and meeting randos. So I curated the entire room.

120 people at any given time. Hand-picked AI founders, enterprise CIOs, Fortune 500 buyers, and the VCs writing the checks.

One conversation here can land you a client, an investor, or a deal that changes everything. That's not a tagline. That's what keeps happening.

We build our summit so speakers want to stay, not just show up. Same room, same food, same conversations as everyone else.

Here's who's in the room on April 2nd:

Grace Gong, Founder & CEO, Smart Venture Media
Justin Osofsky, VP, Meta, ex-COO, Instagram
Marc Boroditsky, CRO, Nebius
Chase Lochmiller, CEO, Crusoe
Vijay Krishnan, Founder & CTO, Turing
Olivia Nottebohm, COO, Box
Rashida Hodge, CVP, Microsoft
Kevin Smith, CIO, Lyft
Deepa Gopinath, CIO, MongoDB

Si tu equipo aplicara solo estas 3 de estas 16 claves, ya tendrías un pipeline más sano:

- ✓ Vende el siguiente paso, no el final
- ✓ Comienza con el problema, no con el pitch
- ✓ Gánate la segunda reunión durante la primera
- ✓ Repite lo que dijeron, pero mejor
- ✓ Descalifica más rápido
- ✓ Mantén tu pipeline ligero y real
- ✓ Haz que tu seguimiento se sienta como un favor
- ✓ Define la agenda antes de que ellos lo hagan
- ✓ Haz preguntas difíciles temprano
- ✓ Controla el calendario
- ✓ Convierte las objeciones en respuestas co-creadas
- ✓ Personaliza con precisión, no con relleno
- ✓ Acumula pequeños “sí”
- ✓ Di que no cuando sea necesario
- ✓ Trata cada deal como ganable, no como garantizado
- ✓ Cierra cada llamada con claridad

Cuando ejecutas así, tu tasa de cierre sube porque:

- Tus conversaciones tienen estructura
- Tus deals avanzan con intención
- Tus propuestas llegan a influenciadores clave bien preparadas

Y no vuelves a competir por precio... compites por valor

Si quieres llevar esto al siguiente nivel — especialmente optimizando tus propuestas comerciales para RFPs, licitaciones o proyectos estratégicos—

Thank you for having me, LinkedIn! Taylor Gessell

The Global Family Office List UPDATED 🔥

Most founders chase the same two investor buckets: VCs or Angels.

But there's a third one that's been quietly writing a LOT of cheques lately: Family offices.

Private capital. Deep pockets. Long time horizons. No fund cycles. No "we need to return the fund." No rush to exit.

Which means they can:

- back niche ideas that don't fit a "theme"

- spend real time with founders

- stay involved beyond the first cheque

- bring operator DNA + serious networks

This week I built The Global Family Office List:

Not one massive messy database.

A curated map of the best family office lists, organised by where they actively invest (not where they're headquartered).

Markets covered:

us USA

GB UK

DE Germany

IL Israel

EU Europe (pan-European)

Rest of World

What you get in each list:

Needs five beverages on her desk at all times.

The exciting part? All three of these bottles are part of my new drinkware collection with Reduce! They're designed to keep you hydrated, stylish, and practical through the chaos of your day (bonus: the Chiller doubles as a subtle "do not disturb" sign for anyone creeping up to your desk).

Couldn't be happier to partner with such an authentic, sustainable, and innovative brand to bring this to life. Shop the full collection at the link in my bio!

It's never too late to jump.

Don't let the fear of risk stop you.

This is something I see happen far too often. The paralysis people feel for fear of failing.

"What happens if I fail?"

"What will my family think?"

"What if I get mocked for failing?"

The thing is, failure is a given on the path to success. Otherwise, you will not learn a thing.

People often mistake the visual element of a brand for the brand itself.

Thank you Kevin Russell for this amazing visual carousel 🔥

True brands are much more than a logo and fancy website. They cut much deeper:

I've been involved in a dozen businesses. Do you think all of them have succeeded?

Of course they haven't. But I learned so much from those "failures."

Don't talk yourself out of doing something amazing. Get started with these 3 steps:

1. Take baby steps. Spend 30 minutes a day on building something new.

2. Upskill yourself regularly. Don't let your current job limit your skillset.

3. Network with the people that are already doing the thing you want to do.

I cannot emphasise the value of learning from the best. They'll open entirely new pathways of thinking.

Get started, stay consistent, and don't look back.

Sales reps are expected to perform before they know how to play.

A footballer still runs drills the morning of a game. Still has a coach watching their technique. And keeps working on fundamentals after years at the top level.

We built our entire onboarding around that idea. Eight weeks before anyone at Surfe carries a number.

Deep product knowledge, live call practice, real feedback before real accounts.

The question we keep asking ourselves is whether we did everything we could before putting them on the pitch.

Esta es la razón por la cual las personas inteligentes rara vez construyen negocios.

Jensen Huang se paró frente a una habitación de graduados de Stanford y les dijo que esperaba que sufrieran.

No estaba siendo cruel, estaba siendo preciso.

Su argumento: las personas con expectativas muy altas tienen muy poca resiliencia. Y la resiliencia, no la inteligencia, es lo que decide quién realmente lo hace. Un graduado de Stanford ha pasado toda su vida como la persona más inteligente de la sala. Rara vez han sido probados por un fracaso real. Así que cuando algo finalmente se rompe, rompen con ello.

Luego dijo que todo fundador debería sentarse con la frase: "La grandeza no es inteligencia. La grandeza viene del carácter. Y el carácter no está formado por personas inteligentes, está formado por personas inteligentes, está formado por personas que sufrieron".

Él lo sabría. A los nueve años, Huang estaba fregando baños en un internado de Kentucky que su familia no se había dado cuenta de que era una escuela reformada. Cuando era adolescente, trabajaba en las mesas de Denny's. En 1993 comenzó NVIDIA en un stand de Denny's, y casi lo 77% of employees said they had a boss.

Yet only 23% said they had a leader.

It's time to establish the difference.

Leadership is far more than a position.
It's a practice, that needs dedicated learning.

Let's understand the distinction.
And how you can make the change:

A boss instructs. A leader inspires.

- It's not about what you say, it's how you say it.

- Set the example. Show then ask.

A boss sees a team. A leader sees individuals.

- Spend time knowing your team 1 by 1.

- Know exactly who's doing what.

A boss expects effort. A leader appreciates it.

- Show appreciation regularly, even on the small tasks.

- A simple thank you goes a very long way.

A boss employs workers. A leader creates leaders.

The McKinsey Slide Playbook for Claude

McKinsey charges $300k for a strategy engagement.
A big part of what you're buying is the deck: the structure, the logic, the way the argument unfolds so that a senior partner can read it in four minutes and understand exactly what you're recommending.

That framework has a name. Five rules.

Most founders build decks that feel convincing while they're presenting and fall apart the moment someone reads them alone.

The five rules fix that at the structural level, not the aesthetic one:
→ Pyramid Principle: the conclusion on slide one, proof after → SCQA: situation, complication, question, answer, in that order
→ Action titles: every heading is a thesis, readable top to bottom
→ MECE: no slide duplicates another, no logical step is missing

Josh Braun

Selling is not that serious.

You're not a brain surgeon.

You're not landing planes.

You're sending emails.
You're making cold calls.

Nobody dies if the prospect doesn't respond.

Missed quota?
Congrats, you're now like every seller... ever.

The ones who last?
They laugh.
They learn.
They move on.
They do their best and forget the rest.

Chill out.
Do yoga.
Cackle with your friends before corporate steals your soul.

- Help guide your team through their career.
- Provide plenty of opportunities for growth.

Leaders make an impact.
Whereas a boss simply makes decisions.

A strong leader:

Actively learns how to improve.
Allows for an open mind.
Adapts to individuals.

Ditch the micromanaging.
Become a leader, and make a difference.

What do you think is the biggest difference between the two?

Sales is bloody hard.

If your struggling atm give yourself a break.

This isn't easy.

Don't tie your self worth to your sales results.

Being a good human is way more important than how many deals you have or haven't closed.

Here's 10 reasons why it's the hardest job you can do:

1. You're judged on outcomes, not effort. You can work harder than anyone else in the business and still miss. No one asks how hard you tried. They ask if you hit the number.
2. You start every month at zero. Last quarter you're a hero. This quarter there are talks of a PIP.
3. You need thick skin. You have to handle more rejection than anyone else in the business. Or worse, you get ghosted.
4. You own things you can't fully control. Pricing, product gaps, brand perception, timing, budget freezes, legal, procurement. Still your fault when you miss your number.
5. Your performance is public. Leaderboards. Forecast calls. Pipeline reviews. The whole company sees your wins and losses.

6. You have to keep showing up. You lose the biggest deal of your career and you're still expected to be sharp on the next call.

7. You carry pressure for the rest of the business. No revenue means no hires, no marketing budget, no roadmap, no growth. Sales carries the weight.

8. The goalposts move all the time. Quotas go up. Territories change. ICP shifts. Pricing changes. Change is the only constant.

9. You're expected to be resilient and empathetic. Push for a deal while building trust. Create urgency without pressure. Be nice, but don't have a need for approval.

10. You're never really off. Deals live in your head. Forecasts follow you home.

answer, and move on.

That can work.

But finance is one of the worst places to use AI like that.

Because finance doesn't just need answers.

It needs:

- context
- recurring workflows
- consistent templates
- structured outputs
- memory across files, periods, and reporting cycles

That's why Claude gets much more interesting in finance than in most other functions.

Not as a chatbot. As a workflow layer.

In this guide I break down:

- how to think about Claude for finance
- which Projects to set up
- which built-in Skills actually matter
- how to set the whole thing up properly
- why this works especially well for reporting, forecasting, board prep, and investor updates

Su cría ya había alcanzado la edad en la que podía sobrevivir sin leche, por lo que los investigadores creían que el momento era seguro. Pero lo que no tuvieron en cuenta fue la parte de la maternidad que no aparece en un gráfico. El personal dijo que pasó sus primeros días en el tanque de retención extrañamente tranquila, dando vueltas por la misma pared una y otra vez, casi como si estuviera memorizando la salida.

Luego, antes del amanecer, las cámaras la capturaron saliendo de la cuenca de investigación y entrando en la bahía. Debido a que había sido etiquetada para ser rastreada, las cuadrillas siguieron su señal mientras ella avanzaba por aguas abiertas, viajando cientos de millas hacia Cook Inlet. Días después, fue vista cerca del mismo tramo de agua donde su cría había sido vista por última vez, nadando junto a la joven beluga como si nunca hubiera planeado irse. Los científicos esperaban saber por qué pasa el cuerpo de una madre después del nacimiento, pero lo que aprendieron fue mucho más difícil de medir: el amor de una madre no termina solo porque la leche lo hace.

Our head of growth Ivan Falco runs $200K/month in ad spend from a terminal.

It's how we doubled client load this year without losing quality.

We built 12 custom skills inside Claude Code that do the work that used to fill our media buyers' calendars.

They spot creative fatigue, adjust bids, upload audiences, run bulk edits, flag broken campaigns, and build reports.

300+ hours went into building them.

Here's what's inside:

Google Ads:

- keyword-analyzer: audits quality scores and finds keyword gaps
- negative-keywords: reviews search terms and blocks wasted spend
- performance-auditor: compares periods and flags what changed
- search-terms: surfaces queries burning budget with zero conversions

5. If your team doesn't feel comfortable to say "I don't know" or "I disagree." You have a lot of progress to make.
6. If you're not paying people what they are worth, they will find someone who will.
7. Employees have 4X better engagement when getting clear and consistent feedback.
8. Micromangement does not mean "hard work", it means your taking away employee freedom.
9. If your entry-level job advert requires work experience... then it's not an "entry-level" job. It's a normal job paying an entry-level salary to an experienced worker.
10. If the actions of managers do not align with company values, employee trust will be destroyed and never recovered.
11. If you are sick, you need to go to a doctor or your child is sick... it should never be counted as annual leave.
12. When you take care of your team, your team will take care of your clients and customers in return.
13. Never expect your new employees to "hit the ground running" if you aren't providing a fantastic and comprehensive onboarding programme.
14. The fastest way to kill company culture is to let toxic behaviour be tolerated and even rewarded.
15. It will cost you a whole lot more to replace

Meta Ads:

- audience-builder: turns CRM lists into custom audiences
- creative-fatigue-analyzer: spots declining CTR before the metrics flag it
- fatigue-monitor: flags when your audience is saturated
- spend-tracker: tracks budget pacing across every campaign

LinkedIn Ads:

- audience-builder: builds targeting audiences at scale
- bid-optimizer: adjusts bids across campaigns in bulk
- bulk-editor: mass edits campaigns, ads, and naming in seconds
- creative-builder: generates ad creatives from brand specs

You drop them into Claude Code, connect your ad accounts, and tell it what you need.

It reads the skill, plugs into the platform, executes.

You talk to it like you'd talk to a media buyer.

We packaged all 12 skills, ready to install and run.

Comment "ADS" and we will send them over.

Everyone talks about what is changing in sales that I think it's important to remember what will NEVER change in sales... 🗣️

Yes, AI is important.
Yes, technology advances.
Yes, buyers change.

BUT there are a lot of things in sales that will never change:

1 - Sales will ALWAYS be about solving problems and

- Hidden.
- They're blacklisted.
- Shared only in private Slack channels and $3,000 masterminds.

Until now.

I compiled 7 of the most elite, gatekept, high-ROI ChatGPT prompts in one free handbook:

This is the ultimate ChatGPT Handbook

- Designed to help you finish 10 hours of work in 10 minutes
- Used by top CMOs, agency operators, content strategists, and solopreneurs
- Works on GPT-4, Claude, DeepSeek, and Gemini

Here's what you'll unlock inside 📌

- Competitor Analyzer
Out-strategize your rivals by reverse-engineering their positioning, offers, pricing, and SEO.
- Profit Machine Designer
Build an AI-powered monetization engine that runs while you sleep.
- Learn Any Skill in 1 Day
Install a skill in 24 hours using performance-accelerated cognitive prompts.
- Algorithm Trigger Engine
Make the algorithm love you on LinkedIn, TikTok, and Instagram.

Lo que incluye:

- 🔥 $50,000 en créditos de PostHog, Supabase, v0 y Notion AI
- 📄 2,000 inversionistas (VCs, ángeles y aceleradoras)
- 📄 50 pitch decks reales de startups respaldadas por YC, Sequoia y a16z.
- 📄 Guías prácticas sobre fundraising, storytelling de fundadores que ya pasaron por ahí y mis mejores conversaciones con inversionistas en el podcast.

Este es el tipo de recurso que hace que todo el proceso sea menos caótico y más claro.

- ↳ People can tell when someone is only interested in selling something.

6 - Sales success will always be based on hard and smart work.

- ↳ Hard work is important, but hard smart work will always win.
- ↳ Quality and quantity come hand in hand in sales.

7 - Salespeople need to be RESILIENT to win at sales.

- ↳ You'll face a lot of rejection, objection and challenge.
- ↳ The best in sales walk through it and know how to deal with it.

8 - The most important sales skill is the ability to ADAPT.

- ↳ Adapting to new tech, new platforms, new tools and new processes.
- ↳ Adapting to each individual prospect and customer.

I'll be the first to embrace new things in sales.

But I'll always follow the basics.

And after 20+ years in sales I can tell you one thing...

The basics will always win.

Always.

France just did what the rest of the world is afraid to do. FR 🇫🇷

They voted NO to ultra-fast fashion.

The new bill targets giants like Shein & Temu with:

- 🌿 An eco-score on emissions, recyclability & resource use
- 🇪🇺 A tax up to €5/item for the worst offenders (from 2025)
- 🚫 A ban on fast fashion ads
- 🏛️ Sanctions for influencers promoting it

The message is clear: we already have enough clothes for 6 generations.

This isn't about fashion anymore. It's about waste, climate, and values.

Would you support a similar law in your country?

Hasta los H de trabajar desde casa.

El teletrabajo está bien.
Mucho mejor que perder dos horas al día en atascos.

Pero trabajar siempre desde casa... no lo veo.

Somos seres sociales.
Aunque nos empeñemos en lo contrario.

Yo, por ejemplo, noto una pérdida de creatividad, de energía y de foco bastante clara después de más de un año trabajando full desde casa.

Desde fuera parece ideal.
Desde dentro, muchas veces, es solitario.

Y ojo, no digo que la oficina sea la solución mágica.
Ni que volver al presencial 5 días tenga ningún sentido.

Pero empiezo a pensar que nos hemos ido al otro extremo.

Que no todo es blanco o negro.

La IA no amenaza todos los trabajos por igual...

Amenaza primero a quienes no entienden qué parte de su trabajo puede llegar a cambiar.

El informe de Anthropic sobre impacto laboral propone una idea: no basta con medir lo que la IA podría hacer en teoría.

También debemos observar cómo las personas ya la usan en tareas reales del día a día.

Esa diferencia importa mucho.

Un modelo puede tener capacidad para apoyar una tarea, pero eso no significa que una empresa ya lo use bien, que el proceso esté listo o que el resultado tenga calidad suficiente para ser reemplazado por una herramienta.

Algo que estoy mirando y hasta puede ser un error común, es que muchas personas preguntan si la IA les va a quitar el trabajo, pero pocas conocen realmente sus procesos.

Gran parte de las empresas "siguen sus procesos" o

Quizá el punto medio sea lo más sano.

Un sitio al que ir.
Gente con la que compartir.
Y días para trabajar tranquilo desde casa.

¿Qué opinas? ¿Eres team teletrabajo, oficina o modelo híbrido? 📍

Durante años hicimos lo mismo:

Editar texto.
Mover cajas.
Ajustar tono.

Ahora no editas diapositivas.

Estas son las novedades que cambian el juego:

1 Prompt-Based Revisions

Este es el cambio importante.
Ya no rehaces slides.

Las ajustas por prompts.

La IA no genera desde cero.

Trabaja sobre tu versión.
Sobre tus fuentes.
Sobre tu estructura.

Eso elimina fricción estratégica.

Porque el riesgo no está solo en la tecnología.

Es quedarte con una versión antigua de tu profesión mientras el mercado cambia la forma de trabajar.

La IA no eliminará el trabajo a las personas, por los momentos no. Pero sí obliga a redefinirlo.

Quien entiende procesos, datos, contexto, criterio y comunicación tendrá más ventaja que quien solo espera instrucciones.

Respect doesn't have job titles.

It doesn't matter if someone's a CEO or a cleaner, a top performer or just starting out — everyone deserves to be treated with the same level of respect, kindness, and appreciation.

Because how you treat people when there's nothing to gain says more about your character than any achievement ever will.

In sales, leadership, and life, relationships are everything.

And relationships are built on how you make people feel.

You can be the best closer in the room...

But if you lack respect, humility, and empathy, you'll never build true trust.

The best professionals — the ones who create loyalty, referrals, and long-term success — lead with humanity.

Here are 3 ways to live that value every day:

↳ Acknowledge everyone.

Say hello to the people others overlook. Gratitude and respect cost nothing, but they mean everything.

↳ Listen like it matters — because it does.

Whether it's a customer, a colleague, or a cleaner, give people your full attention. You'll be amazed what you learn.

↳ Lead with humility.

Y pronto en slides de google.

3 Sin marca de agua (Plan AI Ultra)

En el plan de pago permite exportar sin marca.
Modelo freemium:
puedes probarlo gratis
y escalar si necesitas producción real.

4 Las revisiones no consumen slides

Re-promptear ≠ generar desde cero.
Pero sí hay límite de iteraciones.

Consejo estratégico:
Piensa antes de iterar.
Agrupa cambios.
Dirige mejor.

La nueva habilidad no es "hacer slides".
Es saber dar instrucciones.

5 Despliegue progresivo

Primero lo están activando en planes de pago.
Después llegará al resto.
Eso no es casual.
Cuando Google introduce algo así en el entorno profesional, es porque lo considera estratégico.

NotebookLM no solo resume PDFs.

Está mutando hacia:

- Generador estructural
- Editor contextual

→ Sistema de producción basado en fuentes

No reemplaza PowerPoint.
Reemplaza el trabajo manual que hacías dentro de PowerPoint.

Y eso sí es estructural.

Estamos pasando de "Construir slides" a "Orquestar narrativa con prompts".

Eso cambia el skill set.
Eso cambia la velocidad.
Eso cambia quién tiene ventaja.

¿Lo estás usando como curiosidad... o ya entendiste que estamos entrando en otra etapa?

Si entendiste lo que implica este cambio de modelo, te va a interesar esto.

Acabo de crear una guía práctica para construir slides directamente desde NotebookLM.

Comenta "Notebook" y te la envío.

I spent 6 months figuring out how to use Claude to raise from VCs without wasting weeks on the wrong investors.

Here's the system 📌

The result is a tool that changed how I fundraise:

- Matches you to investors who back your stage, sector and geo
- Scores your deck and sharpens your elevator pitch
- Drafts outreach in your voice, not generic AI mush
- Plugs you into 47,000+ investors

What used to eat months now takes an afternoon.

SDR is the hardest job in sales

Most people have no idea how much noise SDRs push through just to get a single "yes."

First contact? Total strangers.

Inbox? Buried in junk.

Rejection? 99% of the time.

But SDRs...

Build trust in seconds

Read intent between the lines

Stay sharp after 20 "no's" before lunch

You're not order takers.

You are the first impression.

You open the first door to the deal.

And you show up: every. single. day.

🔥 ÚLTIMA HORA: Claude acaba de matar el cold outbound como lo conocemos 📌

Lo que viene se llama vibe prospecting.

El símil es sencillo: es Claude Code, pero para prospección.

En los últimos 30 días hemos hablado con 40+ equipos de ventas B2B.

9 de cada 10 ya están migrando.

Todos menos tú.

El resto sigue mandando 3.000 emails a la semana para sacar 9 reuniones.

Llevamos meses en Neety construyendo el software de outreach B2B con IA que nos hubiera gustado tener vendiendo a puerta fría.

Y los equipos que están aplicando esto con herramientas como Enginy (Kai Brandt) o KomboAI (Ignacio Gaminde) bien orquestadas, están sacando 3x reuniones agendadas frente al equipo medio.

The impact of a strong leader goes further than day-to-day work.

The best leaders positively impact your:

- ↳ Mental-health
- ↳ Work-life balance
- ↳ Personal Development

If you're a manager looking to make a genuine difference.

Here's how you do it:

- ↳ Lead by example
- ↳ Make you feel heard
- ↳ Boost your confidence
- ↳ Treat others with kindness
- ↳ Provide valuable mentorship
- ↳ Guide you through hard times
- ↳ Trust you to work independently
- ↳ Are friendly and easy to approach
- ↳ Embrace positive change and ideas
- ↳ Create a feeling of community at work

🔥 INSÓLITO: Una operadora de servicios de emergencia fue condenada tras colgar miles de llamadas porque "no tenía ganas de hablar".

La historia real de Crenshanda Williams:

- Trabajaba en el centro de emergencias de Houston, Texas.
- Una auditoría descubrió que colgó miles de llamadas en segundos.
- Fue grabada diciendo: "Nadie tiene tiempo para esto, de verdad".
- Tras ser descubierta, confesó que simplemente no quería trabajar.
- Fue despedida y sentenciada a cárcel y libertad condicional.

¿Qué opinas de este nivel de negligencia?

Ya no va de:

- Cargo + sector + tamaño de empresa
- Filtros rígidos de "industria" y "segmento"
- Secuencias de 8 follow-ups con GIFs cada 2 días

5 cosas que están cambiando AHORA:

1. Lenguaje natural > filtros rígidos
Igual que en Claude Code no programas con formularios, aquí no prospectas con dropdowns.
Le escribes a la IA: "quiero empresas que XXXXX..."
Y te genera la lista. Ni sabes cómo lo hace.
Tú apruebas o das feedback.
2. Iteración > configuración
La IA aprende con cada feedback que le das.
"Esta empresa sí, esta no, por esto."
Cada iteración la lista se ajusta más a TU criterio real.
No al de un formulario.
3. Señales vivas > base de datos fría
La IA escanea posts de LinkedIn, entrevistas, podcasts, noticias de la empresa.
Entiende contexto real, momento de compra, intención.
4. Decisión en tiempo real > secuencias rígidas
Adiós al "si no responde el email en 1 día, mandar follow-up".
La IA decide CUÁL es el mejor movimiento en cada momento.
¿Email? ¿LinkedIn? ¿Esperar 3 días? ¿Cambiar el ángulo?
Se adapta al receptor, no al calendario.
5. Interlocutor > vendedor

- ↳ Have hard but necessary conversations
- ↳ Celebrate achievements both big and small
- ↳ Give constructive feedback to help you progress

Be the leader who people work hard for.
Not the one they work hard to avoid.

Know a leader who's changed your life?

Micro-managing is the easy option.
But it's rarely the right option.

Try these 3 things instead:

1 - Have a supportive private 1-2-1 with them, make them feel at ease and feel supported by you and the company.

↳ Dig deep and find the real challenges.
↳ Show empathy and actually listen to them.
↳ Make them feel valued.

2 - Work with them to identify what might have gone wrong or challenged them last month and come up with solutions together.

↳ Don't just look at numbers, look at the whole picture.
↳ Ask them what they think went right and wrong.
↳ Brainstorm solutions together.

3 - Ensure you provide them with all of the support and resources that you can to help them succeed.

Lack discipline.

And just don't have the mental fortitude to win.

If you are considering getting into sales or are in sales the only way you are ever going to win or exceed at very high levels is if you have a strong mind.

If you're able to take the hits and keep going.

If you're to not see the results right away and remain consistent.

And are able to not give up until you win!

 Consejo: Usa tus colores de marca para una mayor coherencia (y fomentar el recuerdo).

2. PRESENTACIÓN (HEADLINE)

 No pongas solo tu cargo.

 Añade palabras clave que te posicionen y expliquen qué haces.

 Habla directamente a tu cliente ideal.

3. BANNER (MULTISLIDE)

 ¿Quién eres y por qué deberían seguirte?

→ Slide 1: Propuesta de valor directa.

→ Slide 2: CTA claro. Añade un QR o enlace para convertir rápido.

 Usa elementos de social proof: premios, reconocimientos, etc.

 Dimensiones: 1584 x 396 px.

4. ACERCA DE (ABOUT)

 Empieza con un problema que identifique tu audiencia.

 Ofrece soluciones concretas.

 Incluye datos, casos de éxito y resultados.

 Finaliza con un Call to Action claro.

 No más de 4 párrafos: que sea directo y claro.

5. DESTACADOS

 Coloca tus mejores contenidos, posts virales o logros importantes.

 Enlaces directos a tu newsletter, servicios o casos de éxito.

 Resalta contenido gratuito que aporte valor.

6. ACTIVIDAD (POSTS)

 No publiques por publicar.

 Define tu propósito: ¿Educar? ¿Inspirar? ¿Generar leads?

Sound familiar?

But here's what 20+ years in sales taught me about success:

The people who win biggest are the ones who chap loudest for others.

It's not just feel-good nonsense.

It's how the game actually works.

Think about it...

↳ When you celebrate others, you build a network that celebrates you

↳ When you support without envy, people remember

↳ When you show genuine excitement for someone's win, they'll do the same for you

It's patience in action.

It's knowing your moment WILL come.

It's understanding that someone else's success doesn't steal yours.

I've watched this play out hundreds of times:

The rep who cheers for their teammate's big deal? Gets the referrals.

The manager who celebrates their team's wins? Builds loyalty that lasts.

The leader who spotlights others? Creates a culture where everyone thrives.

This isn't about being fake.

This isn't about pretending.

It's shifting from "Why not me?" to "Their win proves mine is possible too."

From scarcity to abundance.

From competition to community.

And when your moment finally arrives?

It hits different.

Because you've been that person.

You've been the cheerleader.

You've built the karma.

The people you celebrated? They'll be your loudest supporters.

Este GPT me ha escrito varios posts virales en LinkedIn.

Y hoy lo estoy compartiendo.

No es una herramienta genérica que escupe texto sin contexto.

No es un copy sin experiencia en LinkedIn que te cobra por posts que no convierten.

Es el mismo Agente GPT que usamos a diario dentro de nuestra consultoría.

Lo hemos entrenado durante meses con cientos de posts reales que han generado alcance, conversaciones y clientes.

- Entiende cómo funciona el algoritmo.

- Entiende qué engancha y qué no.

- Entiende por qué un post genera leads y otro pasa desapercibido.

Eres más pobre que una 🇵🇪 (digo que hace 34 años).

Y no, no es porque trabajes menos o gastes más.

Es por un fenómeno al que podríamos llamar el "impuesto" más invisible de todos: la inflación.

My father, my hero, was the '73 silver medalist at the Indian Institute of Technology, Bombay. My older brother, my closest friend, also graduated from IIT Bombay. But after getting through JEE (joint entrance exam) in '00, I declined my admit and chose to follow a path different from the two heroes I so admired and loved.

Why did this work?

La inflación, es el aumento generalizado de los precios en la economía.

👉 O dicho más claro: cada vez puedes comprar menos cosas con la misma cantidad de dinero.

¿Sabías que el precio de la Coca-Cola ha subido un 260% en estos 34 años, mientras que los salarios en España solo han aumentado un 114%?

Dato mata relato.

Así que sí, hoy somos + pobres que hace 34 años.

¿Qué opinas? ¿Cómo lo has notado en tu día a día?

Why did this work?

Controversy

It was time to #thinkdifferent.

I embraced a different experience and accepted the SIA-NOL scholarship offered by the Singapore Ministry of Education to study at Nanyang Technological University Singapore. That decision paved a very different, exciting path for the next 2 decades, one that saw me call Singapore, New York City, London, Paris, Madrid my home before settling down in the San Francisco Bay Area. Along the way, I had two startup exits and the #privilege to lead large businesses at IBM Security Systems, Idaptive (a Thoma Bravo company), and then as SVP/GM at CyberArk, now Palo Alto Networks. A singular decision, driven by the deep desire to #thinkdifferent, shaped a 2-decade career.

It is time to be #thankful for that first inning.

It is now time for a second inning. It is time to #thinkdifferent, once again.

The world of #Agents is incredibly noisy, chaotic. Each day teaches you the significance of listening to your customers, to your inner voice, and paving your own vision together with your team, customers and partners. That vision is the genesis of eos.

eos is born out of Kashyap Ivaturi's and my desire to #thinkdifferent. To separate signals from the omnipresent, deafening noise in AI. To elevate #Agents as a brand new #identityconstituency - a constituency that deserves its own rightful place in #IdentitySecurity. A constituency that has never before existed in the history of #moderncomputing. Agents are not human. They are not machines. They are not #secrets. They are not #tokens. They are not #certificates. And they are not #MCPservers.

eos is born out of placing #humansfirst. It's born out of recognizing that #Agents will achieve #superintelligence sooner than later and will operate at fiber-optic speed, but they will increasingly be created in the image of us, with the intent to augment us, as flesh and blood humans. And we will need all the human ingenuity and creativity we can muster to guide, govern, secure, control them.

eos is born out of the #builttolast philosophy. A philosophy lived by a few of my mentors, friends, and leaders who have built multi-billion dollar security companies from the ground up, and who inspire me daily - Udi Mokady, Sumedh Thakar, Rajat Bhargava, Sachin K Nayyar, and many others.

eos is in stealth, but we'll be at the #GartnerIAMSummit. Booth 713. We'd love to talk to you and hear about the opportunities that excite you, the challenges you fear given the oncoming Agent revolution. We're there to truly listen to you, with deliberate #intent. And we're there to be #thankful to you, for your time, for your attention, and for your insight.

Happy #Thanksgiving!

Built a content writer, editor, and SEO nerd all rolled into one. Runs on GPT, not coffee.

Here's how it works. And yes, it's fully automated inside n8n.

- It starts with a simple trigger. Someone sends a message like "Write about AI in healthcare."
- The workflow quietly fetches the top three Google results using a SERP API.
- Then it loops through each URL like a hyper-focused intern.
- It fetches the HTML, strips out the clutter, and extracts only the useful content. No ads, no sidebars, just the good stuff.

Now for the fun part.

That content is passed to three AI agents working together like a superhero team powered by ChatGPT.

- One extracts and summarizes the core insights.
- One rewrites it to sound human and natural.
- And the third optimizes everything with the right keywords to keep Google happy.
- The final result is dropped into a clean, ready-to-publish Google Doc.

No editing. No formatting. No second drafts.

If your content calendar is empty but your ambition

 CHINA LE ROBÓ LA IA A ANTHROPIC.

Y lo hicieron durante 45 días seguidos.

Anthropic acaba de acusar a Alibaba de lanzar el mayor ataque de robo de IA de la historia.

El objetivo: extraer las capacidades de Claude... sin pagar ni un dólar.

Cómo lo hicieron:

- Crearon casi 25.000 cuentas falsas
- Ejecutaron 28,8 millones de conversaciones con Claude
- Todo entre el 22 de abril y el 5 de junio de 2026

El método se llama "ataque de destilación".

Básicamente: entrenan tu propio modelo... con las respuestas del modelo de tu competidor.

Anthropic tiene a Claude bloqueado en China.

Alibaba encontró la forma de saltárselo igualmente.

Y no fue solo Alibaba.

DeepSeek, Moonshot AI y MiniMax también están en la lista.

How I generate 10,000+ leads

With a single Slack command

Most people spend hours searching for leads.

I don't.

Need 5,000 CEOs tomorrow?

8,000 Marketing Directors?

I just send another Slack command.

And the bot will do the rest!

Here's how I automate everything—

From finding leads to booking calls using Slack + Retell AI:

Step 1: Find the Leads:

I type one simple Slack command:

"Get me 10,000 CTOs in the US."

The bot instantly pulls:

- ✅ LinkedIn profiles
- ✅ Job titles

isn't, maybe it's time to let automation take over the heavy lifting.

And if you want the full workflow?

1. React on this Post.

2. Make sure we're connected (required to receive the file in your DM).

3. Comment "SEO" below and I'll send it to you.

(repost it so that your connections can take advantage of this Automation too)

The bot automates the search using Automate.io (acquired by Notion) and PhantomBuster

Finds LinkedIn profiles using Google Search API

Scrapes and organizes data

Filters for only high-quality leads

Step 3: Turn leads into clients:

I send these leads to Retell AI, which:

Engages them with natural, human-like follow-ups.

Warms them up automatically.

Books meetings straight into my calendar.

I have asked my team to create an entire guide on it explaining each step.

If you want it just comment "slack" and I will share it with you for absolutely FREE!

January 2019. My wife was five months pregnant. I quit my job and started Remote with Job van der Voort.

A couple weeks in, the ultrasound comes back. My son would be born with club feet. At best. Could be genetic. Could be really bad.

There I am with my co-founder and two people we'd managed to hire. Freaking out. All my hopes and dreams going out the window. I don't know what's going to happen.

Don't Google it. It's not massively pretty, but it's solvable. It's fixable. The next 6 to 9 months, it was all about casts. From hip to toe.

The way babies fart is by flexing their legs. If they can't flex, they don't fart. If they don't fart, they cry. I didn't sleep for nine months.

And then COVID hits. I'm at home with a kid in casts. My wife doesn't sleep. I don't sleep. Remote is about to face a pandemic with 50 people and I have no idea if we're going to make it.

Tengo 30 años. Estoy emprendiendo. No tengo propiedades. No tengo trabajo estable. No tengo sueldo fijo. Vivo con una amiga. Estoy comenzando.

Veo historias de éxito que parecen perfectas, pero la verdad es que cada camino es distinto. Y está bien no tenerlo todo resuelto.

Hay muchísimas personas que me rodean que comenzaron a formar algo muy grande a sus +30... Holly Phillips fundó For Digital Sakes una agencia de video marketing para hoteles de lujo. Simón Borrero fundó Rappi a los 32. Rodrigo Rojo Pizarro (mi ex jefe jaja) comenzó a publicar contenido de IA hace un par de años y ahora tiene proyectos independientes muy buenos!

No tienes que haberlo logrado todo a los 30. Cada quien avanza a su ritmo.

Lo importante es comenzar, avanzar y aprender en el camino.

¿Dónde está el dinero de mi libro?

Hoy es uno de los días más jodidos de mi carrera profesional.

Este es un post que jamás pensé que tendría que escribir.

Cómo algunos sabéis, a finales de 2024, firmé con la editorial LIBROS.COM para escribir un libro con un propósito claro: recaudar fondos y financiar terapias asistidas con perros para jóvenes hospitalizados con problemas graves de salud mental.

En este libro iba analizar la mentalidad de Marian Rojas, Pedro Buerbaum, Iliá Topuria, Isra Bravo, Marcos Vazquez, Yaiza Canosa, Fer Miralles, Sergio Fernandez, José Elias y Rafa Nadal.

Acepté hacerlo con LIBROS.COM porque había sido adquirida por Product Hackers, una empresa que según sus notas de prensa factura mas de 6M€ al año. Eso me dio confianza.

Para que la primera edición saliera adelante,

Then another year. Wars happening. We're exposed because we're literally operating in every country. Banks collapsing left and right.

Someone asked me how I dealt with the near-death moments. Denial. Denial is the best. Works for everything.

LIBROS.COM me pidió conseguir vender 5.000€ en 30 días. Yo conseguí 7.420€ con el apoyo de 134 mecenas.

Una vez conseguido, yo tenía máximo 3 meses para escribir el libro y para verano 2025, LIBROS.COM entregaría a todos los mecenas el libro y además se encargaría de la distribución en Amazon, librerías y su web.

El 20 de febrero de 2025, entregué el primer borrador y comenzó el proceso de corrección. Hasta ese momento, todo era normal.

Pero, de repente, veo en LinkedIn que el CEO y el director de operaciones de LIBROS.COM se van de la empresa. Sin decirme nada.

Preocupado, contacto con Jose Carlos Cortizo Perez (Corti), CMO de Product Hackers, la empresa que compró LIBROS.COM

Para mi sorpresa, Corti me comunica por teléfono que LIBROS.COM está en proceso concursal y que no creen que puedan:

- ✗ Ni devolver los 7.420€ de mi campaña.
- ✗ Ni producir mis libros.
- ✗ Ni pagar los royalties que iban a ser donados a la Asociación Perros Azules al entregar el primer borrador.

¿Y ahora que cojones hago?

- 👉 ¿Por qué me proponen escribir un libro si están al borde de la quiebra?
- 👉 ¿Dónde está el dinero de las 134 personas que

- confiaron en este proyecto?
- 👉 ¿Dónde está el dinero que iba a ayudar a jóvenes con problemas graves de salud mental?
- 👉 ¿Quién responde por esto?

Lo más valioso que se puede recibir de la gente es su confianza. Y han jugado con ella.

Pero yo soy una persona de palabra.

Y voy a cumplir el compromiso que adquirí con las personas que me apoyaron y con el propósito de este proyecto: Recaudar fondos para ayudar a jóvenes con problemas graves de salud mental.

Estoy intentando recuperar los derechos del libro y los datos de los mecenas para poder producirlo con mi dinero y enviarlo personalmente. Pero los dueños de la editorial me proponen ahora mismo dárme los si renuncio a reclamarles lo que deben. Y no estoy de acuerdo con esas condiciones.

Estoy realmente jodido, pero no me voy a quedar de brazos cruzados.

Este libro será una realidad y todas las personas que me apoyasteis tendréis vuestro libro. Me cueste lo que me cueste.

Os iré informando.

¡Gracias a todos por el apoyo y ánimo a todos los autores y mecenas afectados!

R.I.P. LinkedIn "experts".

I, For 2026, I built this step-by-step guide + agents so you can get clients on LinkedIn.

Most LinkedIn "experts" only do two things:

Post generic motivational content.
Send cold DMs that smell like a pitch from the first second.

We decided to do something different.

We created a real system that combines AI + strategic positioning + intentional content:

- Generates consistent visibility without chasing anyone.
- Converts strangers into prospects.
- Works without a team.

What we achieved in 30 days:

- +14,338,471 organic impressions without spending on ads.
- +500 inbound leads without sending a single message.
- +110 calls booked.

Silicon Valley is cool. But have you seen what's happening in Barcelona?

Tech founders are building big from here.
VCs are starting to follow.

And the reasons aren't what you think.
They're not just getting beaches and tapas.

They're getting:

- World-class dev talent at 40% of the US cost
- A fast-growing startup ecosystem with real momentum
- Serious expat support (startup law, tax incentives, visas)
- Access to both EU and LATAM markets
- A quality of life that avoids burnout

And the secret weapon?

Barcelona retains talent.
People come here and never leave.
That's what builds real ecosystems.

We're seeing unicorn DNA forming here:

La CEO de AMD, Lisa Su, acaba de acabar con la caja de IA de $4,000 de Nvidia con una lonchera de $1,499.

Subió al escenario, la sostuvo en una mano y ejecutó en vivo un modelo de 235 mil millones de parámetros. Sin centro de datos. Sin nube. Sin GPU alquilada.

El chip en su interior es algo que nadie vio venir. El Ryzen AI Max+ 395 de AMD es el primer silicio x86 donde la CPU y la GPU comparten los mismos 128 GB de memoria. Ese solo truco permite que un escritorio ejecute modelos que antes necesitaban un rack de servidores.

De esos 128 GB, Linux le da al GPU 110 GB para jugar. Para contextualizar, una RTX 5090 te da 32 GB. Una 4090 te da 24. Esta caja te da más del triple que cualquiera de ellas, en un chasis del tamaño de un libro de bolsillo grueso.

El benchmark que rompió la sala: este chip superó a una Nvidia RTX 5080 por más de 3x en inferencia de DeepSeek R1. Una lonchera de $1,499 superando a una tarjeta gráfica discreta de $1,000 en una carga de trabajo real de IA. Nvidia pasó una década convenciendo al mundo de que necesitabas su hardware para IA seria. AMD acaba de poner eso en un escritorio por la mitad del precio.

Aquí está lo que nadie te está diciendo. Un usuario intensivo de IA ahora paga $200 por Claude Code Max, $200 por ChatGPT Pro, $20 por Cursor, $20 por Gemini. Eso son $5,280 al año saliendo de tu cuenta. La caja se paga sola en 9 meses y luego corre gratis por el resto de su vida.

Instala Ollama. Descarga Qwen3 235B. Apunta Claude Code a localhost. La misma interfaz que ya usas, excepto que ahora nada sale de tu máquina, nada cuesta por solicitud y ninguna empresa limita tu uso a las 3 de la mañana cuando por fin tienes tiempo para construir.

Este es el momento en que todas las suscripciones de IA se vuelven opcionales. Los abogados dejan de temer fugas de OpenAI. Los desarrolladores dejan de mirar el medidor de tokens. Los fundadores dejan de alquilar H100s para prototipos que nunca se envían porque la factura los asustó.

Las primeras mil personas en descifrar esto poseerán los próximos dos años de consultoría de IA privada.

What do the CEO of Snowflake, the CTO of Vercel, the VP of Cursor, and I have in common?

We're all speaking at Snowflake Dev Day on June 4.

Alongside:

The founder of Factory.

The Head of Developer Experience at OpenAI.

The founder of CrewAI.

The GP of Blitzscaling Ventures.

The career ladder everyone grew up climbing doesn't really exist anymore.

The job market is rough, and AI isn't just helping us work, it's starting to do the work.

So we're doing something about it.

My session is an open AMA: Grow Your Career in the Age of AI.

Arnon Geshuri, Snowflake's Chief People Officer, is leading our panel. Voices from venture capital, academia, and the economy, getting real about what's changing, what to learn, and where the opportunities are.

Come with your real questions.

This is the room I've been working toward for years.

We're building an AI-native GTM services company.

Claude Code has become a huge part of it.

My last post was about how we're building our Company OS on GitHub.

And how that's powering ops through Claude Code.

The post got 100k+ impressions.

Tons of people asked me how to set it up themselves.

So I decided to put together...

The Claude + GitHub Company OS Starter Kit:

- How to get started on Cursor (Notion guide)
- Company OS blueprint
- Full folder structure + .md guides
- Workflows GTM Engineering plugin
- Base set of GTM skills (outbound copywriter, LinkedIn post writer, ICP modelling, GTM strategy, discovery prep)

This is how I would start if I was rebuilding from scratch.

Comment "OS" and I'll send it over.

shape.

Why am I telling you this?

Because standards shape your life for yourself on what you want, don't want, and what you will and will not tolerate.

And to be honest I didn't even know this was a standard of mine until recently.

I value health greatly so it makes sense why it's a standard.

And it got me thinking.

If people want to live rich lives they need standards in ALL areas of their lives for themselves and others.

Standard for income, friends, dating, health, how people treat them, etc.

This is what shapes your life and if you don't have them you will accept less than you deserve or want.

Really think about it...

NEVER use GPT for cold emails again...

The new Gemini 3 prompt can write you a sequence in minutes

Most reps struggle with booking meetings through email

→ Generic templates that feel spammy

→ Follow-ups nobody responds to → Dry pipeline

I just built a prompt for Gemini 3 based on real sequences from 1000s of emails in my community that get upwards of 8% reply rates on cold emails.

The capabilities are insane:

→ Writes full sequences instantly

→ Creates followups people actually respond to

→ Leads with value, not desperation for another deal

This isn't just theory - I've used this system across multiple industries with the reps I coach.

The best part?

It costs $0 and can d this in minutes isnetad of spending hours trying to write effective messaging.

I've included everything in the library:

Give people a chance.

Finding someone who can "hit the ground running" is unrealistic.

It's vital to have a long-term focus in hiring.

You should be investing in potential.

After all, the best employees positively impact your:

 Team morale & wellbeing

 Collaboration & productivity

 Collective growth & development

If you're looking for employees who will make a difference...

Here are the key qualities to look out for:

Adapts quickly to change

Assesses risks logically

Stays calm under pressure

Balances creativity with logic

Learns and grows from setbacks

Seeks to understand before acting

Takes ownership of personal growth

Asks insightful, critical questions

Turns ideas into actionable results

Focuses on long-term customer value

Achieves goals with minimal guidance

Communicates openly and constructively

The Global Family Office List

Most founders chase the same two investor buckets: VCs or Angels.

But there's a third one that's been quietly writing a LOT of cheques lately: Family offices.

Private capital. Deep pockets. Long time horizons. No fund cycles. No "we need to return the fund." No rush to exit.

Which means they can:

- back niche ideas that don't fit a "theme"

- spend real time with founders

- stay involved beyond the first cheque

- bring operator DNA + serious networks

This week I built The Global Family Office List:

Not one massive messy database.

A curated map of the best family office lists, organised by where they actively invest (not where they're headquartered).

Markets covered:

us USA

That's the road to burnout.

So be a little goofy.

Not clown goofy.

Goofy like you're having fun.
Loose instead of rigid.
A person instead of a pitch.

A gatekeeper once asked who I was with.

I said, "I'm with Jenna. We've been married 21 years. Who are you with?"

She warmed up and said, "Frank. 24 years."

Another time I could hear an admin eating on the other end. She was in California.

So I said, "Is that avocado toast I hear? Doesn't everyone in California eat avocado toast?"

I think she spit it out. It was, in fact, avocado toast.

Push the boundaries of being professional.

Take the work seriously.

Take yourself a lot less so.

Lack of growth
Lack of support

How can employers stop their top talent from leaving?!

➡ Don't promote or tolerate bad behaviour

Ensure consistent training for leaders and managers.
When someone exhibits toxic behaviour, do NOT promote them.
Don't just watch for results, look for how your leaders are making people feel.

➡ Pay your team fairly

Pay people fairly and on time ALWAYS.
Most people prefer better pay over perks.
If you don't pay them what they deserve, someone else will.

➡ Work on your culture

Actively listen to your team.
Build on the values and beliefs they want.
It's not just buying a meditation subscription.

➡ Talk about growth opportunities.

Ask questions about your team's future desires.
Provide them with a clear path of growth.
A good leader knows where their team wants to go.

➡ Communicate effectively.

Ensure open and honest communication consistently.

Regularly ask for feedback on your current support system.
Your team should always feel comfortable asking for support.

Don't let your best people walk away.

dedicas a la #comunicación

El otro día fui a un evento organizado por Qonto en Aticco Workspaces en el que Pau García-Milà nos mostró muchas herramientas que usan IA para agilizar sus funciones. Estas son las que encontré mas útiles para alguien que se dedica a comunicación :

1 #ChatGPT (el más popular) es un modelo de lenguaje natural basado en inteligencia artificial que puede responder preguntas y generar texto de manera autónoma, lo que lo hace una herramienta útil para la creación de contenido y la interacción con los usuarios en línea.

2 Canva por otro lado, es una herramienta de diseño gráfico que utiliza inteligencia artificial para ayudar a los usuarios a crear diseños de calidad profesional con facilidad. Ahora puedes convertir un texto en imagen en un segundo con su generador de imágenes con #IA

3 Mixo este es el que encontré más increíble. Con solo una descripción o un brief de tu negocio te crea una página web con contenido y todo en segundos. Heavy

4 Tome este es un creador de presentaciones que con Inteligencia Artificial podrás tener una presentación completa sobre un tema en particular en segundos. Acabo de probarla y con solo poner "how to use LinkedIn" me creó una presentación con 8 diapositivas sobre este tema.

Cuéntame si sabes otras plataformas!

I book 270 sales calls per month with cold email.

Here are the 4 benchmarks I use to decide whether to cut or scale a cold email campaign

#1 The volume of cold emails you're sending.

You can't come to any conclusions without sending a minimum of 500 emails.

Anything less means your sample size is too small to draw out anything meaningful Usually after about 500 sends, rates start to stabilise. So... get to 500 first, before you make any bigs calls!

#2 maintaining a 60% open rate

If you're seeing below 60% in a campaign then there are two things you can address immediately

> Subject Line

 Kai Brandt

Silicon Valley is cool. But have you seen what's happening in Europe?

Startups in the EU are leveling up, very fast.

VC funding is flowing. Infrastructure is stronger. Local ecosystems are maturing.

Some trends I'm loving right now:

- More startup hubs across cities beyond London, Berlin, Paris
- EU funds and local governments pushing deep tech and AI
- Talent is less "exported" and more "homegrown"
- Global founders choosing to stay in Europe (or return)
- European products solving globally relevant problems

The narrative is changing: Europe is not a founder exporting country.
It's becoming a powerhouse.

En el pasado perdí más ventas por NO entender estas objeciones... que por cualquier competidor.

Hoy te dejo lo que realmente significan (y por qué te frenan tanto).

1 "Es muy caro."

→ No ven suficiente valor.

2 "Necesitamos pensarlo."

→ No generaste urgencia ni convicción.

3 "Envíame más información."

→ Es un cierre educado de la conversación.

4 "Estamos contentos con nuestra solución actual."

→ No mostraste por qué cambiar vale la pena.

5 "Ahora no tenemos presupuesto."

→ No es lo suficientemente importante para asignarle dinero.

6 "Llárame el próximo trimestre."

→ Están posponiendo porque no están convencidos.

7 "Tengo que comentarlo con mi equipo."

→ No generaste consenso interno.

8 "Esto no es una prioridad en este momento."

→ No lo conectaste con lo que sí es prioridad hoy.

9 "Solo estamos recopilando información."

→ No hay intención de compra... todavía.

10 "Necesitamos más tiempo para evaluar."

→ Falta claridad, urgencia o alineación interna.

Estas son las frases que enfrían tus deals...

Pero también son las que, si entiendes bien, pueden volverte imparable en 2026.

> Bounces

Subject lines are market specific so you'll need to split-test depending on the industry you're targeting.

But my best performers are:

- Thoughts {{first name}}?

- Quick Question

Track & scale your best performers

With bounces, anything over 5% is indicative of:

> Not setting up SPF, DKIM, DMARC

> Blacklisted

> Poor list quality

Use these tools to make sure your back-end is set up properly... Use GlockApps or Mail-Test to manage deliverability. And verify your leads with a tool like Neverbounce

#3 Maintaining a reply rate between 3%-10%

Anything on the low-end of this or even below is typically because of:

> Bad Copywriting

> Targeting is off

> The offer doesn't resonate

Bad copywriting usually comes from a lack of personalization or your script doesn't address a pain point

And many startups are leading the way:

Lovable, Mistral AI, Zalando, TravelPerk, Qonto, Personio, Job&Talent, Intercom, bunq, Pipedrive, Klarna, N26, Cabify, Bolt, Factorial, Revolut, PayFit, Fenergo, Sinch, Vinted, GoStudent, Adyen, Celonis, Bitpanda, Glovo, Booking.com, Contentful and more.

If you're building in Europe, reshare this for visibility.

🔗 Why did this work?

Controversy

- > Use carpet-bomb semi personalised lines by segmenting by industry or product
- > Keep your scripts short
- > Keep it relevant

Bad targeting can happen when you scrape a massive list of a lead database and mass blasting cold emails in the hopes you'll sign your next 2K retainer

Instead:

- > Segment by location
- > Segment by specific market
- > Only scrape DMs
- > Send to fresh leads when you can

When it comes to the offer

You're not selling through the email, you're selling the call. So focus on their pain than the logistics of what your offer is.

I,e - the quantifiable result in a specific timeframe that your prospect can expect to receive

#4 Converting 50% of the positive responses you get into calls

We're talking about leads that have shown interest in some way.

If you're using a Direct CTA (i,e, "let's explore this further on a call?")... You should expect to convert at

50%

Anything less is indicative of bad follow-up.

Cold email follow up worst practices:

- > being slow to respond
- > Giving up (not sending enough follow ups)

Not following up until you get that definitive answer is costing you thousands in lost deals...and you don't even realise..

BONUS:

If you want a video cheat that you can use when benchmarking your cold email campaigns

Comment "yes" below and I'll DM you the video (must follow or I can't DM)

BREAKING: I'm sharing The Sequoia AI Ascent Deck (20 slides) and it's one of the clearest "maps" of the AI transition right now 🗺️

What stands out when you study it:

1 It defines AI in a way that actually helps builders:

Hace un mes falleció mi padre.
Un jueves por la mañana.
El entierro fue el viernes a las 11:00.

Muchos amigos no pudieron venir.

No porque no quisieran,
sino porque era viernes, horario laboral,
y, para venir, tenían que pedir permiso.

Curiosamente, muchos de los que sí pudieron venir...
eran autónomos.

Unos días después, pensándolo con calma, me di cuenta (otra vez) de por qué emprendo:

↳ Emprendo para poder estar cuando toca estar.
↳ Para no tener que pedir permiso si a un amigo o familiar le pasa algo.
↳ Para tener tiempo y libertad cuando realmente importa.

Sí, hay días de mierda.
Emprender es jodido.

Pero cuando pasan cosas así... me acuerdo de por qué empecé.

Este es uno de mis motores para emprender.

soap box, clear my throat, and whisper into the abyss, "All marketing is account based marketing."

It's just a matter of whether Marketing and Sales are intentional about it or not.

I believe this to be true so much so that, in a previous role, my entire campaign and programs team was an ABM team. I hired account-based marketers and retitled them into campaign managers because I wanted to break down the wall between marketing and ABM.

I also insisted (and still insist) on calling it ABX (Account Based marketing X selling) because this marketing approach only turns into revenue if sales is 100% partnered on the work.

I've noticed there's an expectation on the Marketing side for bespoke messaging, creative, campaigns, and tactics in order to be perceived as doing ABM well. But from my experience, it's often more efficient (and just as effective) to apply a similar treatment across all ABM accounts, even the 1:1
ones. When Marketers realize this, it takes a lot of the pressure off of the ABM program to be this whole thing and frees up a lot of brain space to focus on doing great marketing that real humans engage with.

March: $34,000 from LinkedIn DMs
April: $27,000 from LinkedIn DMs
May: $29,000 from LinkedIn DMs

3 months. $90,000 closed won revenue. Half of our

And here's the crazy part:

We have a system to do this every single month.

10% that works)

- The psychology behind replies (what makes

And it's FREE (for now).

The great-equalizer story about AI is going to age badly.

How is it possible that two people, same model and same prompt, get completely different output from AI?

Over the past two years, I've watched two waves play out:

Wave 1: AI as democratizer

Everyone gets the same capabilities, the gap between users narrows over time

Wave 2: AI as amplifier

Same tool, very different output (sometimes by an order of magnitude), and the spread between the top and the rest keeps widening.

The differentiator? It lives in the context behind every prompt, because AI is exactly as powerful as the data you let it work with.

 Why did this work?

Picture this: agents that plug into every place your customer context already lives, and keep it available and persistent across every interaction.

I mean:

- Email history
- GTM signals
- LinkedIn engagement
- Product usage
- Call recordings
- Support tickets

Those agents aggregate the data from all those sources, build a full customer memory, and surface AI-opinionated guidance for the rep about to make the next move.

That's the shape of what's coming.

Most salespeople SUCK at prospecting.

The main reason?

Because they're playing the game... without knowing the rules.

Let me show you how it really works

Here are the 10 Rules of Prospecting:

- 1 Stop asking for permission
Be direct and ask for what you want AKA the meeting!
- 2 Money talks
Your pitch must have how you are either saving the money or helping them make more
- 3 Don't wing it
Have a script. Always.
- 4 Must have high intensity
Takes 7-11 touches on average to book a meeting.
You should be doing at least 3-4 touch points in an account per day. This is how accelerate the time to Instantly.ai just announced one of the biggest evolutions in outreach ever, AI Sales Agent.

- 2) Enriches every leads
- 3) Drafts well written emails for every lead
- 4) And follows up automatically to book calls.

I've been testing this for a month, on a smaller scale.
I did nothing but add our emails accounts and it booked real calls. It works better than I imagined, I can't wait to scale this more.

The 2 pager memo this startup used to raise $3.5M preseed from the investors of Lovable, N8N and Personio

Omnia just closed their first round led by Visionaries Club (who also backed Miro, Personio, n8n, and Lovable).

But here's the twist:
They never used a pitch deck.
They raised the entire round with a 2-page memo.

The memo is the perfect example of how clarity and narrative can replace slides.

Here's what founders will learn from reading it:
- How to describe a market shift so obvious investors can't unsee it.
- How to write a narrative that replaces a deck and makes investors read every line.
- How to show execution and ambition in one page without bragging.
- How to make your product sound inevitable.

If you're raising pre-seed or seed, this is probably the best 2-pager I've seen in years.

book a meeting!

5 Don't take anything personal
Being hung up on is normal. Keep going and call them back the next day. Persistence is key!

6 Tonality matters
How you say it = everything. Stop sounding weak and desperate.

7 Your body talks too
They feel your energy

8 Do NOT take no for an answer
Objections are a smoke screen. It's not about saying the perfect phrase to overcome them. It's about not freezing up and persisting until you get the yes!

9 You are not selling your services
You are selling THE MEETING. Remember that!

10 Have the right mindset
Think they are lucky you are reaching out to them to help them

Follow these 10 simple rules and watch what happens!

🔥🔥 ESTO TIENE QUE PARAR, ¡VOLVAMOS A SER CREATIVOS! 🔥🔥

De verdad no miden la cantidad de posters que veo hechos por IA, que literalmente ya ni siquiera los leo porque siento que todos se ven igual 😞

Claro que la IA es una herramienta buenísima que nos ayuda para muchísimas cosas pero de verdad este tipo de contenido hecho por IA no me transmite nada, no me hace ver y sentir realmente a la marca 🙄

Entiendo el hecho de que negocios pequeños la utilicen porque muchas veces el presupuesto es mas limitado pero se los juro que hay plantillas de canva padrísimas completamente gratis que puedes volar tu imaginación 🤩

Yo no soy diseñadora, pero si creo contenido y a lo mejor yo no tengo el mejor diseño, la mejor plantilla o las mejores imágenes pero se los juro que cada contenido que subo trato de mostrar mi personalidad y mi esencia ❤️

Lo que realmente hace que una marca destaque es tener una idea propia y una diferenciación, porque cuando todos hacen lo mismo ahí es donde se va perdiendo la creatividad ⚠️

¿Tu que opinas sobre este tema? ME ENCANTARÍA

Your ICP is not a persona slide.
It's a lot of things.

But the first thing it is? A scoring system.

Can't score a company 0 to 100 on fit? Then you don't have an ICP. You have an opinion.

Here's how to build one today.

Step 1. Score your best customers.

Open your CRM. Top 20 accounts. Not biggest logos. Best behavior.

Rate each one, 1 to 5:
Revenue. Velocity. Time to impact. Feature depth. How easy they are to work with.

Multiply. Sort. Your top 20% just showed you what ideal looks like.

Step 2. Find the pattern.

What do those top accounts have in common?

Firmographics. Industry, size, geo.
Technographics. What tools they run.
Signals. What happened before they bought.

5 to 8 attributes that keep repeating. That's your scoring criteria.

Step 3. Weight it.

Not everything matters equally. Industry match might be 25 points. Revenue range 20. Tech stack 15. Signals 15.

Here's what most people miss. Different customer types need different weights. A TripAdvisor rating predicts buying behavior for a small restaurant. Means nothing for a PE-backed chain. Multiple segments? Multiple weight models.

Score out of 100.

Step 4. Tier your list.

Tier 1 (80+): Looks like your best customers.
Tier 2 (50 to 79): Good fit. Some gaps.
Tier 3 (below 50): Not now.

What you do with each tier is a different post. This one is about the score.

Now the hard part. The smaller you are, the narrower tier 1 should be. At €1M ARR you don't need 5,000 tier 1 accounts. You need 50.

But at that stage you have less data. Maybe 15 customers, not 500. Your model is more hypothesis than proof.

That's fine. Start with 10. Iterate every quarter.

Step 5. Validate across the whole journey.

Your scoring model is a hypothesis. Here's how you prove it.

Map these cycles per tier:
MQL to SQL time.
SQL to Win time.
Win to Onboard time.
Time to first impact.
Time to full impact.

Those are your actual validation cycles. If tier 1 accounts move faster, onboard smoother, and reach full impact sooner, your model works.

If not, adjust the weights. Check every quarter.

Homework: pull your top 10 customers. Score them. What do the top 5 have in common that the bottom 5 don't?

That's your scoring model v1.

Cold call > Cold email.

Here's 3 reasons why:

1. 69% of c-suite buyers prefer to start conversations with sales people via calls.
- Your buyers prefer this channel. Use it.
2. Only 34% of SDRs & AEs rely on cold calls to book new appointments.
- It's a quieter channel than email so you can stand out more here.
3. 78% of buyers report a stronger rapport with sellers where the appointment was booked via the telephone.
- It's your chance to build more trust and deepen your prospect relationships.

I get it...

- It's boring to dial
- Pick-ups rates are 3-5%
- It's scary when someone answers
- 95% of calls end with-in 30 seconds

But the data doesn't lie.

If you do one or the other.

Después de reclamarlas me han reconocido que tengo razón y que me tienen que devolver el dinero (aún no me han pagado)

Pues hoy me levanto y la cornada es un poco más leve pero también me han cobrado 4 coutas de autónomo, tres de ellas de 2020.

En total me han quitado de mi cuenta casi 2.000€ sin tener razón y muchas horas de mi tiempo haciendo la reclamaciones.

¿Hasta cuándo vamos aguantar esto?

And I'd do it again.

What struck me wasn't the price.

There is a popular belief today that you can create brilliance by gathering a crowd on beanbags and having a "happy-clappy" meeting. You can't.

The idea that you can suddenly be creative at ten o'clock on a Thursday morning just because you've attended a meeting is ridiculous. Creativity doesn't work like that. Too much thinking in a group setting jeopardizes the creative process, slowing or stopping your imagination and emotions from exploring every possibility out there.

Collaboration has its place, but it can easily turn into consensus. And consensus rapidly becomes ordinary.

Prefiero un negocio más pequeño.

Menos empleados. Más libertad.

Cada día es más difícil.

- Regulaciones.
- Burocracia infinita.
- Y un sistema de pago de nómina que hace creer que el dinero se lo queda la empresa.

Mi propuesta para solucionar al menos esto último.

Un simple cambio.

- El trabajador recibe en su cuenta el 100% de su salario.
- Ese mismo día, el Estado le quita la parte de impuestos que le corresponde.

Nada más. Transparencia total.

No estoy pidiendo bajar impuestos. Solo cambiar cómo se pagan.

¿Qué pasaría si cada trabajador viera exactamente cuánto dinero se lleva el Estado? Te leo en comentarios

Every AE he worked with? Loved him.

He never complained, never made a fuss when he had a bad day or bad week. He just took account and started the next day fresh.

He was quiet.
He was consistent.
He was a huge introvert.

My point...

The best SDRs aren't all "extroverts who played team sports". That's a myth.

The truth?

The best SDRs are all different. There isn't one magical profile. Some are extroverts. Some are introverts. Some are in the middle.

The thing they share? The will to win. They take accountability for their sh*t and they keep showing up daily with a can-do attitude.

It's their mindset that sets them apart not how loud or flashy they are.

To all the introverts out there...

It doesn't matter if you're the silent type or the SDR who posts memes in the slack channel.

What matters is you get results.

Do you agree?

 Anna Bayón Orcajo

LinkedIn no solo está creciendo, también está cambiando. Si quieres destacar este 2025, aquí tienes las claves que necesitas saber:

 Datos clave:

- ↳ 1.050 millones de usuarios globales y 112 millones en Hispanoamérica.
- ↳ Pero... ¡solo 1 de cada 50 personas publica contenido regularmente! (el 1,2%).

 ¿Qué formatos funcionan mejor?

1. Vídeos verticales: Son los reyes del alcance.
2. Imágenes + un buen copy: Perfectos para conectar.
3. Documentos PDF: Ideales para contenido educativo o técnico.

 Impacto profesional:

 Henry Jiménez

ChatGPT, Gemini o Claude.

La pregunta no es cuál es mejor. si te gusta esto aprende a lider la IA en nuestra comunidad de 200k suscriptores <https://lnkd.in/dzxBrprJ>

Esa pregunta está mal planteada.

La pregunta buena es:

*¿Cuál uso para esta tarea concreta?

Porque este es el error que veo todo el tiempo.

Alguno de vosotros abris siempre la misma IA por costumbre, le pide cualquier cosa y luego dice:

"Esto no me sirve."

 Douwe Wester

I've run this process with 3 B2B TEAMS in the last 2 MONTHS.

None of them had structured case studies.
No consistent testimonials.
No SPICED layer inside their CRM.

Most founder-led SaaS think they know their customer.

So they write messaging from their own perspective.
They qualify leads on firmographics.
They score accounts based on company size and industry.

Not on pain.
Not on impact.

↳ Cada hora se envían 540.000 aplicaciones de empleo y se realizan 4.200 contrataciones.
↳ 67 millones de empresas tienen página y publican para atraer talento.

4 ¿Cómo se comportan los usuarios?

↳ Abren LinkedIn 36 veces al mes.
↳ El 57% del tráfico es móvil, así que optimiza para este formato.

5 Las páginas de empresa siguen siendo clave:

↳ Publicar semanalmente en tu página de empresa genera 5 veces más visualizaciones y 11 veces más clics.
↳ El 30% del engagement viene de empleados interactuando con contenido corporativo.

Resumen:

- 👉 Si tu contenido no es visualmente atractivo en móvil, perderás visibilidad.
- 👉 Hay más consumidores que creadores. Es el momento de aprovechar la oportunidad de ser visible.
- 👉 Adapta tu contenido al formato que mejor resuene con tu público.
- 👉 Si tienes una página, involucra a tus empleados para amplificar el alcance.

Y el que no quieres escuchar:

- 🔥 Si no estás publicando, estás perdiendo visibilidad.
- 🔥 LinkedIn está lleno de oportunidades para quienes saben aprovechar sus herramientas.
- 🔥 No necesitas hacerlo perfecto desde el principio, solo necesitas empezar.

LinkedIn es más competitivo que nunca, pero

Normal.

No todas las tareas necesitan el mismo modelo.

No es lo mismo redactar un post, analizar un contrato, buscar información actualizada, trabajar con documentos largos, crear una imagen o preparar una clase.

Cada herramienta tiene su terreno.

Claude lo usaría cuando necesito pensar con más profundidad.

- Documentos largos, análisis complejo, escritura cuidada, informes, propuestas, contratos, razonamiento paso a paso o trabajo con mucho contexto.

Ahí Claude suele ir muy fino.

#Gemini lo usaría cuando necesito moverme cerca de Google.

- Búsqueda, Gmail, Docs, Drive, YouTube, datos, información actualizada o trabajo donde la conexión con el ecosistema Google pesa más que la creatividad pura.

No siempre es el que mejor escribe, pero en ciertos flujos encaja muy bien.

ChatGPT lo usaría cuando necesito versatilidad.

Idear, explicar, estructurar, crear borradores, trabajar piezas visuales, generar imágenes, preparar

Not on situation.
Not on critical events.

This is how you end up with:

- Multiple ICPs depending on who you ask
- A website that sounds fine but does not convert
- Sales calls that feel good but do not compound
- A pipeline that looks active but behaves randomly

Especially in PLG, where real customer conversations are limited.

If you are not collecting structured insight, you are projecting your own thinking onto the market.

And projection is not strategy.

What you actually want:

- Clear qualification criteria based on real buying signals.
- Messaging that uses your customer's language.
- Content built around real decision triggers.
- A CRM that captures situation, pain, impact, and critical events.

You want your GTM to feel explainable, not accidental.

So we did one thing.

We interviewed their best customers properly.

Not a casual "how do you like the product?" call.

A structured conversation that uncovered:

también está lleno de oportunidades para quienes se adaptan y crean contenido estratégicamente.

contenidos o resolver tareas generales.

Es muy buena navaja suiza.

Pero una navaja suiza no siempre es la mejor herramienta para operar a corazón abierto, ya me entendéis.

La clave no está en casarte con una IA.

La clave está en tener criterio.

Si necesitas profundidad: Claude.

Si necesitas Google e información: Gemini.

Si necesitas creatividad, imagen y versatilidad: ChatGPT.

Antes de elegir modelo, pregúntate:

- ¿Qué quiero conseguir?
- ¿Necesito contexto actualizado?
- ¿Voy a trabajar con archivos?
- ¿Necesito razonar o producir rápido?
- ¿Quiero precisión, creatividad o estructura?

Eso es usar IA generativa de verdad.

No abrir una herramienta y rezar.

Porque el problema de muchas empresas no es que usen poca IA.

Es que la usan sin mapa.

Y sin mapa, hasta la mejor herramienta acaba siendo otro juguete más.

- What was happening before
- What created urgency
- What alternatives were considered
- What nearly blocked the deal
- What changed after implementation

Three things happened:

Their ICP sharpened.
Qualification became signal-based.
Messaging improved immediately.

If you are running a €1-5M B2B company and you do not have structured customer interviews feeding your CRM, that is likely your next move.

I built the full interview structure and copy workflow into two GPTs.

BREAKING: YC & Sequoia are pointing at the same massive opportunity: The next $1T company might be an AI-NATIVE Agency 🤖

For years, the default playbook was simple: build software for agencies.

Now the smarter move may be: build the agency itself, rebuilt from scratch with AI.

That is the shift YC is quietly pointing to in its Spring 2026 requests.

Jan Benedikt Mundorf

A sales team in 2026 (cold calling edition)

Manager: "Did you cold call them?"

SDR: emailed.

AE: LinkedIn'd.

Manager: "No... did you CALL them?"

Team: suddenly very focused on "multi-channel strategy."

Cold calls avoided like mandatory office fun.
Manager's hairline in aggressive retreat.

Stuart Taylor

Sales is the hardest job in any company.

Not physically of course, but mentally and emotionally.

Here's why:

1. You're judged on outcomes, not effort. You can work harder than anyone else in the business and still miss. No one asks how hard you tried. They ask if you hit the number.

And it fits perfectly with Sequoia's thesis: the next $1T company may not sell software. It may sell the work.

Most founders are still thinking about:

- AI tools
- copilots
- assistants
- software that helps people work faster

But the bigger opportunity may be: AI-Native Service Companies.

I broke this down in detail, including:

- YC's AI-native agency thesis
- why this model can work so well now
- the difference between AI in agencies vs AI-native agencies
- which categories get disrupted first
- 15 startups already moving in this direction

 Why did this work?

Belonging

2. You start every month at zero. Last quarter you're a hero. This quarter there are talks of a PIP.

3. You need thick skin. You have to handle more rejection than anyone else in the business. Or worse, you get ghosted.

4. You own things you can't fully control. Pricing, product gaps, brand perception, timing, budget freezes, legal, procurement. Still your fault when you miss your number.

5. Your performance is public. Leaderboards. Forecast calls. Pipeline reviews. The whole company sees your wins and losses.

6. You have to keep showing up. You lose the biggest deal of your career and you're still expected to be sharp on the next call.

7. You carry pressure for the rest of the business. No revenue means no hires, no marketing budget, no roadmap, no growth. Sales carries the weight.

8. The goalposts move all the time. Quotas go up. Territories change. ICP shifts. Pricing changes. Change is the only constant.

9. You're expected to be resilient and empathetic. Push for a deal while building trust. Create urgency without pressure. Be nice, but don't have a need for approval.

10. You're never really off. Deals live in your head. Forecasts follow you home.

Sometimes I wonder why we do this to ourselves.

Enzo Cavalie

Entró a Mercado Libre como programador a sus 20s. Hoy es COO.

Y ayudó a convertirla en la empresa tech más valiosa de LatAm.

Estas son las 10 lecciones que aprendió Daniel Rabinovich en el camino. 📌

1. Sé siempre el peor del grupo → Ponerte en situaciones donde eres el que menos sabe te da una fuente inagotable de progreso.
2. Recorre todas las "autopistas" que puedas → Aspira a ser un polímata. No te especialices en una sola cosa; el arte, la ciencia y el deporte se tocan y se potencian entre sí.
3. Cultiva el rasgo obsesivo → El estado de "lock-in" (hiper-foco) es un superpoder. Hay cosas que solo se aprenden con repetición intensiva, no con 15 minutos al día.

4. No imites a otros líderes → Pregúntate: "¿Por qué alguien me daría pelota a Mí?" El liderazgo no es un checklist, es una pregunta que interpela.
5. Muestra el resultado, no la metodología → A nadie le importa si usaste AI, Agile o Blockchain. El único juicio que vale es si el usuario te elige.
6. Simplifica hasta que duela → La perfección se logra cuando no hay nada más que quitarle. En MeLi tiraron 100,000 líneas de especificación y reescribieron con 90% menos.
7. La IA no cambia la estrategia, multiplica la ejecución → Las apuestas se siguen basando en la inteligencia humana, pero ahora IA permite que una persona haga el trabajo que antes hacían miles.
8. Celebra en pasado, enfócate en futuro → Nunca digas "nos va bien." Di "nos fue bien." El único foco es el próximo partido.
9. Distingue "leer" de "haber leído" → ¿Te gusta el trabajo o te gusta contar que trabajas en X? El ego te puede desviar sin que te des cuenta.
10. Trabaja tu ego como si fuera un músculo → El inner work define carreras. La reflexión sobre la propia felicidad y las verdaderas motivaciones es lo que más impacto tuvo en sus decisiones.

Me esperaba hablar de IA y tecnología, y me fui con aprendizajes de carrera, liderazgo y ego.

Hoy desmonto perfiles de LinkedIn gratis. Sí, LinkedIn va a arder un rato 🧨

Veo los mismos errores en el 85% de perfiles B2B:

- Titular genérico
- Foto de portada sin propuesta de valor
- Sección "Acerca de" escrita como un CV de 2015
- Sección "Destacado" llena de posts virales que no venden
- Cero cliente ideal definido, hablándole a todo el mundo a la vez

Tu perfil tendría que vender por ti mientras duermes.

La mayoría solo dice dónde has trabajado. Y luego nos quejamos de que LinkedIn "no funciona".

Funciona. El problema es que tratas tu perfil como un CV cuando debería ser una página web que genera clientes 24/7.

November: $41,000 from LinkedIn DMs
December: $30,000 from LinkedIn DMs
January: $47,000 from LinkedIn DMs

3 months. $118,000 closed won revenue. 50%+ of our revenue from LinkedIn.
And here's the crazy part:

We have a system to do this every single month.

I documented our LinkedIn DM templates:

- Why 90% of outreach fails (and how to be in the 10% that works)
- The psychology behind replies (what makes people actually respond)
- The Smart Outreach Formula that turns cold messages into conversations

This is the same guide that transformed our DMs from nothing to real revenue.

🚀 Google se ha marcado un señor movimiento con la IA y supera por ahora a #chatgpt ... y esto puede agilizar vuestro curro pero bien.

Pero primero si queréis aprender de IA de verdad suscribíos aquí

<https://lnkd.in/dzxBrprJ>

Vamos a dejarnos de historias fantásticas y empezar el último mes del año 2025 para aprovechar la pelea de titanes!

Google ha soltado 12 herramientas de IA gratuitas y, siendo claros, esto es de esas cosas que te arreglan la jornada cuando te manejas con mil tareas y cero ganas de perder tiempo en chorradas.

La película es sencilla:

llevamos meses viendo herramientas de IA por todas partes, unas buenas, otras un bluff, y muchas

Llevo tiempo optimizando el mío como si fuera un embudo de ventas B2B.
Entran leads sin que yo mande un solo mensaje.

Hoy me siento generoso. Hagamos esto rápido:

Entro a tu perfil y te respondo aquí mismo, en público, con 3 mejoras concretas sobre:

- Tu titular
- Tu foto de portada
- Tu sección de "Destacado"

Así de fácil. Sin mensajes privados, sin vídeos raros. Análisis público y al grano.

¿Listo?

Comenta "desmonta" + tu departamento y te respondo.

Sin postureos. Sin numeritos. Funciona y punto.

- App Builder te deja montar apps sin picar ni una línea de código, como quien se hace un bocata de calamares.

Nada de fuegos artificiales.

I'm deleting 10,000+ LinkedIn connections.

Here's why:

I hit the 30k connection limit and realized most of them don't see my content and I don't see theirs. The algorithm buries us to each other.

I'm shouting into a void of people I haven't talked to since high school or past jobs. They're doing the same to me.

So I'm trimming down to the community I'm actually building with - people in the trenches of revenue, growth, and go-to-market. Founders building the future of their spaces.

It's not personal. It's about making this platform work.

Resonance > noise.

(Using LeadDelta to bulk remove because doing it one by one was brutal. No affiliation.)

Community is the ultimate leverage.

Mucho hablar del empresario. Poco de esto.

¿Te imaginas que yo, como empresario, obligara a un trabajador a estar 24 horas seguidas sin dormir y a trabajar 100 horas a la semana?

Me llamarían "explotador" para arriba.

Pero si lo hace lo Público con los médicos y otros profesionales sanitarios, entonces miramos para otro lado y lo llamamos "vocación".

Como emprendedor, me hierve la sangre cuando escucho que somos nosotros los que "exprimimos" a la gente.

Pero luego casi nadie habla de que las guardias de 24 horas siguen siendo normales.

Normales.

Cuando estar 24 horas despierto reduce el rendimiento cognitivo a niveles comparables a una alcoholemia de 1 g/L.

El doble del límite legal para conducir.

Creo que deberíamos preocuparnos menos de señalar al que crea empleo y exigir más coherencia en cómo se gestiona lo público.

Pero esta es solo mi humilde opinión.

Lisbon 2019: Job van der Voort and I had no office, no funding, and no team. What we had was first-hand experience watching global HR break companies from the inside. Job helped define remote work at GitLab. I'd spent years at Unbabel Jobs built the vision. Cook built the machine. Now the person who built the actual hardware takes the seat.

Does Ternus have what it takes to take Apple to $5T?

watching great engineers slip through the cracks because nobody could figure out how to pay them legally.

The playbook for this didn't exist.

We still remember the early days:

The first entity. Our first customer. The first payroll run where we triple-checked every, single, number, because there was no system to catch our mistakes.

Today, we're 7 years and billions in processed payroll later - we operate across 160+ countries.

People ask what changed since that living room: Scale.

The architecture is different. The team is global. The numbers have more zeros.

What hasn't changed is the conviction that where you live shouldn't determine whether you get hired.

What started over a good conversation in Lisbon I still think about when I walk into work - (down the hall, past the kitchen).

And Kit throws up a paywall:

"Upgrade to Pro to export."

$2,490 a year.

Translation:

"If you want access to your own work, that'll be an extra thousand bucks a year."

There's something gross about that.

Not annoying.

Not inconvenient.

Gross.

Any platform that locks creators out of their own content isn't a partner.

It's a landlord charging rent on the house you built with your own hands.

This isn't "Creator Pro."

This is "Creator Pay More."

And once a company shows you how they see you, not as a customer, but as a captive revenue line, you don't unsee it.

If my content needs an escape hatch, something's wrong.

I'm out.

Has a platform ever tried to charge you for your own work?

Misma postura.

Eso no es moda.

Es percepción.

Ahora cámbialo por negocios:

- Branding

- Packaging

- Diseño

- Presentaciones

- UX

No siempre necesitas cambiar el producto.

A veces solo necesitas cambiar las líneas.

El diseño no decora.

Decide.

Why did this work?

Why did this work?

Controversy

Romuald Fons

¿Tu equipo baja a fumar cada dos por tres? ¿Les pones cámaras para ver si trabajan? ¿Haces que graben sus pantallas? Tienes un problema.

En mi caso, cuando empecé, contrataba por intuición, por simpatía o llámalo como quieras.

Éramos 10 o 12 personas y todo iba bien, todo era ágil y éramos bastante productivos.

Pero cuando en muy poco tiempo pasamos a ser más de 30 personas en la empresa el ambiente ya era otro.

Había gente que hablaba más de lo que trabajaba, que bajaba a fumar cada dos por tres o que directamente no entendía lo que estábamos construyendo.

Pero es imposible controlar eso, ni meter presión, ni mirar cámaras para ver si curran o no. Así no funciona.

Si las cosas no están funcionando y no estás contento con tu equipo es tu responsabilidad. Tú les hiciste el proceso de selección, de ti han aprendido y es tu empresa.

Para que funcione, tu equipo tiene que trabajar por objetivos. Marcar bien unas KPIs, dejar claro a la gente cuáles son sus responsabilidades, cómo se mide su desempeño y hacer un seguimiento del mismo. Y si hay que hacer correcciones, se hacen.

Ryan Reisert

- 2) losing all their colonies
- 3) having the worst food on the planet
- 4) forgetting that it ISN'T illegal to use spices in your food
- 5) not realizing that braces were invented in the 18th century

Can ya'll help me decide which direction I should go in?

Could use all the help I could get

Al final, tu deber como empresario es determinar hacia dónde tiene que ir tu equipo y luego permitirles trabajar y crecer en esa dirección.

No controlar poniendo cámaras o grabándoles las pantallas a ver si trabajan.
Sino motivarles, marcar el rumbo de lo que deben hacer y luego medir ese trabajo.

Si la gente cumple, la empresa sigue creciendo.
Y si la gente no cumple, todo el mundo conoce sus objetivos y luego no habrá sorpresas.

Don't be like the Undertaker

We have all fallen into this trap; I did when I started as an SDR.

You get happy ears, when a prospect says "call me in.." you think this is for sure going to be a meeting, you can book that holiday you've always wanted etc etc.

However, the prospect is raising an objection, which you must first handle to ensure its validity.

Daniel Disney

This might be the most important career advice in sales.

Because here's the truth:

Your reputation travels faster than you do.
Your name comes up more than you think.
Decisions about your future happen without you.

Every. Single. Day.

Think about it...

Josh Whitfield

I don't think we've quite yet realized what Claude did with routines...

Here is a quick example - Calendly - Clay - BlitzAPI - Octave - Instantly.ai - SIGNALIZ - Slack.

One flow, scheduled, managed, available via API.
The output is insane and I one prompted this.

Holy cow!

257 likes 56 comments 3 reposts Text + Photo 8.27x

So what would I recommend if someone says "call me in.."? Here are my top 3 tips:

1 "Can you help me understand why, then?" It could be that the prospect had a project ongoing or a financial year end; get more details as to why they are pushing you to another date.

2 "What will have changed at that time?" Another way of asking the prospect to determine if what you have suggested will be top of mind when you get hold of them at the later date.

3 "You mentioned this is something of interest; what happens if you do not act on it before the time we speak" You are trying to understand if the status quo is 'good enough' for the prospect, if there isn't a pain that you've unearthed, then nothing will change their mind.

What other tips would you add? Let me know in the comments!

Why did this work? Belonging

That promotion you're hoping for?
Being discussed in rooms you're not in.

That big account you want to work?
Being decided by people you've never met.

That leadership opportunity?
Being influenced by what others say about you.

The uncomfortable truth?

Success in sales isn't just about crushing quota.
It's about having advocates.

People who say "Give them a shot" when others doubt.
People who defend your approach when it's questioned.
People who mention your wins when you're not around.

Here's what ACTUALLY happens when you have real advocates:

- ↳ Opportunities find you before they're posted
- ↳ Your mistakes get context, not just criticism
- ↳ Your ideas get championed, not stolen
- ↳ Your growth gets fast-tracked, not delayed
- ↳ Your reputation becomes your strongest asset

But here's the part most people miss:

To have people fight for you...
You need to fight for others first.

That SDR grinding it out? Mention their progress in the team meeting.

 Show media

15/4/2026 Ver en LinkedIn ↗

Why did this work? Controversy

That peer who helped you close a deal? Make sure leadership knows.
That manager who coached you? Tell their boss what it meant.

Because advocacy isn't luck.
It's reciprocity.

The rep everyone wants on their team?
They've been building others up for years.

The manager everyone respects?
They've been defending their people consistently.

The leader everyone follows?
They've been fighting battles for others quietly.

Here's what fighting for others ACTUALLY looks like:

- When someone's not in the room:
- Correct misconceptions about them
 - Highlight their strengths
 - Share their wins
 - Provide context for their challenges

- When opportunities arise:
- Recommend them even if it doesn't benefit you
 - Connect them with the right people
 - Put their name forward
 - Open doors they can't open alone

The magic of advocacy in sales?

It compounds.

Every person you genuinely support becomes part of your network.

Every battle you fight for someone builds trust.
Every time you elevate others, you elevate yourself.

Not through manipulation.
Through genuine support.

So ask yourself:

Who are you fighting for when they're not around?
Whose potential are you highlighting?
Whose success are you championing?

Because the people who win biggest in sales aren't just the best closers.

Be the person who fights for others.
Watch how many start fighting for you.

Your career will never be the same.

Es la integración real de Gemini dentro de tu flujo de trabajo.

Y va a cambiar cómo trabajas cada día en Gmail, Docs, Sheets y Meet.

He preparado una guía práctica explicando TODO lo que se puede hacer...
Y la estoy regalando.

¿Por qué?
Porque la mayoría sigue usando Google Workspace como en 2022, mientras otros ya están automatizando tareas que antes llevaban horas.

En la guía verás, paso a paso:

- ✓ Cómo usar Gemini para escribir y responder emails en Gmail automáticamente
- ✓ Cómo crear documentos, propuestas y resúmenes en Docs en segundos
- ✓ Cómo analizar datos y sacar insights en Sheets sin fórmulas
- ✓ Cómo preparar reuniones, resúmenes y follow-ups en Meet
- ✓ Casos reales de automatización para marketing, ventas y operaciones
- ✓ Errores comunes que te hacen perder tiempo (y cómo evitarlos)

Imagina esto:
– Abrir Gmail y ya tener respuestas listas
– Crear un documento desde una idea suelta
– Pasar de reuniones caóticas a resúmenes accionables
– De "trabajar para Google Workspace" → a que

One of the biggest lies I've been told in life (that also applied to my career)?

It was to never meet your heroes. But I did... and she gave me the best advice!

At one of my past jobs, I met an executive that I really looked up to. She had worked at all my dream companies and is insanely smart, wildly successful...

FR | Un francés con un secador de pelo ganó $34,000 calentando un termómetro en un aeropuerto de París. La seguridad ahora busca al "genio" que sacó provecho de una apuesta de temperatura en Polymarket.

El truco fue que el mercado de clima de Polymarket dependía de datos de un termómetro específico ubicado cerca de un aeropuerto, sin seguridad

El apostador anónimo supuestamente se acercó al termómetro, lo calentó con un secador de pelo portátil hasta la temperatura objetivo y huyó para asegurar la ganancia.

Tras el incidente, el mercado aparentemente cambió a un termómetro de un aeropuerto diferente — esta vez con guardias de seguridad colocados al lado.

I tested the full outbound loop so you don't have to [Setup takes 2 min]

1. Claude

2. Customize

3. Connectors

4. Toggle Apollo on

No API keys | No CSV exports | No tab switching

Here's what we did:

1. Prospecting

Prompt:
I, 'Find CTOs at Series B SaaS companies in NY, 50-200 employees'

Results:
→Results returned in 10 seconds
→Claude translates plain English into an Apollo search
→Works for tech stack targeting, recently funded biz, hiring signals etc...

You just replaced Lusha [$3,000] and ZoomInfo [$25,000]

2. Enrichment

Prompt:
I, 'Bulk enrich the following contacts and return their verified emails, phone numbers, and job titles'

Results:
→Contact enrichment duration: Instant

I just built a prompt for Gemini 3 based on real sequences from 1000s of emails in my community that get upwards of 8% reply rates on cold emails.

The capabilities are insane:
→ Writes full sequences instantly
→ Creates followups people actually respond to
→ Leads with value, not desperation for another deal

This isn't just theory - I've used this system across multiple industries with the reps I coach.

The best part?

It costs $0 and can d this in minutes isnetad of spending hours trying to write effective messaging.

I've included everything in the library:
→ The way for it to understand your offer
→ The inital email prompt t write effective initial emails
→ The structure to create full sequence that

Why did this work?

Controversy

→Company enrichment: Funding, tech stack, headcount, news
→Buld enrich 25 contacts: 100% accurate, written back into Apollo

You just replaced Clay [$8,500]

Apollo stays the system of record. No exporting, copy pasting or data loss

3. CRM actions

Prompt:
I, 'Create a new record in Apollo for each of these results with the following details: First name, Last name, Email, Job title, Company, Phone, Location'

Results:
→Creates a contact record directly inside Apollo
→Retrieves records with permission controls intact
→Updates an existing contact without leaving Claude

You just replaced Hubspot [$10,000]

4. Sequencing

Prompt:
I, 'Search my Apollo sequences + find the best match for a contact who is a [Job title] at a [Industry] company in [Location] with [Employee range] employees'

Results:
→Add contacts to sequences in one prompt
→See all active sequences + live performance stats
→Remove contacts + check enrolment all inside

Claude

You just replaced Outreach [$6k], Instantly [$5k] and Salesloft [$10k]

5. The full Outbound Loop

One Prompt:

↳ 'Find leads → enrich contacts → create records → add to sequence'

Results:

→ Done

→ End to end

→ One tab, one conversation

This workflow used to take hours across 8 tools.

Now, it takes on prompt, in Claude, using Apollo.

Don't believe everything you read on LinkedIn though.

Comment 'PROMPTS' or DM me and I'll send you:

1. My personal 21 prompt Apollo <-> Claude Prompt Library
2. Full Claude MCP setup guide

The Library includes prompts for:

→ Enrichment

→ CRM actions

→ Full outbound loops

→ Sequence management

→ Prospecting and discovery

What used to cost $75,000 a year, now only costs $794.

This is the future of AI in sales

Same output → One workspace

Thank you Apollo for making this possible.

I got into B2B sales when I was 24 years old and was top in the nation in sales for 10+ years at a Fortune 500 company.

I made $120k my first year, by the time I was 27 years old I was already making over $200k and made 7 figures doing it.

What I've learned that can help anyone who is selling in B2B is this:

1. Story telling is extremely powerful
2. Always control the sale

Solar panels... between train tracks. 🌞🚆

Switzerland just piloted the world's first removable solar system installed directly on railways.

Here's why it's a game-changer:

⚡ Laid in hours while trains keep running

🔧 Removable for track maintenance

🏠 Huge potential, Germany alone could power 1.8 million homes if fully deployed

This is the kind of hardware climate tech that excites

Europe's largest vertical forest. 8km of trees covering a building!

By 2050, 70% of humans will live in cities facing critical threats:

🔥 Urban temperatures up to 12°C hotter than surroundings

💀 7 million deaths yearly from air pollution

👤 90% of urban residents breathing unsafe air

In Düsseldorf, the problem was clear. A massive highway had divided the city since the 1960s. But instead of fighting nature... they embraced it.

3. Manage your manager and internal teams to get a sale closed
4. If you want to condense the time it takes to close talk to the CEO
5. Don't be afraid to break the rules when needed
6. Stay away from negative people and coworkers who want to gossip
7. Ditch partner lunches and unnecessary internal calls/meetings when you can
8. Don't be afraid to go above your manager if you need approvals for a deal
9. Confidence is by far the most important thing in B2B sales
10. Funnel is life

🌱 30,000 trees now cover a local building, turning it into a vertical forest.

Here's how this living building works:

✅ Trees planted directly into walls & roofs with special substrates

💧 Smart irrigation delivers precise water & nutrients year-round

🌿 Plants absorb pollution & release cooling water vapor

🌍 A natural air conditioning system, reducing urban heat

Results?

🌿 More biodiversity & cleaner air

🌡️ Significantly lower local temperatures

Managers may have status.

But leaders create true impact.

Here is what impactful leadership is not:

- Neglecting professional development and training
- Not acknowledging and actioning feedback
- Micro-managing every single detail
- Avoiding difficult conversations
- Favouring people over others
- Setting unclear expectations
- Taking all the credit
- Ignoring team input
- Being inaccessible
- Resisting change

Impactful leadership is:

- Listening actively
- Taking full responsibility
- Treating everyone equally
- Being friendly and approachable
- Empowering everyone around you
- Having difficult but necessary talks
- Embracing change and adapting fast

Nadie habla de este país... pero es donde mejor se vende del mundo 🇪🇸

Las empresas lo están pasando por alto. Un error.

Aquí es donde vive el futuro de las ventas, y te explico por qué:

1) Se libra de la regulación europea clásica

Lo que lo hace perfecto para innovar sin frenos. Mientras media Europa se ahoga en normativa, aquí no. No te extrañe que el próximo gran sistema de ventas salga de aquí.

2) La gente está hecha de otra pasta

Su PIB es un misterio y su idioma no tiene vocales. Aquí se vende a base de cafeína, llamadas en frío y cero excusas. ADN comercial puro.

3) Proximidad estratégica a los mercados

Puede vender a Europa por la mañana y a Estados Unidos por la tarde. Lo que hace posible la ansiada jornada de 15 horas.

- Accepting feedback and taking action on it
- Celebrating achievements no matter what size
- Providing clear guidance, especially in difficult times

The best leaders focus on:

- ↳ Setting the example
- ↳ How they make people feel
- ↳ Bringing the best out of everyone

It's far more than a title.

La mayoría de las propuestas:

- No se pierden por seguimiento.
- No se pierden por timing.
- Ni siquiera por precio.

Se pierden por cómo fueron estructuradas desde el inicio.

Aquí están las 4 razones más comunes:

- No hiciste incómodo el problema.
Si el cliente puede convivir con el dolor, puede posponer la decisión.
- Tu propuesta informa... pero no obliga a decidir.
Explica procesos, pero no genera tensión ni urgencia estratégica.
- No puede defenderte internamente.
En B2B nadie decide solo. Si tu champion no tiene argumentos claros, el comité posterga.
- El precio quedó desconectado del impacto.
Si aparece como número aislado, se vuelve negociable.
- Tip extra (clave): las propuestas NO se entregan, se presentan.

Cuando solo la envías por correo, pierdes el control del marco de decisión.

Cuando la presentas, guías la conversación, gestionas objeciones en vivo y construyes urgencia real.

Por ello, he realizado una nueva presentación sobre bases de datos relacionales y no relacionales, donde explico las diferencias clave entre estos dos tipos de bases de datos, sus aplicaciones prácticas y cómo elegir la mejor opción para tus proyectos: desde la consistencia y las transacciones complejas de las bases de datos relacionales hasta la flexibilidad y escalabilidad de las bases de datos no relacionales

Las bases de datos relacionales, como #MySQL y #PostgreSQL, son ideales para aplicaciones que requieren transacciones complejas y consistencia de datos, garantizando la integridad referencial. Por otro lado, las bases de datos no relacionales, como #MongoDB y #Cassandra, destacan por su capacidad de manejar grandes volúmenes de datos no estructurados y su escalabilidad horizontal, lo que las hace perfectas para #BigData y análisis en tiempo real.

La elección entre una base de datos relacional y una no relacional debe basarse en factores como la estructura de los datos, la escalabilidad y el rendimiento, asegurando que se adapte a las necesidades específicas del #proyecto.

Espero que esta presentación te sea útil y te inspire a explorar nuevas tecnologías en el mundo de las bases de datos. Gracias por vuestro tiempo y estaré encantado de leer vuestros comentarios y experiencias! 💬

Feliz miércoles! 😊

According to WHO, the average healthy life expectancy for men in the U.S. is about 63 years

Years where the body mostly works.
Energy is there.
Pain isn't running the schedule.

That's not pessimism.
It's just paying attention.

We're taught to chase.
Hustle.
Grind.
Delay.
"Later" becomes the reward.

Work hard now.
Enjoy it later.

But later isn't promised.
And later often arrives with limits.

I've watched people get the watch
after decades of effort and realize they don't have the body,
the energy,
or the appetite to enjoy what they earned.

My dad did this.
He worked.
He sacrificed.
He waited.

And when the time finally came,
the window had already started closing.

This isn't a call to be reckless.

Si estás cansado de escuchar...
"Lo voy a pensar" y luego silencio...

Comenta "Checklist"

Y te envío mi checklist secreta de lo que debe llevar una propuesta comercial de impacto, creada para inversiones grandes y proyectos de alto valor.

Porque el problema no es el cliente... es cómo estás estructurando tu propuesta.

 Why did this work?

Controversy

 Josh Braun

You make a cold call.
You speak your piece.
They say, "F off."
Then they hang up.

Your manager says,
"Call them back. Tell them you got disconnected."

But you didn't get disconnected.
You got dismissed.

That's what happens when you cling.

When you believe every call must become something.

When a "no" feels like loss instead of guidance.

Let go..

 Aaron Reeves

R.I.P. to generic cold email templates.

Gemini 3 didn't just outperform GPT-5... it straight up embarrassed it.

I've tested every AI you can think of for cold emails.

ChatGPT, Claude, Perplexity.... they were all "good"

But you don't stand out with "good."

So I built a prompt t create you your own Custom Gem on Gemini 3.

It's been trained on the emails I sued to get up to a 8% reply rate.

Then I create a master prompt to clone their exact tonality..

 Chris Ritson

High paid SDRs in 2025:

Will not:

1. Work >100 accounts
2. Do 200+ calls per day
3. Blame Marketing leads
4. Grumble about their AE
5. Discard accounts too quickly
6. Think sales is a "numbers game"
7. Send 1000s of automated emails
8. Post "thought leadership" on LinkedIn and expect loads of inbound meetings...

Will:

1. Work fewer, better accounts
2. 40-50 strategic calls per day
3. Give Marketing weekly feedback

You spoke.
They answered.
That's the dance.

Whisper to yourself,
"Thank you for showing me where not to spend my time."

Have some self respect.

Then breathe.
And begin again.

There are countless people who won't hang up on you.
At least not right away.

The shift isn't in the script.
It's in the state of mind.

Scarcity → Abundance.

 Why did this work?

The result?

It doesn't feel like AI copy.

It feels like your top-performing AE wrote it.

Here's how it works:

- You tell it which company do you work for with the website
- You tell it what persona you're reaching out to
- You tell it what is the trigger for the email
- Takes under 41 seconds.

It mimics human tonality.

Creates a 7 step email sequence.

And is ready to paste directly into your sequences.

Most people are still prompting ChatGPT to "write me a new cold email"

This is running 7-figure outbound in the background.

I'm giving away the Master Prompt for free

Want it?

- Like this post.
- Connect with me.
- Comment "GEM" and I'll DM you the link.

Finish 2025 Strong 🍀

4. 20-25 highly targeted emails daily
5. Work on mastering the DMs on LinkedIn
6. 2 hours of "no distraction" work every-day
7. 15 minutes weekly reviewing performance
8. Learn that conversion matters more than aimless volume

Stop listening to the trends.

Start doing the hard yards.

Do you agree?

 Repost if you think this will be "the way" on 2025.

Claude x Khosla Ventures: The Pitch Deck Agent 🔥

Investors invest pushed by 2 emotions: fear and greed.

Complexity triggers fear. Simplicity, clarity, and confidence trigger greed. Most decks are fear machines.

Vinod Khosla has published multiple documents and statements (like the one above) on the perfect pitch and exactly how his fund wants to be pitched: slides per section, words per slide, the sentences that kill a seed pitch.

In today's issue I break down his advice and wrote a guide on how to build an agent that makes Claude write, review and stress-test your deck on those exact parameters.

Inside you'll find:

The Ultimate Claude x Clay GTM Playbook 🔥

Clay just partnered with Anthropic to bring its entire GTM research infrastructure directly inside Claude.

We just crossed the threshold: When GTM research, enrichment, buying-committee mapping, and outreach all run inside one reasoning loop, outbound stops being a workflow and becomes execution.

This isn't a 20% productivity boost.

It's stack collapse:
ask → research → reason → draft → iterate directly inside the interface.

If you're in sales / growth / revops / founder / AI tooling, learning this is no longer optional. The baseline moved.

So I built a full breakdown of what you need to know.

1. How to Present to Investors (The ACS Framework)
2. How to Frame a Pitch That Actually Lands (The Six Ps)
3. How to Solve the Pitch Problem (The 5 Questions KV Wants Answered)
4. Pitch the Way VCs Think (Fear, Greed, and the 5-Second Rule)
5. The Pitch Agent File: Every Rule in One Markdown

What you'll get:

- ◆ Connect Clay to Claude in 60 seconds
- ◆ Generate ICP-perfect contact lists with verified emails
- ◆ Surface hiring velocity + growth signals instantly
- ◆ Map economic buyers + technical evaluators
- ◆ Draft signal-grounded outreach (not "Congrats on the funding")
- ◆ Founder warning: if your product sits adjacent to GTM infrastructure, it's exposed

Outbound isn't about sequences anymore. It's about intelligence loops.

¿No estás contento con tu sueldo?

Te propongo una solución muy sencilla.

1. Crea una empresa.
2. Ponte el sueldo que crees que mereces.
3. Haz lo mismo con tus trabajadores.

Subir sueldos desde fuera siempre parece sencillo.

Perfecto.

Entonces crea tú la empresa.

Asume los costes.

Paga nóminas.

Afronta meses malos.

Y pon los sueldos que consideres justos.

Yo no digo que las empresas (grandes) siempre paguen bien.

Ni que todos los sueldos sean justos.

Digo que opinar desde fuera es fácil.

Gestionar desde dentro, no tanto.

Si no te gusta tu sueldo, actúa.

Opción A: negocia.

Opción B: cámbiate.

Opción C: crea la empresa y paga tú los sueldos.

Y si eliges la opción de quejarte de empresarios sin haber gestionado nunca uno, no pasa nada. Pero al menos sé honesto con eso.

[ABRO DEBATE]

¿El problema de los sueldos es que los empresarios pagan poco o que muchos no saben lo que cuesta pagar una nómina? ¿Que opinas? 👉

 PD: Si quieres emprender (o estás en ello) mi

BUT there are a lot of things in sales that will never change:

1 - Sales will ALWAYS be about solving problems and helping people.

↳ People can tell when someone is only interested in selling something.

↳ The focus should always be on the problem you solve, not the product.

2 - Listen always has been, and always will be, more important than talking.

↳ The best salespeople listen 2-3X more than they talk.

↳ They ask the right questions and give their customers time to answer.

↳ They encourage their customers to elaborate and go deeper.

3 - People buy from people they TRUST.

↳ In an AI dominated world, trust has never been more valuable.

↳ If they don't trust you, they'll find a salesperson they do trust.

4 - Never sell something to someone who doesn't NEED it.

↳ You might win a sale, but chances are it will get cancelled.

↳ There's also the risk they tell others about their bad experience.

5 - Lying is NEVER acceptable in sales.

↳ If you lie to win a sale, chances are it won't last.

↳ No good salesperson will ever need to lie to win a sale.

6 - Sales success will always be based on hard and smart work.

↳ Hard work is important, but hard smart work will always win.

↳ Quality and quantity come hand in hand in sales.

7 - Salespeople need to be RESILIENT to win at sales.

↳ You'll face a lot of rejection, objection and challenge.

↳ The best in sales walk through it and know how to deal with it.

8 - The most important sales skill is the ability to ADAPT.

↳ Adapting to new tech, new platforms, new tools and new processes.

↳ Adapting to each individual prospect and customer.

I'll be the first to embrace new things in sales.

But I'll always follow the basics.

And after 20+ years in sales I can tell you one thing...

The basics will always win.

Every time an SDR quits, you lose more than just a headcount.

You lose their knowledge of what messaging works, their understanding of objections, the patterns they spotted that aren't documented anywhere.

Most companies treat SDR turnover like it's normal. "It's an entry-level role, people move on." That's the problem right there.

When you treat SDRs like temporary workers, you get temporary results. When you treat them like strategic assets, they stay and compound their impact.

The cost of replacing an SDR isn't just recruitment, it's 6 months of lost pattern recognition and market

 Daniel Disney

I had a manager who would scream at the sales floor every morning.

Not motivate. Scream.
True story.

"If you don't hit target, you're gone!"
"I'm watching every call you make!"
"Don't even THINK about leaving early!"

Every. Single. Day.

They'd hover over our desks.
Check our screens constantly.
Question every break we took.

And at the end of every month?

It's time for a Solarpunk revolution 🌱
Urban living doesn't have to be gray, polluted, and void of nature anymore. 🏡 ✖️

These Green Shades are a perfect example of how we can rethink cities.

They're vegetal canopies covered in lush greenery, bringing natural shade and life to urban spaces.

Ideal for streets where there's no room for trees

They cool streets naturally, absorb CO₂ and pollutants, and use a smart irrigation system to recycle water efficiently (without it dripping on people below) ☂️

We want cities designed to work with nature, not intelligence.

Build retention into your culture from day one.

The threats got worse.

"I've spoken to the director. Jobs are on the line."
"Some of you won't be here next month."
"You better figure it out."

I dreaded going to work.
My stomach would turn in the car park.
Sunday nights were filled with anxiety.

And here's what's crazy...

I was actually GOOD at my job.

But that environment made me feel like a failure every single day.

So I quit.

Not because of the work.
Not because of the targets.
Not because of the customers.

Because of THEM.

And I wasn't the only one.

That team had a revolving door. People came and went constantly. The best reps left first.

Years later, I became a sales leader myself.

And I made a promise:

I would NEVER lead through fear.

↳ When my team struggled, I worked WITH them against it.

A shift to greener cities isn't just an aesthetic choice either.

To adapt to climate change, this transformation is a must.

Would you like to see something like this in your city? 🌱

↳ When pressure hit, I protected them from it

Because I learned something from that terrible manager:

Fear doesn't motivate people.
It breaks them.

People don't quit jobs.
They quit toxic cultures.
They quit micromanagers.
They quit feeling undervalued.

If you're in a role like I was...

Know this: It's not you. It's them.

And you ARE capable of finding something better.

You deserve a leader who builds you up.

Esto haría si empezara LinkedIn desde cero...
Pero la mayoría de la gente se salta estos pasos.

No importa quién seas...
→ Te ayudará a atraer clientes
→ Aumentará tu visibilidad
→ Tendrás más credibilidad

Por eso, he decidido analizar el perfil de Jose Elías

Y haremos un directo hablando sobre "5 Pasos para Posicionarte en LinkedIn y Atraer Clientes" ->
<https://luma.com/zo6dbiii>

Pero primero, necesitas un perfil optimizado:

FOTO DE PERFIL

↳ Asegúrate de salir profesional
↳ Incorpora los colores de tu marca
↳ Usa dimensiones de 1080 x 1080 píxeles
↳ Amplía la imagen para ocupar el 80 % del espacio

PRESENTACIÓN

↳ Usa un lenguaje sencillo
↳ Sé breve y contundente
↳ Transmite claramente lo que haces

BANNER

↳ Enumera las pruebas sociales
↳ Destaca tu oferta
↳ Sea directo, evita preguntas
↳ Genera una buena primera impresión
↳ Usa dimensiones de 1584 x 396 píxeles
↳ Deja 1/4 de espacio libre para la foto de perfil

ACERCA DE

↳ Hazlo atractivo para la vista
↳ Cuenta tu historia

Voy a ser sincera: he probado de (casi) todo en LinkedIn.
Desde herramientas caras hasta "truquitos" caseros (y algún apaño con post-its, lo confieso). 🤖

Después de mucho ensayo y error, estas son mis imprescindibles para crear contenido sin perder la cabeza:

🔥 Para hacer networking:

El 80% de las oportunidades llegan por las personas, no por los posts.

↳ Crystalknows
↳ Kombo

🔥 Para analizar lo que funciona (y lo que no):

Porque publicar sin analizar es como lanzar dardos a ciegas.

↳ Kleo
↳ Taplio ↳ Favikon

🔥 Para encontrar inspiración:

Nada peor que abrir LinkedIn y quedarte en blanco.

↳ Uso AnswerThePublic y AlsoAsked para descubrir las dudas de mi audiencia.

↳ Pero, seamos sinceros... el mejor truco es escuchar y leer.

↳ Leer los comentarios (sí, esos que a veces pasas de largo) son minas de oro.

🔥 Para hacer mis post:

↳ Notion: para organizar mis ideas sin caos mental.

↳ Flipboard: para estar al día de contenido relevante sin perderme en internet.

↳ Canva: para que mis diseños sean atractivos (y que no parezcan hechos con Paint).

Our 'sustainable' future is rotting in a graveyard 🕒

Green tech is piling up—and it's not looking so green anymore.

🚲 🛼 The bike-sharing boom turned bust.

Thousands of bikes and scooters abandoned because fixing them costs too much.

🌬️ Wind energy is green, but turbine blades?

Not so much.

These fiberglass giants can't be recycled, piling up in landfills instead.

🚗 Fixing damaged batteries can cost as much as 40% of a car's price.

Many users just ditch them.

Bankrupt car-sharing companies and failed startups?

They leave fleets of EVs to rot.

What's the real problem?

We've built a system where it's easier to trash than reuse.

It's time to stop innovation from ending up in landfills.

Are we ready to rethink our throwaway habits?

- ↳ Proporciona los datos de contacto como CTA
- ↳ Intenta que tenga unos 2000 caracteres
- ↳ Incluye resultados cuantificables

DESTACADO

- ↳ Dirige el tráfico de LinkedIn a tu web/newsletter
- ↳ Usa dimensiones de 1920 x 1080 píxeles para el contenido destacado
- ↳ Yo hablo de Ploot

BOTÓN PERSONALIZADO

- ↳ Selecciona Icono de "lápiz" en tu perfil
- ↳ Elige tu CTA y añade el URL
- ↳ Agrega un CTA debajo de tu título

EXPERIENCIA

- ↳ Elimina la experiencias irrelevantes
- ↳ Añade enlaces externos para dirigir el tráfico de LinkedIn a tu perfil
- ↳ Mantén los puestos que complementen tu enfoque actual

APTITUDES

- ↳ Enumera las dos habilidades más relevantes en la parte superior
- ↳ Busca recomendaciones para estas habilidades clave
- ↳ Usa los 50 espacios de habilidades disponibles para obtener visibilidad

🌟 Este miércoles 26/11 a las 18:00 (ESP) haré un directo hablando de:
"5 Pasos para Posicionarte en LinkedIn y Atraer Clientes" -> <https://luma.com/zo6dbiii>

He estado muchas horas para preparar este post, pero si te ha gustado, ha valido la pena :)

📅 Para programar publicaciones:

- ↳ Uso Metricool porque es súper intuitiva.
- ↳ Si estás empezando, prueba Postcron, que te permite programar hasta 10 posts GRATIS.
- ↳ ¿Sin herramientas? Organízate con Notion y programa directamente en LinkedIn.

🚫 ¿Y eso de que programar penaliza en LinkedIn? Tranqui, es solo un mito.

Como el de que los gatos tienen 7 vidas 🐾 (aunque seguro que alguno lleva cinco gastadas).

🎁 Y tengo una sorpresa 🎁

Si además de las herramientas, quieres mi paso a paso para crear contenido sin volverte loco:

- ⚠️ Comparte este post.
- ⚠️ Comenta "GUÍA".

Te prometo que te voy a ahorrar meses de prueba y error. 😊

🔥 POR FAVOR NO USES ESTAS PALABRAS EN TUS ESTRATEGIAS DE MARKETING 🔥

Hay palabras que usamos por costumbre, pero que no dicen nada.

Y si tu contenido "suena bonito" pero no comunica, entonces no está funcionando.

Hoy te enseño la versión 2.0 de palabras que no debes usar en tus estrategias de marketing o también darle un "twist" a tus contenidos.

Si me conoces de tiempo sabrás que mi forma de hablar aquí es muy casual y cercano, te recomiendo mucho que tu también encuentres tu tono y tu voz, yo me basé mucho en mi personalidad entonces es como la gente te puede reconocer fácilmente.

¿Cuál otra palabra agregarías a la lista? 🗣️

I interviewed 2 SDRs 👯

SDR 1 - Male, on £30k. Wanted £35k.
SDR 2 - Female, on £23k. Wanted £26k.

I hired them both on £35k.
They hit target for 12 months.

Male SDR asked for a pay rise.
The female SDR didn't.

I gave them both pay rises.
Promoted both to AE 6 months later.

Male leaders - just because the men in your team ask more doesn't mean they deserve it more.

Remember: It costs $0 to favour fairness.

Do you agree? 🌱 repost if you do! Thanks!

Finalmente he decidido dar el paso...

Últimamente, las fechas parecen tener más protagonismo que las habilidades y logros personales. A decir verdad, me parece un tanto frustrante que se nos juzgue más por nuestra edad, calculada a partir de cuándo terminamos el instituto o la universidad, que por nuestras competencias y logros.

Por ello, después de una buena dosis de reflexión, he decidido quitar las fechas de mis estudios de mi perfil de LinkedIn. Sí, así como lo lees. 🍷

No te equivoques, no es que tenga algo que ocultar. Al contrario, estoy orgullosísima de mi camino y de cómo he llegado hasta aquí. Pero quería enviar un mensaje claro: quiero que se me valore por mis méritos, mis habilidades y mi experiencia, no por mi edad.

Y no lo hago por mí, lo hago por todos esos compañeros a los que les han juzgado por ser "demasiado jóvenes" o "muy mayores" para ejercer un puesto al que claramente podían acceder.

Así que aquí me tenéis, con un perfil renovado y una visión clara. Y no, no tengo nada en contra de quienes deciden compartir su "edad académica".

¿Y vosotros, qué opináis? ¿Os habéis encontrado con situaciones en las que sentís que se os juzga más por vuestra edad que por vuestras habilidades? ¿Habéis considerado hacer un cambio similar en vuestros perfiles? ¡Me encantaría conocer vuestra opinión! 🍷

April 12th, 2026 at 4:00PM my beautiful wife and daughter gave themselves to our Lord Jesus. I can't even begin to explain what I felt in that moment. Watching them step forward with so much faith so much love so much courage it broke me in the best way. There were tears there was gratitude there was a feeling in my chest I'll never forget. This wasn't just a baptism this was a moment that changed everything. A moment where heaven felt close and our lives felt forever different. This is a day they'll remember forever and a moment I will hold onto for the rest of my life. Truly unforgettable. Forever in my heart.

Sales people are some of the worst spenders and drinkers I've ever met.

They work so hard to close deals. All to blow it on a brand new leased car, designer clothes, and drinks at the bar. And the crazy part is, is this culture is accepted and promoted.

When in reality, sales people should put their hard earned money into assets FIRST. Buy the fancy stuff later.

This is not being promoted in the space so I'm promoting it. STOP blowing your money on material possessions.

Get out of debt, build an emergency fund, max out your 401k(especially if your employer matches), invest into stocks, invest into your skills, and save

Big announcement today at Remote!
We are going all in on global payroll and employment infrastructure, and opening our platform to the world.

Sounds simple until you try to build it:

Payroll in one country is already a dense topic. Payroll across the world becomes an insane systems problem: tax laws, social security, benefits, holidays, languages, currencies, equity, and local interpretations that change because a government updated a rule somewhere.

When we started Remote, my engineer brain thought we would plug into the payroll APIs that existed around the world.

They mostly did not exist, so we did the hard work.

We set up entities. We built in-house payroll engines. We documented compliance country by country. We learned the local details that make payroll work in practice.

It took seven years. It took a lot of investment. It took a lot of people doing important work.

Today we are opening that infrastructure up.

Any company, any tool, any workflow, any AI agent can plug into Remote and use the global payroll and employment infrastructure we have built.

You keep your systems. We handle the hard parts: payroll, compliance, employment infrastructure, country by country.

I am grateful to our team, our customers, our partners, and everyone who supports us along the way.

Seven years building toward this chapter. The best is yet to come.

Let's go.

I turned the most valuable McKinsey frameworks into AI Skills 🔥

McKinsey makes $16B/year. Not because every consultant is a genius.

Because they take smart 26-year-olds and install a system into their brain.

By the time that analyst sits across from a CEO, they're not "figuring it out."

They're running a methodology refined over 50 years and tens of thousands of client engagements. That's what companies paid $2M for.

The crazy part?

The frameworks were never secret.

- Minto published the Pyramid Principle.

- Martin and Lafley published Playing to Win.

- Kaplan and Norton published the Balanced Scorecard.

- Porter published Five Forces.

- Gadish and Gilbert published Profit Pool analysis.

The barrier was never access.

The barrier was operationalizing those frameworks on a real problem, under pressure, with enough structure to make them useful.
Claude Opus 4.8 changes that.

I put together a guide with 12 Claude skills built around the same consulting frameworks elite firms

 Daniel Disney

Each "no" in sales is just one step closer to another "yes", here are 5 things to remember 📌

1 > The rejection is never personal, not everyone needs what you sell right now

2 > They might just not realise that they need what you sell, your job is to help them

3 > Never let a "no" reduce your motivation. Approach each prospect with optimism

4 > There are people out there who actually need your product. Your job is to find them

5 > Remember all of the people you've helped so far, keep that positive energy

Salespeople will always face rejection

Some days you'll get more than others

But that's what we have to work through to find our customers

And when we do find people we can help

It's worth it

Keep pushing 🍌

Today I'm roasting profiles for free

Yep, LinkedIn is gonna burn

---- UPDATE ----

My Inbox + Comments are exploding. So here's the deal.

I'm going to do 100 in total.

20 spots left, so going to cherry-pick from the list.

If I select you, I'll send you a message.

Don't worry.

If you didn't make this ROAST.

Going to this thing again next month.

---- UPDATE ----

I see so many LinkedIn profiles making these mistakes

- Vague tagline
- Crappy banners
- No profile picture (No joke, have seen this many times)

 Patrick Cherniawski

Ben Murray flagged something in his newsletter last week that many SaaS finance teams may be getting wrong, and it may be hiding in your P&L too.

Forward Deployed Engineers.

If you're an AI Native SaaS company, you probably have them. FDE's are developers who work directly with customers to build, deploy, and operationalize your product. Because their title says "Engineer," and they roll up to the product team, your finance team codes their cost to R&D by default.

But if a given FDE's task is to "deploy, and operationalize real production solutions using the company's product", that may be a classification error, and if so, it's distorting your gross margin.

Ben's test is the right one: "What breaks if all of your FDE's quit? Most likely revenue delivery. And revenue delivery is typically a COGS function."

So, what's the solution? You have to get three things right:

First, you need the hours categorized correctly at timecard entry. The project the FDE logs against should determine the P&L line the costs go to. Customer deployment? COGS. Product sprint? R&D.

P.S If you work in sales, I'm giving away lifetime access to my ENTIRE online sales training library for FREE! Grab your copy here

 Why did this work?

Controversy

Second, your timecard solution needs to be an auditable system of record. Most FDEs track time in Jira, which gives their manager hours logged but gives the CFO nothing: no connection to the chart of accounts, no cost rates, no financial output.

On the other hand, a PSA like Certinia handles the COGS side natively. Time logged against a customer project carries a cost rate, feeds into project margin, and connects to the ERP. But the FDE also needs Jira for product work, so you're running in both solutions whether you like it or not.

Third, you need the actual cost per hour recalculated every pay period.

Let's say your FDE works 48 hours in a week, 30 hours deploying a customer solution, and 18 hours building product. She's salaried at $250K fully burdened, so her weekly cost is $4,808 no matter how many hours she works.

If you allocate at the standard rate ($120.20/hour x 48 hours), you get $5,769 in costs. But you only spent $4,808. The correct math is $$4,808 \div 48$ actual hours = $100.17 per hour. Then 30 hours * $100.17 is allocated to COGS, and 18 hours * $100.17 to R&D, for a total of $4,808, which matches payroll.

Ben is right to push on this, because in practice, one of two things probably happens. Either the correct P&L coding gets missed entirely and all FDE costs land in R&D, which means your COGS is understated and gross margin looks better than it is. Or Finance does a manual reallocation at month-end based on yet another spreadsheet. Neither of these is a great outcome.

If you have FDEs, how are you tracking the split between customer work and product work? And how confident are you in the cost allocation?

Hola LEVEL Airlines.
Compré un vuelo nocturno de 12:30 horas porque viajo con un bebé.

Pagué los asientos XL para que tenga algo de espacio y no tenerlo corriendo por los pasillos.

Así que me cambiaron el vuelo.

Ahora viajamos de día.

The end of Creative Strategists?

Claude 4.6 is already replacing them.

Not through simple automation.

But through sharper thinking.

Most advertisers still run Meta Ads like this:

- Open Ads Manager
- Browse the ad library
- Search for hooks
- Write some copy
- Brief a designer for creatives
- Launch and hope something sticks

 Zack Deris

You've been lied to about how to use Claude LLM. It's not about 'asking better questions'
→ It's about engineering instructions

Most people use AI like a calculator

But power users leverage it like a team of experts on demand

The difference is in the prompt

And unfortunately, the best prompts are:

- Hidden
- Blacklisted
- Shared only in private Slack channels and $3,000

Error.

Porque yo me dedico a hacer llamadas en frío.

Y si alguien me complica la vida, lo convierto en contenido.

Así que vamos a llamar cada día a Level.

Tengo de todo para venderles: desde servicios de reputación digital para mejorar lo que aparece cuando buscas opiniones en Google, agentes de IA para atención al cliente que resuelven más que algunos humanos... literal que no me faltan opciones.

Tengo batería en el móvil y compré vuestro wifi horrible así que voy a empezar hoy.

Que comience el juego.

PD: si le quieres vender algo a Level deja un comentario y te los prospecto gratis. Así tú te promocionas y me ayudas a viralizar esto para que a nadie más le pase.

Why did this work?Controversy

Hours of effort.

Much of it based on assumptions.

Because the toughest part of advertising isn't writing ads.

It's strategy.

Grasping the angle.

Understanding the audience.

Knowing why something actually converts.

So I built a Claude-powered Meta Ads Creative Strategist.

Not just a copy tool.

A system that maps the market before a single ad is created.

- Claude studies the landscape.
- Uncovers the angles.
- Builds the strategy.
- Then produces the assets.

Here's what this system handles:

- * Pulls winning hooks from top-performing ads
- * Reveals the angles driving conversions in your space
- * Develops full creative concepts before production begins
- * Writes conversion-focused ad copy tied to each angle
- * Outlines the visual direction for every creative masterminds

Until... today

I compiled 7 of the most elite, gatekept, high-ROI Claude prompts in one free handbook:

'The Ultimate Claude Handbook'

-Designed to help you finish 10 hours of work in 10 minutes

-Used by top CMOs, agencies, strategists and entrepreneurs

-Works best on Claude, but also suitable for ChatGPT, Gemini & Grok

Here's what you'll unlock inside

1. The Deep Research Engine

Turn any document, report or competitor website into a sharp strategic brief in under 2 minutes

2. The Proposal Machine

Generate client-ready proposals that position your value, handle objections and make saying 'yes' feel obvious

3. The Content Repurposing System

Turn one piece of content into a full week of assets across LinkedIn, Email, PDF and more

4. The SOPs & Systems Architect

Turn a voice note or rough description into a professional SOP your team can follow without asking you a single question

* Produces multiple variations ready for testing

All within seconds.

No manual digging.

No endless competitor analysis.

No staring at a blank screen.

Claude takes care of the strategic layer.

You focus on execution.

One input now delivers:

The hook

The concept

The ad copy

The testing angles

The outcome:

More effective creatives

Faster iteration cycles

Stronger market positioning

This isn't "AI writing ads."

This is a Meta Ads creative strategist built on Claude.

Instead of:

Research → Brainstorm → Write → Design → Test

You move to:

Analyze → Generate → Launch → Learn → Scale

5. The Sales Call Analyzer

[Used this on EVERY new client this year]

Paste any call transcript and get the real objections, the buying signals you missed and a follow-up email that CLOSES the deal

6. The Strategic Advisor

Upload your real business data and get strategy that actually applies, not generic advice

7. The Cowork Automator

Brief Claude on any file-based task and let it execute so you stop doing the admin that's eating your best hours

This handbook is zero fluff

↳ Zero upsell

→ Just execution

→ Comment 'HANDBOOK' to get your copy

Join 38,000+ people using this to dominate with AI

This is your cheat code

Run it → Don't just read it.

Lo que revelaron las cámaras remotas del parque rompió los corazones de todos los que vieron las imágenes.

Un viejo elefante toro, conocido por los guardabosques como "Mnumzane" (Zulu para "Sir"), había encontrado el cuerpo de Sipho. Durante tres días y tres noches completos, el elefante se negó a irse. Hizo guardia, tocando suavemente al guardabosques con su tronco, ahuyentando hienas y chacales que se acercaban demasiado, e incluso cubriendo partes del cuerpo con ramas y hojas. En la tercera noche, el elefante seguía allí, visiblemente afligido, balanceándose lentamente junto a su amigo caído. Solo cuando todo el equipo de recuperación llegó con vehículos, Mnumzane finalmente dio un paso atrás, observando solemnemente mientras se llevaban a Sipho.

Los funcionarios del parque confirmaron más tarde que Sipho había rescatado a este mismo elefante cuando era un ternero años antes después de que los cazadores furtivos mataron a su madre. El elefante nunca lo había olvidado.

Un colega que vio las imágenes susurró:

"No vino a despedirse... Vino para asegurarse de que nadie le faltara el respeto a su hermano". Mnumzane todavía visita el lugar exacto regularmente. Los Rangers ahora dejan agua fresca y fruta allí en honor a ambos.

- And they do not fear the process.

This is said best by Thomas Edison:
"I have not failed. I've just found 10,000 ways that won't work."

It is cliché but it is true.

Here are 6 highly credited frameworks

That will change the way you think about failure:

1. Experiential Learning Cycle - Learning occurs through a cycle of experiencing, reflecting, thinking, and acting. Therefore highlighting the power of both concrete experience and reflective observation in the learning process.

2. The Lean Startup Methodology - This emphasises a build-measure-learn approach. To build anything successful, you need rapid experimentation, feedback loops and consistent iterations based on data.

3. Double-Loop Learning Framework - This involves questioning and challenging underlying assumptions as well as addressing surface-level errors. This framework encourages deeper reflection and systemic change.

4. Plan-Do-Study-Act (PDSA) Cycle - Based upon the theory of continuous improvement this Plan a change, implement it, study the results, and act on what is learned to refine subsequent iterations.

5. Growth Mindset Framework - Individuals with a

Mark Cuban just described the largest wealth transfer of the AI era
Almost nobody understood what he said:

There are 33 million companies in the US with no AI budget and no AI team. The shoe store. The regional trucking outfit. The accounting firm with 12 employees.

They know AI is coming. They have no idea what to do with it.

- The wealth does not collect where the brain is built
- It collects where the brain meets the business
- You do not need to build the model
- You need to build the nervous system

Every ambitious person is chasing a seat at OpenAI or Anthropic. Cuban is staring at the other 99% of the economy.

What industry do you think gets transformed first?

Hay mucho conocimiento sobre ventas B2B, pero poco sobre cómo utilizar la IA en este sector. O quizás hay demasiado, pero es confuso y difícil de navegar en un mundo en constante cambio. Por eso nos preguntamos: ¿qué necesitan saber los equipos comerciales sobre la IA? Y nos pusimos a investigar.

De ahí salió este libro que estamos a punto de lanzar. Quedó muy bueno, de lo mejor que he visto (aunque viene de cerca la recomendación). Si quieres una copia gratis, antes de que esté públicamente disponible, déjame un comentario; me encantaría recibir tu feedback.

Excited to share the news that I've officially stepped into the role of CEO at AppViewX following the acquisition of Eos Cyber, Inc.

There's a massive proliferation of #AI Agents and #Machines in the enterprise. This proliferation continues to rapidly expand the attack surface area. With identity-based attacks being the number one cause for breaches, protecting their identities and controlling their privileged access is key to securing these two rapidly growing classes of identities in the enterprise. At AppViewX, we're building an #IdentitySecurity platform that helps enterprises demonstrate post AI and Quantum resilience and governance.

Next week, I'll be at RSAC and I'd love to connect.

Stopping 86% of river plastic... with bubbles!

In a Dutch bar, three friends had a eureka moment over beers.

They learned that 11 million tons of plastic enter our oceans yearly, and 80% flows through rivers first.

Then they noticed the bubbles in their drinks.

That's how they invented The Bubble Barrier, a simple yet powerful system using bubbles to stop plastic before it reaches the ocean.

How it works:

- ✂ Perforated tubes placed on the riverbed
- 💨 Air pumped in to create a curtain of bubbles
- 🗑 Plastic waste guided to the surface
- ♻ Collected in smart catchment systems

Why it's revolutionary:

- ✓ Catches plastics as small as 1mm
- ✓ Runs 24/7 without supervision
- ✓ Allows fish & boats to pass freely

I built Claude Skills that create a full GTM team, generate campaign ideas, and write cold email sequences for you.

All inside Clay. Without switching tools.

Instead of sharing "AI prompts."
I'll share the skill files that actually work inside Clay in our $7M Agency.

Generic prompts give you generic outputs.
These are different.

Each skill file is built for a specific Clay workflow:

- Company Research Agent
- Personalization Writer (that doesn't sound like AI)
- ICP Scorer
- LinkedIn Profile Analyzer
- Data Cleaner & Normalizer
- Objection Handler
- Email Sequence Writer
- Competitor Analyzer
- Job Posting Analyzer

- Sort tasks into 4 boxes:
- Important/urgent - Do it now
 - Important/not urgent - Schedule it
 - Not important/urgent - Delegate it
 - Not important/not urgent - Ignore it

 Eat the Frog

- Do the hardest task first.
- The rest of your day will be easier.

 Seinfeld Strategy

- Don't break the chain.
- Work toward a goal daily to build a habit.

 Time Blocking

- Divide your day into specific blocks for tasks.
- Schedule them and stick to it.

As Steve Jobs said, "Your time is limited, so don't waste it living someone else's life."

Don't let your tasks manage you.
Take control and get sh*t done!

POCHETTINO APUESTA POR LA IA EN EL MUNDIAL

Mauricio Pochettino incorporó en su trabajo con la selección de Estados Unidos Sportian Performance, una plataforma desarrollada por Globant que combina inteligencia artificial, video y métricas avanzadas para analizar rivales, detectar patrones y asistir al cuerpo técnico durante los partidos.

La herramienta se volvió visible durante la goleada 4-1 de Estados Unidos ante Paraguay en el debut mundialista, cuando se viralizó un video del DT mostrando información a sus jugadores desde una laptop. El sistema centraliza datos, genera informes, visualiza jugadas, revisa métricas y emite alertas.

Pochettino dijo que la plataforma permite “analizar partidos y tomar mejores decisiones en tiempo real, respaldadas por datos sólidos”. Sportian ya opera en los 42 clubes de LaLiga, la Belgian Pro League y más de 50 competiciones y organizaciones deportivas.

Top European universities ranked for entrepreneurs the startup talent map is getting clearer:

https://lnkd.in/d_NvAM_9

The founders building the most venture-backed companies in Europe are still coming from a small set of universities, and the concentration is stronger than most people expect.

At the top of the 2025 ranking:

- 1 University of Cambridge leads by founder count and total companies built
- 2 University of Oxford follows closely with even more capital raised
- 3 INSEAD ranks third, despite a much smaller alumni base

What’s more interesting is the movement underneath:

Giulio Segantini

Age 18: Moved to London to be a waiter to learn English.

Age 23: Completed a quite useless Philosophy Degree.

Age 24: Almost fired twice from my first sales job.

Age 26: Made 150K USD in a year, same job.

Age 27: Awarded a Ferrari as company car.

Age 28: Sales Director managing 40.

Age 32: I quit to be a sales trainer.

Age 33: Making 25K in first year.

Age 34: Made 100K plus again

Age 35: Crossed 400K revenue and 300K followers across social media, becoming hard to miss in my niche.

No matter where you are now, your story is not over.

Anthropic just released their Economic Index and there's one finding I can't stop thinking about.

The education level of AI responses matches the education level of user inputs. 0.92 correlation. That's near-perfect mirroring.

- 👉 If you prompt at a PhD level, you get PhD-level output.
- 👉 If you prompt without any depth or without using your brain, you get surface-level responses.

The report also shows AI disproportionately covers tasks requiring 14.4 years of education, higher than the economy's average of 13.2 years. AI capability, for now, comes down to human capability.

This is a wake-up call for:

- 👉 Businesses: Train your junior talent. They need foundational skills in their role to leverage AI effectively.
- 👉 Schools: Teach students critical thinking, even without AI tools.
- 👉 Parents: Help your kids build knowledge, resilience, and deep understanding.

We already saw what smartphones did to attention spans. I find myself actively battling my own phone addiction (in fact, one of my 2025 resolutions was to not pull my phone out in an elevator as a crutch - just

I put 29 Claude skills into this repository so anyone can launch a cold email campaign automatically that ALSO self improves. Here's how you can get it for free.

I've been working daily in Claude code since January. With 45 days of usage, I had written 2M lines of code to my computer.

Now it's been 6 months. I told Claude Code, "make a plan to distill the skills that I've created so that we can give them away publicly. think about what a beginner would need to know to get started but make sure there's things cold email veteran's would love.

Here's a high level overview of what's in the repo.

1. Onboarding about who you are, what your company does. Scrapes your website automatically to find case studies. Asks 12 questions to lock in your ICP.
2. Checks to make sure you have infrastructure in place. If not, walks you through step by step buying domains on Dynadot and Zapmail AND runs an update to set them up on Smartlead.
3. List building. Suggests using Prospeo, Google maps, or DiscoLike based on the job and has a built

I don't see enough people in marketing talking about Claude Skills and I think it's wildly impactful for knowledge work. I'll give you one of my favorites in this post.

Claude Skills is basically a really easy way to create training for an AI model.

Explain what you want to accomplish, give it data to train off of what you would do manually, and it creates a markdown text file to keep doing the skill.

For months, I've been trying to build an email copywriting bot. It worked great for some customers, but inconsistent for others. Frustrating as hell.

Then Claude Skills dropped.

We trained a Claude Skill on our internal campaign strategy docs, my favorite writers, and our best-performing campaigns.

Now here's what it does:

You give it a website URL as input.

It scans for signals that indicate the company has a problem we can solve.

sit in silence, people!). AI can continue to accelerate that decline if we let it.

"AI will do all my thinking" - no, it will REFLECT your thinking. The tool is only as powerful as the person wielding it. Please invest in your humans now.

Then it ranks campaigns:

- Best signal (most exclusive, highest intent)
- Second best signal
- Third best signal
- Fallback campaign (for everyone in your ICP without specific signals)

It scores each campaign and gives you a mini-analysis on how to approach the copywriting.

It also includes the first draft of the email for each signal as well as follow up email ideas.

This is what I mean when I say Claude Skills is a powerful replacement for knowledge work.

It's not just generating generic outputs. It's making strategic decisions based on your specific methodology.

Comment "skills" if you want me to send you the campaign strategy file to see how it works. If you don't like the way my copywriting is trained, upload your own copy to Claude and retrain it yourself!

What knowledge work are you still doing manually that could be trained into a skill?

After raising $35M, we spent the past year rebuilding Ava from the ground up

Today we're launching Ava 2.0. The first truly autonomous AI BDR

A few things I'm especially proud of:

- Fully autonomous reply handling (she qualifies, objection-handles, and books meetings)
- Self-serve onboarding, live in under 10 minutes
- The first AI BDR you can actually chat with
- Starting at $250/month

Ava 2.0 viably replaces ZoomInfo, Clay, Salesloft, Aircall, and Common Room. She has the most broad capabilities of any GTM product

And she runs everything for you, autonomously.

She's already sending on behalf of thousands of AEs, AMs and BDRs globally, for companies like SaaStr, CookUnity and SumUp

Let Ava do the prospecting. Let humans close

The Wolf of Silicon Valley, Jordan Belfort, saw it firsthand

Get access to Ava 2.0 via the link in the comments

Shoutout to the entire Artisan team who have been working 100 hour weeks for months to bring this product together

And to Jason M. Lemkin and MyTechCEO for helping us make this launch video great!

Promesa cumplida de Cucurella x GARNIER CLUB

Si lo hacía, tenía que ser GOOD.

Ayer analizaba la campaña y hoy me quito el sombrero.

Enhorabuena Publicis España 🍷

Lo que no se ve detrás:

➡ Investigación y análisis: Identificaron la oportunidad perfecta con la promesa de Cucurella y la vinculación emocional con el triunfo en la Eurocopa.

➡ Creatividad y estrategia: No solo se trataba de aprovechar un momento viral, sino de hacerlo de manera creativa y estratégica.

50 real Pitch-Decks from startups that raised $380M+ across Pre-Seed to Series A stages 🍷

Why do some startups raise millions while others can't even get a meeting?
It usually comes down to one thing - a killer pitch deck.

At Fluently (AI English tutor, GetFluently.app) the right slides helped us raise $2.5M and get into Y Combinator. But if your deck isn't clear, your idea won't even get seen.

So I curated a doc with 50 real pitch decks from startups that actually raised.
No made-up examples. No filler templates. Just slides that got a YES.

Use them to learn:

- ✅ What slides investors want to see
- ✅ How to tell a story that sells
- ✅ Slide designs that get attention

Human SDR > AI SDR

Here's 3 reasons why:

1. 98% of c-suite buyers report they'd prefer to do business with humans over robots.
 - Your buyers want human connection.
2. Only 23% of companies who have trialled AI SDRs report a successful experience.
 - It's the new, cool thing to do,. But those odds suck.
3. 96% of buyers report a stronger trust with your brand when they speak to a human rapport with a human over a robot.
 - No-one can build a relationship and connect the dots like a human.

I get it...

- AI is a hot topic
- SDRs are expensive

(Damm o Galicia).

👉 Colaboración y coordinación: Vital para asegurar que los mensajes fueran consistentes y se lanzaran en el momento adecuado, maximizando el impacto y la viralidad.

👉 Monitoreo y gestión de las redes: Una vez lanzada la campaña, el trabajo no terminó. El equipo estuvo respondiendo e interactuando con el público.

El esfuerzo y la dedicación detrás de esta campaña son un testimonio de lo que se puede lograr cuando se combina creatividad, estrategia y una ejecución impecable.

Y sobre todo, cuando el cliente se anima y confía en su equipo.

La promesa cumplida de Cucurella y la campaña de Garnier no solo ha sido GOOD, sino IN-CRE-I-BLE.

¿Qué os parece? Os leo 😊

Let's say you own a $20k Rolex.

You're about to run a demo.

Do you wear it... or go more low key?

On one hand, it can signal success.
Confidence.
"I know what I'm doing."

On the other, it can raise a question:

"Am I paying for that?"

Some people won't think twice.
Others will.

You won't hear it.
But it can sit there in the background.

So what do you do?

Do you think about perception?

Or stop caring what people think?

The most controversial way to start a cold call:

"Hey Rick, it's Josh Braun, how's it going?"

Every time I post that line, someone pops up ready to fight like it's a bar at 2am.

"NEVER ask how someone's doing!"
"It's fake!"
"You'll get hung up on!"

Simmer down Carl.

You know who says "how's it going"?
Humans.
Baristas.
Neighbors.
Friends.
People who aren't trying too hard.

You know who asks for 27 seconds?
Salespeople.

If "how's it going" sounds weird coming out of your mouth, don't say it.
If it sounds natural, say it.

It's always worked for me because it sounds like how I actually talk.

"A Book of Verses underneath the Bough, A Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread—and Thou." - Omar Khayyam in Rubaiyat.

It is with a mix of excitement and a bit of heavy heart that I decided last week to write the final chapter on my journey of the last (almost) 8 years. This incredible journey, which started with Centrifry Corporation (now Delinea) in 2018, continued into @ldaptive after its spin out, and then into CyberArk since 2020, has been nothing short of an experience of a lifetime.

I have so many individuals to be profoundly grateful to for every step of this journey. It started with Bill Mann, Tom Kemp, David McNeely and others taking a leap of faith in trusting me to drive the strategy and roadmap for Centrifry's cloud business. As we spun out the cloud business as ldaptive, it was Thoma Bravo and industry leaders like A.J. Rohde, Carl Press, Tom Clark and Danny Kibel who placed their trust in me as the Chief Product Officer of the new business. They invested in coaching me and helping me mature into a seasoned technology executive - for that, I shall forever be grateful.

The next leg of my journey saw ldaptive's acquisition by CyberArk. It was here that I embraced the core CyberArk tents of "built to last" and "smart, bold and humble", among others. I shall forever be thankful for the immense trust and confidence visionaries like Udi Mokady, Chen Bitan, Clarence Hinton and Peretz Regev first placed in me in my role as the SVP of Products. As we grew CyberArk from sub $5B in 2020 to $17B+ in market cap today, I cannot be more thankful to Matt Cohen, Gil Rapaport and Eduarda Camacho, who granted me the incredible

And I'd be remiss not to thank so many of my team members and co-workers who have stood by me, contributing to my successes in this leg of the journey. To all of you, I remain in your debt - and know that I will ride into battle alongside you any day of the week. I couldn't be prouder of all that we at CyberArk have accomplished together, and I'll be enthusiastically cheering from the sidelines as the company continues its incredible growth journey towards $100B+ market cap.

As for my next step, I'll be embracing those introspective words at the start of this post and enjoying a book or two under the Apple and Loquat trees in my backyard. I'll be taking the summer off to ride my bike, side-by-side, with my 7-year-old precocious son, play Zingo and Candyland with my 3.5-year-old tornado of a daughter, and be an engaged, present partner to my incredible, beautiful wife. And after that, I'll be back with all my passion and energy, raring to innovate, contribute to and transform the world of CyberSecurity alongside many of you, hand in hand. In the meantime, hit me up if you're in the SF Bay Area - I'll always be up for a soy latte and will never shy away from a passionate debate on the future of AI and Cyber. Onward and upward!

It doesn't matter where you fit in this chart.

Leadership is not a title. It's these 8 things:

Brilliant leadership sheet from my good friend Justin Wright

1. Your actions
2. Your attitude
3. Your behaviour
4. Your drive
5. Your empathy
6. Your example
7. Your integrity

And the most important part:

8. Your team's respect

Leadership isn't something that is given to you. It's your daily actions.

Want to become a better leader? Begin now—in your current position.

5 Quick Tips to Become a Better Leader Today:

1. Be Proactive: Don't waste time waiting. Quickly find areas that need improvement. Take the initial step to address them.

De "pica-prompts" a Director de Sistemas: Las 4 capas de Claude que tenéis que conocer!

Si sigues usando Claude solo para hacerle preguntitas, estás usando un Ferrari para ir a por el pan. El 90% de la gente no pasa del nivel principiante.

Todo esto lo podeis aprender en nuestra comunidad de lideres <https://lnkd.in/dzxBrprJ>

Aquí tienes la hoja de ruta para dominar el ecosistema y poner la IA a currar de verdad para ti. Sin rodeos.

CAPA 1: El Chat (Lo que hace todo el mundo) Aquí es donde está la masa: escribiendo parrafadas y esperando milagros.

El Setup: Déjate de versiones gratuitas. Baja la App de escritorio, paga los $20 y activa Opus 4.6 + Extended Thinking.

Conectores: Nada de subir PDFs como un principiante. Conecta tu Drive, tu Notion y tu Slack directamente.

El "Protocolo": Deja de escribir testamentos. Usa: "Quiero [TAREA] bajo [CRITERIOS]. Entrevistame antes de empezar". Punto.

2. Influence Others: Motivate those around in your environment.

The best leaders do this by:

- ↳ Setting the example
- ↳ Actively listening to others
- ↳ Aligning a team on one shared mission

3. Make Decisions fast: Leaders need to be decision-makers.

It doesn't mean you need to make monumental choices.

But small consistent decisions can set you apart as proactive.

4. Take ownership: Be completely accountable for your actions

Always take responsibility, both for wins and losses.

5. Be a strong communicator: Keep others in the loop.

Provide clear guidance and share your vision.

Leadership is your consistent behaviours.

You can begin whenever

And in any position.

You don't have to wait for permission or a promotion. It'll happen faster when you're acting the part.

CAPA 2: El Cowork (Tu Clon Digital)

Aquí es donde matas el "prompting" para siempre. Si tienes que repetir quién eres, estás perdiendo dinero.

Estructura: Crea tu carpeta en Cowork con tus plantillas y, sobre todo, tu archivo "Anti-IA" (esas expresiones de bot que te matan de vergüenza).

Instrucción Global: Configura a Claude para que lea tu manual de estilo siempre antes de abrir la boca.

El resultado: Ya no le explicas nada. Él ya sabe cómo piensas y cómo escribes.

CAPA 3: Skills & Plugins (Tu Factoría Personal)

Deja de pedir favores y empieza a instalar habilidades permanentes.

Skill Creator: Dile a Claude que analice tu tarea más pesada y la convierta en un archivo .md de "Habilidad".

Ejecución: Lo subes a Settings > Capabilities. Ahora esa función es nativa; se dispara sola en cuanto detecta el trabajo.

Plugins: Activa el buscador web y las herramientas de análisis en la tienda de Cowork.

CAPA 4: Code & Computer (Control Absoluto)

La fase final. Claude deja de ser una pestaña en el navegador para ser un empleado sentado en tu mesa.

Claude Code: Conecta tu GitHub y abre la extensión en VS Code. Activa el "Skip Permissions". Que la IA programe, testee y despliegue mientras tú te tomas un buen vino.

Computer Use: Activa el control de escritorio.

Dispatch: Conecta el móvil. Le mandas un WhatsApp a la IA con una tarea y que ella la ejecute en tu PC mientras tú estás en una reunión o en el club.

Seamos claros:
En la Capa 1, tú eres el que trabaja.
En la Capa 4, EvolupedIA se convierte en el sistema operativo de tu vida.

Personal story ❤️

I want to start this off by saying this is not to attack anyone but this is a message for me.

Guillermo Flor

BREAKING: The head of Claude Code at Anthropic says he doesn't prompt Claude anymore

Boris Cherny, who leads Claude Code, just said this publicly:

Dante Emilio Grassi

France just told 2.5 million civil servants to drop Zoom and Teams by 2027. Replacement is Visio, a homegrown French platform. 🇫🇷

This isn't one country getting loud. It's a pattern.

The past year, I was in a relationship that I got attacked constantly for my beauty, my drive, my ambition, how I dress, and all the things that make me me.

I was beat down and abused emotionally behind closed doors. Defending and trying to prove to someone how loyal, not a threat I was, and begged to be chosen!

We would go out and I would get a lot of attention. Just to come home crying over it.

Just 2 weeks ago, I was looking in the mirror crying over my beauty, body, success, and feeling so down.

This person completely eroded my self worth and now I'm working to get it back.

This lesson taught me that you can be the most beautiful, successful, loving woman, and still not be enough for some people.

Not because you're not enough but they don't have the capacity to hold you with care.

I am stepping into the era where I am going to be all that God has called me to be, shine, heal, and not feel sorry for it.

So if you see me posting more pictures of myself it's me reclaiming who I am UNAPOLOGETICALLY !!

And I pray and hope no other woman or man goes through what I went through.

"I don't prompt Claude anymore. I have loops running that prompt Claude and figuring out what to do. My job is to write loops."

Read that again.

The person building Anthropic's coding agent doesn't write prompts. He writes loops that let the AI prompt itself.

And he says this is the transition we'll see for the rest of the year.

The skill isn't talking to AI. It's designing systems where AI talks to itself.

Are most developers building for a world that's already gone?

PS: I wrote a breakdown on how to code with loops. Check it out: <https://lnkd.in/efAyejGh>

✅ Austrian military?

Switched from Microsoft Office to LibreOffice.

✅ Schleswig-Holstein?

Moved state administration off Microsoft.

✅ Lyon? Replaced Microsoft with open source.

✅ Copenhagen and Aarhus piloting the same shift.

✅ France ordered every ministry to plan extra-European exits by autumn 2026. They are making moves, for sure. 🇫🇷

The quote that matters, from France's civil service minister:

"We cannot risk having our scientific exchanges, our sensitive data, and our strategic innovations exposed to non-European actors."

That's procurement language, not just protest language. It's the argument we've been tracking since ETM launched.

ETM now lists European alternatives to 375 US products.

--> 67 alternatives to AWS

--> 55 alternatives to Azure

--> 44 alternatives to Teams

--> 33 alternatives to Stripe

--> 30 alternatives to Zoom

Why did this work? Controversy

Daniel Disney

Being someone people WANT to work with is a superpower.
Think about it...

Who gets the referrals? The person everyone likes working with.
Who gets promoted? The person other teams request.
Who survives layoffs? The person everyone fights to keep.

It's not about being a pushover.
It's not about being everyone's friend.

It's about this:

- ↳ Bringing energy, not draining it
- ↳ Solving problems, not creating them
- ↳ Building others up, not tearing them down
- ↳ Making the tough days bearable
- ↳ Celebrating others' wins like they're your own

Juan Duran Bon

Si trabajas con #datos, seguro que te has encontrado con información incompleta, valores extremos que distorsionan los análisis o datos en formatos poco útiles para modelar. Antes de aplicar cualquier modelo o sacar conclusiones, hay un paso clave que no podemos saltarnos: la #limpieza y #preprocesamiento de datos.

Por qué es tan importante?

Porque la #calidad de los datos impacta directamente en la calidad de los resultados. Un #dataset desordenado o lleno de valores atípicos puede llevarnos a conclusiones erróneas y modelos poco precisos.

En mi nueva presentación, explico cómo enfrentarte a este desafío y cómo transformar datos crudos en información lista para el análisis.

Qué he preparado?

Grace Gong

Smart AI Leadership Summit by Smart Venture Media is back.

3 summits in 365 days. This one's the best yet.

The room on April 2:

C-suite & VPs from Meta, Microsoft, Nebius, Box, Together AI, LangChain, Databricks, Lyft, MongoDB, Snorkel AI Execs from Anthropic & ElevenLabs

Founders of billion-dollar companies: Crusoe, Higgsfield AI, Serval, Dexterity, Inc. Partners from Andreessen Horowitz, IVP, New Enterprise Associates (NEA), Bessemer Venture Partners, Gradient, M12, Microsoft's Venture Fund

Not a massive conference. Not a private dinner. Something in between — and harder to get into than both.

Every seat earned. We cover the billion-dollar

The smartest person in the room rarely wins long-term.

The person everyone wants on their team?

They become indispensable.

Here's what I try to do every single day:

I try to be the person who makes someone else's day better.

Be helpful.
Be positive.
Be the teammate you'd want.

It makes a bigger impact than you might think.

Nobody remembers your IQ.
Nobody remembers your results.

They remember how you made them feel.

And THAT'S what builds legendary careers.

Europe's youngest billionaire never set foot in Silicon Valley 🤔
Meet Markus Villig. Born in Estonia, population 1.3 million. Dropped out after one semester
<https://lnkd.in/e6hgSuF6>

Borrowed €5,000 from his parents and built a ride-hailing app to take on Uber:

Uber had $19.8 billion. He had a laptop

- Went where Uber wasn't: Eastern Europe and Africa
- COVID wiped 85% of revenue overnight
- Founders went to zero salary instead of laying people off
- Pivoted to food delivery and survived
- 200 million customers, 50+ countries, $8.4 billion valuation

Billionaire at 27. Built from Tallinn, not San Francisco

What's the most underrated startup market in the world right now?

yesterday I had the honor of delivering the opening remarks for the Ecosystem Stage at HumanX.

our stage covered three things I think about constantly as a founder and angel investor:

- how to deploy AI safely (the safety conversation is no longer optional for enterprises)
- how to actually scale AI inside large organizations, not just pilot it, but operationalize it
- where VCs are placing their bets in AI right now and why but honestly?

the speaker lounge and backstage greenroom were just as valuable as the stage.

ran into legends like the CEOs of Harvey, ElevenLabs, Lovable, Snowflake, and Replit, plus a co-founder of both Perplexity and Databricks. some of the most important builders in the valley, all under one roof.

what made it even more surreal, so many HumanX speakers have been guests on the Smart Venture Podcast and Venture with Grace.

from rising founders to household names in AI, they've all made time for our shows. HumanX just confirmed what we already knew, these are the people building the future.

I used to have 6 employees
↳ I've replaced them with ChatGPT
→ Comment "GPT" to get my full workflow

No layoffs. No drama.
Just automation, optimization, and acceleration.

Before ChatGPT, every client project felt like a marathon:

 Iker Galarza Rodríguez

Esta esquina del Atlántico la ven como pulpo y el Camino. Y exporta más que Croacia entera 🐙

Me crié al lado y tampoco lo sabía hasta que me senté a mirar los números de verdad.

Lo que se ve fuera: marisco, gaita y lluvia que no para.
La realidad de dentro: una máquina de exportar

The ability to take nothing personally is a superpower.

Here's how to develop your own mental armour:

The benefits of taking nothing personally are paramount:

- You have a stronger resilience to stress

→ Writing outreach scripts

→ Building lead lists

→ Handling follow-ups

→ Drafting proposals

→ Writing content

→ Tracking CRM data manually

It worked. But it was slow, expensive, and inconsistent.

Then I discovered the power of AI Agents.

Now, my outreach runs 24/7.

My messages are personalized.

My meetings are booked on autopilot.

All with one setup:

→ ChatGPT + custom GPT agents

→ Apollo for lead sourcing

→ Make or n8n for automations

→ Google Sheets & Notion for tracking

→ Zapier for glue

→ Slack for notifications

→ Gmail & Instagram for delivery

Everything's built with zero code.

What used to take a team now takes one person with a playbook.

So I documented it.

I turned my full B2B client acquisition process into a repeatable, scalable system using AI Agents.

The results?

→ 30+ qualified B2B meetings per month

bestial, escondida detrás de la ría.

Mira estos tres datos:

1. Vende fuera más que Croacia entera: 30.939M€ contra 23.100M€ (Eurostat)

2. De un pueblo de A Coruña salió el mayor grupo textil del planeta, que viste a medio mundo

3. Vigo es el primer puerto pesquero de Europa por valor de lo que descarga

Aquí no manda un solo sector. Textil, automoción, conservas, naval y granito apretando a la vez.

El secreto no es lo que todos repiten:

Olvidate de la morriña.

Olvidate de las ayudas.

Olvidate del Camino.

Esto es oficio de muelle, gente que monta una nave y la deja montada para sus nietos, y polígonos llenando contenedores entre orballo y retranca.

Sí, hablo de Galicia.

A Coruña, Pontevedra, Lugo y Ourense remando juntas desde antes de que la industria llevara apellido de moda.

La miña terra que no te venden en la guía de viajes.

Un sitio así no presume.

Aguanta callado, año tras año.

Las empresas y la gente que lo sostienen:

- You feel happier and more fulfilled

- You make faster better decisions

Use these 3 key ways

To never take things personally again:

1. Zoom out

The first step is to zoom out.

Think about how this moment will affect you:

↳ 1 week after

↳ 1 month after

↳ 1 year after

Chances are, the situation will not affect “future you” in any way.

Zooming out will bring you far more perspective.

Take a breather and think of the future.

2. Understand where it comes from

Most hurtful comments or negativity will be projected at you due to:

↳ How others cope with stress

↳ How they face their insecurities

↳ How they deal with fear

Once you're completely aware of this, and understand that it's THEIR issues and not yours. That is when you can truly not let it affect you.

3. Prioritise your health

It's a simple equation:

→ $80K+ revenue closed from cold outreach

→ $0 spent on ads

→ No additional hires needed

→ Just smart, scalable AI

What's inside the guide?

→ My exact prompts to generate outreach copy with ChatGPT

→ The tech stack (free + paid options)

→ How to find qualified leads using Apollo + custom filters

→ How to enrich, qualify, and sequence leads

→ How to connect ChatGPT to your workflows

→ How to track leads and responses in real-time

→ Bonus: How I use Instagram DMs + AI to close deals fast

This isn't a course. It's a system.

And it works, even if you're not technical.

Consultants, freelancers, agency owners:

→ If you're tired of feast-or-famine cycles

→ If you're overwhelmed by manual prospecting

→ If you've ever said "I just need more leads" ...

This is for you.

Comment "GPT" and I'll send it over.

You don't need 6 employees.

You need 1 system.

Why did this work? Belonging listed as "Paediatrician".

I met Sofia and the first thing I asked was "how does a doctor end up becoming a Frontend engineer?"
She said: "I tried, I liked, I kept going".

By the end of the hiring process, I knew I had two problems.

1. I was the one being interviewed by her and I failed.
Sofia told me directly she wasn't super convinced on joining us; and

2. I now had two fantastic candidates but could only hire one person for the role. I called Job van der Voort (my co-founder) after the meeting and told him, "we have budget for one engineer, but I found two. The foundational team needs to be epic and we need to find a way to afford them both." He immediately said "do it, we'll find a way". I left out the part where I still had to convince her to join. It took a few more calls with Sofia and reaching out to people in our common network to convince her but I finally managed to hire her.

Being a doctor is one of the hardest jobs in the world, high impact, often well compensated, lots of risk, and yet she decided to take up another very complicated craft, Frontend Engineering. Why? Because she liked it and no one could tell her otherwise. This determination struck a chord with me. She also aced our technical challenges and came back with feedback on how to improve them.

Year after year, Sofia kept taking on more; going deeper and wider. She went from Frontend engineer to Tech Lead > Team Lead > Engineering Manager >

Director > VP of Engineering. The VP of Engineering role came naturally to Sofia. She is a born leader and technically brilliant, but above all else, she cares deeply. She cares for the team, the company, our users, our customers - no rock left unturned.

Where to now?

Meanwhile, as co-founder, I go where the business needs me, from CTO to COO, and eventually, to President. Over time, as Remote grew, I took on more responsibilities and engineering became just one of the many pillars I was overseeing directly. I realized "overseeing directly" was mostly me clinging to my past CTO role. Sofia had taken over entirely, and garnered unanimous trust from our whole executive team.

AI is rapidly changing everything, Remote went from "engineers can build" to "everyone builds". Every team is AI-pilled. It's a significant change in mentality and pace, requiring a fundamental embrace of this new reality.

So, the decision was clear. We promoted the person who lives by "you can just do things", long before AI made it a slogan.

Sofia S. is now CTO at Remote! Can't wait to see how she makes the role her own. As for me? Stay tuned to find out...

15 uncomfortable truths every employer should read:

1. The worst time to offer someone a pay rise and a promotion, is when they have already handed in their notice.
2. You don't have a "work from home" problem, you have a trust problem.
3. People don't quit jobs, they quit managers.
4. Company culture is not bean bags, free beer or a free subscription to a meditation app.
5. If your team don't feel comfortable enough to say "I don't know" or I disagree. You have serious work to do.
6. If you do not pay people what they are worth, others will.
7. Employees have four times better engagement when they receive regular feedback.
8. Micromanagement does not mean "hard work", it means a lack of autonomy.
9. If your entry-level job advert requires real work experience... then that is not an "entry-level" job. It is

Be a resource, not a sales pitch.

Read that again.

I've watched two types of salespeople over the years:

The Pitcher:

- ↳ Opens every conversation talking about their product
- ↳ Sends the same templated message to 500 people
- ↳ Asks "Can I get 15 minutes?" before offering any value
- ↳ Disappears when the deal falls through
- ↳ Wonders why nobody replies

The Resource:

- ↳ Opens every conversation asking about THEIR challenges
- ↳ Shares insights that help — even if it doesn't lead to a sale
- ↳ Earns the right to ask for time
- ↳ Stays in touch because they genuinely care
- ↳ Gets referrals without asking

Same industry. Same product. Same market.

a normal job paying an entry-level salary to an experienced worker.

10. If the actions of the company leaders do not align with the values, there will be no trust.

11. Annual leave should not be used for, being sick, medical appointments, compassionate leave or your child being sick.

12. If you look after your employees, your employees will look after your clients.

13. Don't expect your new employees to "hit the ground running" if you aren't providing an excellent onboarding programme.

14. The fastest way to kill company culture is to let bad behaviour be tolerated and rewarded.

15. It will always cost you more to replace someone than it was to pay them what they are worth in the first place.

TLDR:

If you make your people a priority, your people will make your business theirs.

Completely different results.

People don't ignore salespeople because they hate sales.

They ignore salespeople who make everything about themselves.

The moment you shift from "How do I sell this?" to "How do I help them?"...

Everything changes.

↳ Your messages get replies

↳ Your calls get answered

↳ Your deals close faster

↳ Your customers become advocates

The best salespeople I know aren't the best closers.

They're the best helpers.

They give before they ask.

They teach before they pitch.

They serve before they sell.

So ask yourself:

When a prospect sees your name pop up...

Do they think "What does this person want from me?"

Or do they think "This person always helps me."

That's the difference between a pitch and a resource.

 D.E.P. "expertos" en LinkedIn, ADIÓS.

¡ Para 2026, construí esta guía paso a paso para que puedas conseguir clientes y autoridad en LinkedIn.

El 99% de los "expertos" solo saben hacer 2 cosas:

1. Subir posts con mensajes de motivación.
2. Enviar mensajes incómodos que huelen a venta desde el primer "Hola".

Nosotros hicimos otra cosa.

Construimos una estrategia real con IA + posicionamiento + contenido que:

- ✅ Atrae tráfico como un imán.
- ✅ Convierte sin perseguir.
- ✅ Escala sin equipo.

Resultado en 30 días:

→ +1.500.000 de impresiones sin gastar 1€ en anuncios.

La investigación detrás de esto es salvaje. La esponja de la cocina tiene la misma densidad de bacterias que las heces humanas. Científicos alemanes encontraron 54 mil millones de células bacterianas por centímetro cúbico dentro de esponjas usadas en 2017. El tuyo está sentado justo al lado de tu fregadero.

Las esponjas son el hogar perfecto para las bacterias. Están húmedas, calientes, llenas de trozos de comida y nunca están completamente secas entre lavados. En las 14 esponjas, el equipo encontró 362 tipos diferentes de bacterias. Las especies más comunes incluyen cepas que pueden enfermar a las personas.

En 2011, el grupo de salud pública NSF International analizó 30 cosas en 22 hogares estadounidenses. El objeto más sucio de toda la casa era la esponja de la cocina. Estaba más sucio que el asiento del inodoro. El 75% de las esponjas dieron positivo para el tipo de bacteria que incluye Salmonella y E. coli.

El microondas no limpia la esponja. El estudio de 2017 encontró que las esponjas en el microondas tenían mayores cantidades de las bacterias más malolientes y dañinas. El calor mata las tensiones débiles. Los fuertes sobreviven y rellenan la esponja sin competencia por el espacio.

Un estudio noruego de 2021 comparó las esponjas de cocina con los cepillos para platos. En los cepillos, la Salmonella se eliminó en tres días porque las cerdas se secan entre usos. En las esponjas, las bacterias subieron a alrededor de mil millones de células por esponja. El investigador principal le dijo a CNN que una esponja de cocina puede contener más bacterias que personas en la Tierra.

Tres cosas realmente funcionan. Cambie a un cepillo para platos, ya que los cepillos se secan completamente entre usos mientras las esponjas permanecen húmedas durante horas. Reemplace su esponja cada una o dos semanas. Nunca lo dejes en el fregadero. Noruega y Dinamarca ya lo hacen por defecto, pero la mayoría de los demás países no lo hacen.

El detergente está bien. Tu esponja es el problema.

Dejen de subir códigos QRs a sus redes sociales 🙄
Todavía no entiendo a quién se le ocurrió jaja

Nadie va a ponerse a escanear un cuadradito desde la pantalla del mismo teléfono donde está viendo tu post... ¿o todo el mundo tiene dos teléfonos?

Mientras menos pasos tenga que hacer tu cliente, mucho mejor!

El otro día vi el post que subió Micah Gilkeson, M.S. sobre este tema y es algo que siempre hablamos con mis amigas jaja

Tal como ella dice, el código QR funciona genial en la puerta de un local, en una mesa de restaurante o en un cartel en la calle. Pero en Instagram, LinkedIn o Facebook... no tiene ningún sentido.

¿Qué opinan ustedes?

But Claude doesn't know your product, your users or the decision you need to make. You should bring it into the problem at the thinking stage and not at the writing stage.

Reuniones con usuarios, técnicos, especialistas SIN influencia NO te van a acercar al cierre.

Sin involucrar un decisión makers solo son horas perdidas que no vuelven.

Y lo más peligroso no es eso.
Es que muchas veces lo sabemos...
pero igual seguimos "bailando".

"Por si acaso..."
"Para no cerrar la puerta..."
"Tal vez después me conecta con alguien..."

Ese pensamiento es exactamente lo que te deja atrapado en ciclos eternos de reuniones sin avance.

Si no sabes con quién estás hablando, si no tienes claro quién decide,
quién influye y quién solo opina,
no estás vendiendo.

👉 Estás ocupándote.

Calificar no es ser agresivo.
Calificar es respetar tu tiempo, tu pipeline y tu cuota.

Aprender a identificar decision makers no es opcional en ventas B2B complejas.

Es lo único que evita que tu energía se vaya en oportunidades que nunca iban a cerrar.

Cataluña exporta más que Portugal entera. Y casi nadie lo cuenta porque se trabaja en silencio desde hace 80 años 📌

Aquí no se viven rondas Serie A en portada de Expansión.

Se vive de turnos de 6am, naves industriales en polígonos sin glamour, y exportaciones a 130 países que llevan décadas saliendo del puerto sin que nadie lo aplauda en LinkedIn.

Todas globales. Todas catalanas. Y son solo la punta del iceberg.

Mi opinión sin filtros: el músculo industrial de Cataluña genera más PIB real que la mayoría de ecosistemas "innovadores" que llenan titulares cada semana.

Hace unos meses me senté a estudiar el ecosistema en serio. Pensaba que en 2 semanas tenía el mapa cerrado.

Cada vez que cerraba una vertical, descubría 15 empresas nuevas en otra. Química te lleva a automoción. Automoción te lleva a maquinaria. Maquinaria te lleva a farma. Y así.

Lo que pensaba antes de meterme: Cataluña era turismo, servicios y startups.

Lo que descubrí: un tejido industrial brutal repartido entre Barcelona, Tarragona, Girona y Lleida que

My #1 Responsibility In My Life ... (Read) 🍷🍷🍷

My number one responsibility in life as the man in my family is to get my wife and children to heaven with me. I've always believed in God, but the last six months of my life I have been walking with Christ daily and being a better example to my children and my wife...

I can feel the Holy Spirit walking with me daily and I see him moving through my family and my company like never before!

In the last few months, I have watched all three of my children my wife get baptized.

God is so great! Thank you Jesus!

Here's my official proposal for a LinkedIn brand trip 🍷🍷🍷

We go somewhere sunny.
We co-work by the pool.
We talk about impostor syndrome over Aperol spritzes.

But seriously... getting creators in the same room (or cabana) works.

Ideas flow faster.
Collabs happen naturally.
And the ROI? It's built in.

Creators would be posting organically the whole time. The reach would be massive. The brand affinity? Even better.

Other companies are investing in LinkedIn creators. Soooo why isn't LinkedIn?

My mom has a few days left to live.

I didn't see this until now.

She wasn't "my mom" the way I've held her in my head all these years.

She was a person.

A person doing the best she could with what she was given with what she knew with what she didn't choose.

She was a continuation of what she experienced of what was handed to her of what shaped her long before I existed.

Pain.
Grief.
Loss.
Fear.
Joy.
Love.

No instruction manual.
No rehearsal.

Just trying to get through the day and hoping she didn't mess it up too badly.

I used to think my mom was ahead of me. That she wasn't winging it.

What I've learned that can help anyone who is selling in B2B is this:

1. Storytelling is extremely powerful
2. Always control the sale
3. Manage your manager and internal teams to get a sale closed
4. If you want to condense the time it takes to close talk to the CEO
5. Don't be afraid to break the rules when needed
6. Stay away from negative people and coworkers who want to gossip
7. Ditch partner lunches and unnecessary internal calls/meetings when you can
8. Don't be afraid to go above your manager if you need approvals for a deal
9. Confidence is by far the most important thing in B2B sales
10. Funnel is life

Could Sponge Cities Be the Solution to Flooding?

Instead of fighting water with concrete and drains, cities are starting to work with nature—and the results are game-changing.

Sponge cities absorb rainwater naturally using:
 Green spaces & wetlands to soak up excess water
 Permeable pavements that let rain seep through Rooftop gardens & water-holding landscapes to prevent runoff

The result? Less flooding, cleaner water, and cooler cities.

With climate change bringing more extreme weather, should more cities adopt this approach?

La mayoría escribe prompts de 3 palabras y espera resultados de consultor senior.

No funciona así.

Un buen prompt tiene 5 ingredientes:

1. Rol → quién quieres que sea la IA

2. Acción → qué quieres que haga

3. Contexto → en qué marco debe trabajar

4. Especificaciones → cómo quieres el resultado

5. Insumos → con qué información

Y un bonus que hace toda la diferencia: termina tu prompt con "no empieces aún, hazme preguntas primero". La IA dejará de inventar y te pedirá lo que le falta.

Armé esta guía con el caso más común en cualquier empresa: redactar la minuta de una reunión.

2 - How to create an Offer using our AI Prompts

You enter a product streak. One feature leads to another. Before you know it, you've built something complex that nobody asked for.

The tweet below is a good reminder.

Calendly is $3B for letting people pick a time slot.
Stripe is $65B for moving numbers between accounts.
Slack is $27B for a chat app with folders.

The biggest companies in the world solved embarrassingly simple problems. And solved them obsessively well. And built genius brands around it.

Build less. Solve more.
